UNTERMYER DENIES AIDING PROPAGANDA; EXAMINATION RIGID

QUESTIONED ON DR. ALBERT

Witness Says He Did Not Know Agent's Berlin Associates Were in Government.

NO TEUTONS AS HIS CLIENTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Samuel Untermyer appeared today before the Senate Committee, which is investigating German propaganda, past and present. He was on the stand for nearly seven hours, and was under cross-examination by Major Humes of the Intelligence Division of the General Staff for more than four hours of that time.

Mr. Untermyer's appearance, which was voluntary, was due to the introduction into the record by A. Bruce Bielaski, Chief of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation, of a letter written in February, 1916, to Dr. Heinrich F. Albert, the former Commercial Attaché of the German Embassy, in which Mr. Untermyer asked Dr. Albert to participate in the purchase of a New York newspaper, which Mr. Untermyer intimated today was The Sun. The lawyer described the proposition he put before Dr. Albert as "a nebulous business proposition," from which nothing ever developed.

Mr. Untermyer also referred to the man who was associated with him in that proposition. This man he described as one of the best-known newspaper men in the United States, who to his friends is known as "Colonel." He gave the name to the committee on a slip of yellow paper, which he handed to Senator Overman, Chairman. It was announced that the name on the slip was not that of Arthur Brisbane, nor was it that of William Randolph Hearst. The man in question is a New Yorker, and is, as Mr. Untermyer stated, one of the most widely known newspaper men in this country.

Offer for Evening Mail.

In the long cross-examination to which Mr. Untermyer was subjected by Major Humes there was produced and placed in the record a letter which Mr. Untermyer, in uJly of this year, wrote to A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, in which Mr. Untermyer offered, in behalf of clients, to pay $200,000 for The Evening Mail, provided there was "no publicity on the part of the Government in any way involving a disclosure of the prior history of the paper or its alleged ownership by the German interests."

In this same letter to Mr. Palmer, which was given to Major Humes by Mr. Untermyer himself, the lawyer referred to the "unexpeced withdrawal of a purchaser" whose name, he added, he had confidentially given to Mr. Palmer. This man, Mr. Untermyer wrote, feared that if he made the purchase, the good-will of the paper "might be gravely impaired, if not entirely destroyed, by the publication of facts of his previous affiliations." The man referred to is understood to be the same who was to have been associated with Mr. Untermyer in The Sun proposition had that project been carried out.

Mr. Untermyer took the stand soon after 11 o'clock this morning. He read a printed document of twenty pages in which he replied to what he termed "the innuendoes and implications that have been spread broadcast, based upon insignificant transactions that were entirely harmless and legitimate, but from which it has been made to appear in effect that in 1915 and up to March, 1916, my sympathies were pro-German and that I either assisted or was willing at that time to assist in propaganda favorable to its cause."

The witness asserted that there was "not a shred of basis" for these implications. He called attention to the fact that while he was of German parentage his parents had settled in Virginia nearly a century ago and that under ordinary conditions it would not have been improper in any sense of the word if his sympathies had been—before our entry into the war—with Germany.

"But it so happens," Mr. Untermyer added, "that my sympathies were not at any time pro-German. I point to my consistent record, both before and since the war, in proof of that assertion. That was due to many causes, among them being (1) my familiarity with the characteristics and political institutinso of the chief belligerents from long personal contact and my study of the merits of the controversy; (2) my intimate knowledge of the English people and my many lifelong friendships and professional associations in Great Britain, extending over thirty years, whilst I had no such friendships or associations in Germany; (3) the fact that I had been during all these years and am still acting for large British financial interests in this country, not only as their legal adviser, but as their representative, and have nad no such relations with Germans or Germany, and (4) that Great Britain is the BERLIN, Dec. 16, (via Copenhagen.—Today the Prussian Diet's palace had within its walls an assembly such as the old Barons, bureaucrats, and plutocrats who used to legislate there would have frowned on with arrogant disgust—the National Conference of the Soldiers' and Workers' Councils.

The delegates came early, like men used to work and discipline, some 450, more than half of them in field gray, war-hardened men, many wearing the black and white ribbon of the Iron Cross. There were a few officers among them, distinguished from the others by their shoulder pieces.

Among the civilians the hard-working, deep-thinking type of factory employe in Sunday clothes seemed in the majority, but there were also quite a few modishly dressed young men of the type that used to follow in the trail of the Cabinet Ministers on similar occasions in old times.

Some of the delegates, not many, wore little red bows in their buttonholes. The President's cathedra and the wall back of it were decorated in red and green. There were no national flags.

The galleries were packed with dense masses of highly interested men and women, among whom every third man displayed a red badge of some kind.

For the first time nine-tenths of the delegates found themselves gathered in work of the Government on business of national importance in an extraordinary time, but they behaved very naturally among themselves. They appeared to be deeply conscious of their enormous responsibility.

Here and there one, indeed, discovered the well-known face of a former Diet or Reichstag member, but the great majority were absolutely new to the political world. The members of the Executive Committee and the People's Commissioners occupied the seats reserved for the Government under the old régime. Ebert, Barth, Haase, Rittmann, Landsberg, and Scheidemann, all six were there, and their familiar greetings exchanged with members of the assembly contrasted strangely with the haughty airs of the old-time Government chiefs.

Silent on Constituent Assembly.

Richard Müller, one of the two Presidents of the Executive Committee, opened the meeting. He is a very serious-looking young man, about 30 years old, who, one would hardly believe, declared in the first few days of the revolution that "the way to the national convention would lead only across my dead body." He speaks very well, but confines himself to the usual revolutionary phrases.

When he gives way to his hatred of the old oppressive system, one can understand why he permitted his tongue to slip in the manner quoted, for at that time he feared that the national convention might fall a prey to reaction. Today he said nothing about the national convention, though he and everybody in the hall had gone there mainly to settle the time of the convention. Müller closed his speech with a commemoration of those who had given their lives for the revolution.

He was followed by People's Commissioner Ebert, now about the most popular member of the Government. Ebert had made a notable speech yesterday to thousands of his partisans, making it quite clear that the national convention must and will come much sooner than at firist planned. He must have known that the majority of the delegates who listened to his speech today were determined to have the national convention early in January, but Ebert never even hinted at the subject.

He said many fine things about the future socialistic republic, emphasizing the socialistic aspect rather too much for a majority of the delegates, who evidently want a republic on a broader democratic base. They listened respectfully but without enthusiasm until Ebert warned them that the nation would go to the dogs if every-

ALLIES PUZZLED BY RUSSIA

Are in Doubt as to Who Is Qualified to Speak for People.

MUST FRAME POLICY EARLY

President Has Already Begun to Discuss the Subject with French Officials.

LONDON SHOWS CONCERN

Importance of Ending Chaos in Northern Country Now Fully Realized.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Russian problem already has been taken up by President Wilson with French statesmen, it was learned here today, and the determination of a definite policy on which all the allied countries and the United States may agree will be one of the first things undertaken at the preliminary meetings which are to precede the Peace Conference.

Russia's plight and the attitude to be adopted by the victorious associated nations is recognized as one of the most serious problems of the conference. Every proposed solution so far is said to have been blocked by the unanswered question of who is qualified to speak for the Russian people.

The Government at Omsk, of which the United States and other Governments have expected much, is now in the hands of a dictator and split into factions. The Entente nations have not given up hope that the Omsk authorities may yet evolve a stable form of government for Russia, but this has not been accomplished, and none of the allied Governments has recognized the Omsk régime officially, although all of them are dealing with Russian representatives who are in close touch with Admiral Kolchak and his Government.

Prince Lvoff, who was Premier in the Kerensky Cabinet and who has devoted most of his life to the development of the Zemstvo system in Russia, and Boris Bakhmeteff, Russian Ambassador in Washington, appointed by Kerensky, as well as Professor Paul Milukoff, Kerensky's Minister of Foreign Affairs, are on their way to Paris or already there with other prominent Russians to do whatever they can to aid the Allies in the solution of the Russian problem. But whether they represent the people of Russia at this time is a question it is privately admitted cannot be answered here.

Prince Lvoff has recently been in Washington, where he discussed the situation in his country with President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing. Professor Milukoff, whose standing in Russia under the Czar and during the Kerensky régime was very high, has reached Constantinople from the heart of Bolshevik-controlled Russia by a route not yet divulged. Some months ago it was reported that Professor Milukoff had come under the influence of the Bolsheviki, but it is regarded as evident from his opinions expressed in Constantinople that he is not a Bolshevist now.

Denekine and other Cossack leaders are in control in the Cossack districts on the Don and at Orenburg and are maintaining a Government more nearly stable than any other in Russia at present, unless it is at Archangel, which is operating in accord with the allied forces in the north. The Cossacks also are extending their control over nearly all of the Ukraine.

Far from according any recognition to the Soviet régime at Petrograd, the United States some time ago called upon all civilized nations to condemn the Bolshevist reign of terror.

Even when a set of leaders is recognized as Russian spokesmen, the United States and the Allies must face the great question of how they can be aided in setting up a stable Government and in preventing famine, for the benefit of Russia herself, as well as in the interest of the peace of the world.

To aid him in the conferences with the allied leaders, President Wilson has taken a corps of Russian experts with him to Paris.

Berlin to Issue White Book of Documents on War's Origin

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Germany's White Book, which will contain official documents bearing on the origin of the war, will be ready for the printer in about three weeks, according to advices received here. It will be printed in three or four volumes.

Carl Kautsky, an Independent Socialist leader, is preparing the data, having unusual facilities for doing the work, being an Under Secretary in the Foreign Ministry. It is said that many dispatches which were supposed to have been destroyed, have been discovered.

The notes exchanged, before the ultimatum of July, 1914, was sent to Serbia by Austria, will be printed in the first volume. Among the more important documents to be published will be the dispatches of Count Tschirschky und Bögendorff, German Ambassador to Austria at the time the war began.

Old Verger Voices Popular Sentiment as Wilson Visits the Hotel de Ville.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—"It is a pity they have not brought your President here, now that he is so near," said the verger of St. Gervais, the church, a stone's throw behind the Hôtel de Ville, in which a German long-range shell did fearful havoc on last Good Friday. I had moved with difficulty through the immense crowd which yesterday afternoon blocked every street around the Paris City Hall, and finally the passage in the square between the hall and St. Gervais.

Paris has given its heart without reserve to the American President. On the whole route along the Boulevard Malesherbes, the Avenue de l'Opéra, and the Rue de Rivoli, to the Hôtel de Ville, the crowd was thicker and, if possible, more enthusiastic than that which greeted the President's arrival on Saturday.

There was a strange contrast between the brilliant scene in the City Hall, where the full pomp of civic welcome was being offered to the distinguished guest, and the age-darkened portal of the martyred church, where masons and builders were working to repair—or at least to hide the evidence of German-brought destruction.

"The famous singers of St. Gervais—the finest choir in France—are to give selections in the Salon des Arcades at the Hôtel de Ville for the President this afternoon," continued the verger. "I wonder if he realizes that, had the shell fallen a quarter of an hour later, scarcely one of them would now be alive. As it was, they had not yet taken their place in the nave, where the worst damage was done, and all escaped with slight injuries from falling glass. If the President could have come here and seen the bloodstains in the porous stone of the pavement, which no scrubbing can remove, he would have received an impression that no municipal reception could equal."

The old man was voicing the sentiments of no small section of the French public, who, eager as they are to extend the warmest welcome to President Wilson, are yet extremely desirous that he shall see for himself examples of the ruin inflicted by the barbarous foe, of whose completeness and extent no description can give an adequate idea.

As the verger finished speaking, a tremendous roar of cheering broke out from in front of the Hôtel de Ville. When I reached the wide open space, the President was standing bareheaded about to enter his automobile a foot from the awning-covered steps leading up to the central door. Before him a double line of cavalry held back the throng of spectators. As the automobile slid swiftly along the narrow ribbon of roadway, the roar of cheers ran along the line like a prairie fire; and long after the last vehicle in the procession had departed, the far echo of acclamations rose and fell tumultuously in the distance. It was a real triumphal progress such as no for-

TWO PRESIDENTS AT DINNER

HURLEY CALLS ON WILSON

MANY QUESTIONS INVOLVED

Raw Material Supply Is a Consideration in Relief Measures.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Conferences on economic and shipping questions relating to the return of American troops occupied a considerable share of President Wilson's time today. These topics formed part of the discussions at the interviews which he had with Edward Hurley, Chairman of the Shipping Board, and Count Macchi di Cellere.

This evening he attended the dinner given by the American Ambassador, William G. Sharp, in honor of himself, Mrs. Wilson, and President and Mme. Poincaré.

Among the guests were the Ambassadors to France, the Presidents of the Senate and Chamber, the Ministers of Marine and Foreign Affairs, Marshals Joffre and Foch and the Prefect of the Seine and their wives, the American delegates to the Peace Conference, and Generals Pershing, Bliss, and Harts.

A reception followed the dinner, at which many notable men of France and the United States were present.

A great crowd massed in front of the embassy acclaimed both Presidents.

During the rainy morning Mr. Wilson worked in his study, being obliged to forego his expected trip to the golf links at Versailles. Later the President and Mrs. Wilson went for an automobile drive in the outskirts of Paris, the skies having brightened toward noon.

After the drive they returned to the Murat mansion for luncheon. With them at table were Miss Margaret Wilson and Admiral Grayson.

In the afternoon the President saw Count V. Macchi di Cellere, Ambassador of Italy, with whom Mr. Wilson had several important conferences on the steamship George Washington in the course of the voyage from the United States to France.

It is known that Mr Wilson feels the warmest sympathy for Italys' claims arising from the war, and the President practically told the Count the extent to which he was willing to support them during the forthcoming informal conferences with the Premiers of the Entente Governments.

Economic Questions to the Fore.

Economic questions are coming prominently to the front in the discussions now going on behind the scenes preliminary to the assembling of the Inter-Allied Conference and the Peace Congress. The main point hinges on the appointment of Herbert C. Hoover as Director General of Relief for all the Allies and the United States.

A proposition concerning raw materials promises to be the chief subject of debate when the question of relief is broached. It has its origin in allied quarters and calls for an inter-allied commission to control the distribution of raw materials for one year.

The American position is that the appointment of Mr. Hoover to head the relief work should not be complicated with the large general question of raw material. This is regarded as more or less connected with the policy adopted at the Allied Economic Conference in Paris before America entered the war. This policy has not been adopted by the American Government, and the present tendency of opinion in authorized American quarters is against its adoption.

The American plan for relief was presented in writing to the recent meeting of the Supreme War Council in London, but action on it was postponed. The arrival of Premier Lloyd George and Premier Orlando in Paris this week will again bring these Premiers together, this time with President Wilson, and the deferred relief

Wilson Confident of Full Peace Agreement As Minor Problems Are Being Threshed Out

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Informal conferences between the President and both American and foreign officials, which mean so much and decide so much in laying the groundwork for such a task as is before the Peace Conference, continue to make progress. The President is seeking to get acquainted with the men with whom he is to deal, so that he may discuss with the greatest freedom the problems arising and develop the value of the personal equation.

From the President's point of view, it is indicated there are plain things to be said, and he wants to say them and avoid antagonism, because, despite all the points to be cleared up and those upon which wide divergences of views have been expressed as representing public opinion in England and France, the President is confident that an acceptable agreement will be reached before the Peace Conference adjourns.

It is recalled that diplomatic history shows that conferences of this kind usually, if not invariably, assemble without definite programs to work with, and that such a conference probably never accomplishes precisely, down to the last details, what is expected of it, but that it always accomplishes something. The Americans familiar with the history of diplomacy who are attending this conference are convinced that it will be no exception to the rule.

French Politicians Feel No Anxiety That Wilson Will Try to Dictate Peace

Admit That They "Made Mountains Out of Molehills"—Plans of Socialists to Exploit Him as the Exponent of Their Policies Are Declared to Have Failed Utterly.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Americans have been flocking together for the last four days, telling each other what they themselves thought of President Wilson's coming to Paris, and what they thought the French thought. It has been obvious to a blind man what the French street crowds thought, and it has been true of France since the beginning of her first revolution that what the crowds in the streets of Paris want ultimately prevails.

But what do the political men of France think now about Wilson and his coming in person for the Peace Conference? I put that question to a number of these public men today after they had had two opportunities to witness the tumultuous, joyous behavior of the great throngs as the American President rode in state through their streets, and after some of these men of affairs had had an opportunity to talk with President Wilson at formal dinners and luncheons.

It is the truth that the political people feel better about it now than they did before the President's arrival. At least, they say so emphatically. There is much less uneasiness.

"Made Mountains Out of Molehills."

"I am convinced now," replied one of these men, "that we have been making mountains out of molehills in our anxiety as to what President Wilson would insist upon. So far as the attitude of French politicians toward the coming of Wilson is concerned, you can divide us into two groups—Socialists and non-Socialists. Each group is glad, but for different reasons, that Wilson is in Paris. The Socialists looked forward to his coming with great hope that they would be able to make party capital out of the event. With that end in view, their factions have approached nearer to agreement among themselves than at any time since the beginning of the war.

"The Longuet Socialist group, which has fought the French Government all through the war and refused to support the armies, and the Albert Thomas Socialist group, which has supported the Government for the purpose of winning the war, are now together, so far as Wilson is concerned. They hoped to use him as a rallying point for the reunion of their factions, and, furthermore, some of them had entertained the more extravagant hope that Wilson would cater to them as against the rest of the French people and the French Government as a means of making his ideas prevail.

"They assumed that they, more than anybody else in France, stood for the Peace Conference policies which they have attributed to Wilson. In other words, the French Socialists pretend to be the only people in France who are loyal to the League of Nations idea, and who really think that wars may now be ended for all time by the methods which they claim to advocate in common with Wilson.

"As if Viviani, for example, on his journey to the United States in the Summer of 1917, had appealed to your Democratic Party as such to aid France instead of appealing, as he did, to all America! The French Socialists themselves did not have the courage actually to test their plan by putting the matter up to Wilson and thus run the risk of a snub that would have made them ridiculous in the eyes of all France.

"When they asked for permission to make a special partisan demonstration for Wilson they were told that Wilson himself, then at sea, should decide, and the French Government offered to learn his wishes in the matter by sending a radio message to his ship, the George Washington. Rather than take that chance the Socialists withdrew their request.

A Change in Attitude.

"As to the attitude of the French politicians who are not Socialists toward Wilson's coming it has changed since his arrival. Our uncertainty was based on what seemed a lack of precision in his fourteen points, for example. We accepted them readily enough as principles, but were uneasy concerning his own notions as to their application.

"But in two instances when we have asked for elucidation we have got it satisfactorily. There seemed to be ambiguity at first about Wilson's utterance on Alsace-Lorraine, but his subsequent statement on that point has satisfied the most patriotic of Frenchmen.

"Again, we feared his ideas as first expressed concerning the matter of damages to be paid by Germany. His subsequent utterances on that subject have been more reassuring.

"His first speech to the Paris public yesterday at the Hôtel de Ville did more than anything else to set our minds at rest, for in the opening paragraph of that speech he referred specifically to the shameful ruin wrought by the Germans, and it is in that ruin that France finds the first and greatest grievance to be redressed.

"So, if getting closer to the American President already shows him and France to be in accord one some points, we have renewed confidence that other things will also adjust themselves satisfactorily.

"For example, we are even losing our anxiety as to such points as the freedom of the seas, the future status of the German colonies, and the exact definition of the League of Nations.

"At any rate, we haven't the slightest fear that the American President is going to play party

EAGER FOR OUR FRIENDSHIP

Their Delegates, It Is Said, Will Back Plan for Forming League Quickly.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—It is becoming more evident each day of President Wilson's stay in Paris that the expectation existing here of possible clashes between the American and other allied plenipotentiaries has no foundation in fact.

The President has made an agreeable impression upon those with whom he has talked, and the other American plenipotentiaries, who supposedly reflect the President's sentiments, have done much to clear away the misunderstanding as to America's attitude toward the peace settlement.

Englishmen who are here in connection with the conference express astonishment over the reports circulated in America indicating resentment over the important American part in the negotiation of peace terms.

One of the best known Englishman, who is in close touch with the British Ministry and acquainted with the views of his Government, told me this afternoon that the whole attitude of the British officials and people showed that they wanted the closest relations with America and were anxious to coöperate with Mr. Wilson and his fellow-commissioners in the settlement of the terms of peace. He and other well-informed Englishmen predicted that Mr. Wilson would receive as great an ovation in London as has been given him in Paris.

Sign of Trust in Wilson.

Like everybody here, they are tremendously impressed by the outpouring of the people and the enthusiastic greeting given to the President on the two occasions on which he has appeared in public since his arrival here. On every hand one hears comment to the effect that the demonstration in the President's honor is deeply significant of the trust which Parisians put in his ability to play a large part in the settlement, in order to prevent future wars.

That is interpreted generally as the real meaning of the ovations given to Mr. Wilson more than as an expression of gratitude for America's participation in the war, deep as that gratitude is.

The President himself was profoundly touched over the popular outburst. After Monday's demonstration he admitted that he had been moved emotionally in a way that made it difficult to control his feelings.

Already a basis of cordial dealings between the British and American delegations is being established. Considerable credit in this connection is given to Colonel House, who, it is asserted, has shown much tact and common sense in the discussions with those who, he believes, are entitled to know the American attitude.

Wilson Firm on Two Points.

The foundation of a cordial relationship between the United States delegation and the representatives of the Allies is being built up by the frank explanations of Colonel House concerning points of misunderstanding arising partly from ill-considered unofficial comment. Foreign observers, particularly the British, are becoming convinced that Mr. Wilson has not come to Paris with a set plan of peace adjustment which he will insist on the conference adopting.

They believe—this belief being based on what they regard as reliable information—that Mr. Wilson is more than willing to withhold the expression of positive views on important points until the opportunity is given for the freest discussion of these points among all the allied representatives, including those of the United States.

But in one particular the President appears to have his heart set. He contends that the terms for the government of the League of Nations and a definition of the freedom of the seas should be included in the peace treaty instead of in a separate pact.

In this he will find cordial support from the British representatives, it is understood. They and the President also, it is said in quarters well informed, would like these important questions disposed of at the outset of the conference, believing that the whole effort to prevent future wars depends on their proper settlement.

One hears so much that it is sometimes difficult to sense the true sitution existing as to the course which each ally or group of allies will assume toward the others when the actual exchanges begin. It is refreshing, however, to find those who will play a part in the decisions to be reached not pessimistic over the outcome.

It appears to be thoroughly recognized among them that unity of sentiment and action is necessary to prevent a recurrence, perhaps in the distant future, of a great conflict due to the ambitions of nations with German ideals. Certainly sentiment in that direction is already in evidence.

Judged by what is said by those acquainted with Great Britain's position, an earnest desire is felt among British statesmen for the closest relationship with the United States, which will be reflected at the Peace Conference.

VENIZELOS A BIG FIGURE.

Significance Seen in Wilson's Interview with "Modern Ulysses."

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—After Premier Clemenceau and Colonel House, the first visitor President Wilson received yesterday was the Greek Premier, Venizelos, with whom he was closeted for more than an hour at the Murat mansion.

It is a striking instance of the President's wisdom and eagerness to get thoroughly acquainted with the European situation that he so speedily entered into conversation with M. Venizelos—the modern Ulysses as his admirers call him—whose recognition as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of living statesmen, they are confident will be established before the conference is ended. At the last allied conference in Paris Venizelos created a tremendous impression by his tact, common sense, power of conciliation, and, above all, his full grasp of the thorniest problems requiring settlement.

I was informed at the time by Frenchmen in a position to know the facts that before the conference ended the representative of insignificant Greece was being listened to attentively by the statesmen of France, England, and Italy. By sheer force of his knowledge and personality he imposes authority. Again and again he has smoothed out with apparent ease difficulties that seemed insuperable.

MAY KILL KNOX RESOLUTION.

Democrats Likely to Prevent Anti-League Proposition Going to Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Senate Foreign Relations Commitee will tomorrow take up Senator Knox's resolution expressing the sense of the Senate that the project for a League of Nations, together with the problem of the freedom of the seas, be segregated from the deliberations of the peace terms to be imposed upon the Central Powers. The Pennsylvania Senator will ask for a favorable report by the commitee, but doubt was again expressed tonight that this would be voted.

The Democratic members of the Foreign Relations Committee were said today to incline toward voting against a favorable report on the Knox resolution, on the ground that the President had enunciated advocacy of the league as one of the essentials of his peace terms.

If Senator Knox fails to obtain a vote reporting his resolution favorably, he hopes that the commitee will at least report it without comment. If the commitee decides against that, Senator Knox will offer a minority report, favoring the resolution. He said today that he intended debating his resolution in the Senate, in any event.

The Foreign Relations Committee will also have up tomorrow the resolution offered by Senator Johnson, calling upon the State Department for data as to the Russian situation. Counselor Polk of the State Department will appear before the committee to answer questions embraced in the Johnson resolution.

SEES GAIN FOR SOCIALISM.

It Will Have Big Influence on Peace Conference, Says Walling.

"Socialism will exert a very powerful influence at the Peace Conference—possibly a decisive influence," William English Walling said before the Institute of Arts and Sciences of Columbia University last night.

"It is democratic socialism that will exercise the most direct influence at the conference," he continued. "The reason for this is not always understood in this country. Mr. Wilson has now become the spokesman of international democracy and as such he has put forth a doctrine of democratic internationalism. Now, this doctrine has been taught for fifty years in every country of Europe by the Socialist International, and by it alone. No other international body has ever proclaimed the possibility of any steps in the direction of international unity among the democratic peoples. This is how it happens that the Socialists of France and the Laborites of England announce themselves the uncompromising partisans of the Wilson doctrine.

"The entente of President Wilson and the European Socialists does not mean that Mr. Wilson is approaching socialism or that the Socialists are making any fundamental change in their position."

politics in France or use the prejudices of some of us against the interests of the rest of us."

Hope for a New Gettysburg Address.

Assurance seems complete today that the real work of formulating the peace terms will not begin till a day or so after New Year's Day. Premier Clemenceau is planning to take a rest next week.

It should be remembered that the Premier is 80 years old, and that of all the heads of the allied States he has been closest to the war itself and has borne the greatest strain of battle and invasion. Before entering on the work of peace-making, which promises to be fully as strenuous as war-making, the venerable Premier insists upon a brief Christmas holiday.

Furthermore, President Wilson is now planning to be at the American front on Christmas, and on that day undoubtedly will make a speech to the United tSates troops. Ever since it was known that President Wilson was coming to France it has been the hope of all Americans here that an opportunity would be made for him to appear before the soldiers of our own armies on foreign soil and make a speech that would be to this war and to all America what Lincoln's Gettysburg speech was to the civil war. That hope is to be realized at Christmas.

Another wish of Americans here is that President Wilson will have an opportunity to review at least one division of United States troops marching through the streets of Paris. Needless to say the informal preliminaries will continue. Clemenceau and Wilson have already had two long private talks, besides various opportunities to confer at formal dinner and luncheon tables.

project again will come up for discussion and decision.

A number of other questions also are involved in the appointment of a Director General of Relief, particularly the use of merchant shipping now in German ports for the distribution of supplies, and also the prompt movement of American troops back to the United States.

In Conference with Hurley.

President Wilson today conferred with Edward N. Hurley, one of the subjects under discussion being that of shipping for the homeward movement of American troops.

During the last few days the foreign Governments have been canceling the charters of ships used by the United States in transporting troops so that the vessels might be put back in trade. The problem is to hold enough tonnage to send the troops home at the rate expected by the American people, with the hope of completing the movement by December of next year.

King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, who will reach Paris on Thursday, will visit President Wilson the following afternoon, according to the present arrangements. It was originally intended by the Italian Embassy to have the King and the President at dinner together on Friday, but for ceremonial reasons it has been decided that this will not be practicable, as the dinner is to be in the King's honor, and it is not customary to have two heads of States at a dinner when one is the guest of honor.

Why the Conference Can't Sit Now.

After the conferences he has had and the personal examination he has made into the situation here President Wilson has come to understand fully why the Peace Conference cannot get under way before the first of the year. The mere physical proposition of getting the American mission settled in its offices is a tremendous job. It might almost be compared to the task of shifting the contents of a building housing one of the great emergency war organizations in America and setting it up in a new place.

President Wilson's visit to the American troops at the front and his review of them in Paris that is planned will be entirely out of the way by the first of the year.

The President was exceedingly gratified with his visit to Premier Clemenceau, which was largely a personal affair. There was no lack of warmth in the French statesman's appreciation of the American position, it is said. On the contrary, it is reported that his attitude was thoroughly sympathetic.

President's Health Is Good.

President Wilson's health continues good. He has completely shaken off the cold which followed him to Europe. With Mrs. Wilson and Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, his medical adviser, he will probably take a turn on the golf links at Versailles the first pleasant morning that comes along, if he is not too busily engaged with his stenographers. He is keeping in the closest touch with affairs in the United States through advices from the White House, from members of the Cabinet and the heads of some of the special war bureaus upon whom he is depending for accurate information.

So far as is known, the President has not yet selected a Director General of Railroads, and Director General McAdoo may hold over until his return.

The President has been deeply impressed by the magnificent reception given him in Paris, the more so since assurances are said to have come to him from what is regarded as a dependable source that the French people as a whole are sincere in their acceptance of his principles and will uphold them. It is not necessary to assume, according to the view of American official circles, that the French people would go to the point of taking issue with their own Government if it were necessary to support President Wilson, for it is the belief of the American representatives that no issue of that kind can arise.

DISCUSSES FREEDOM OF SEAS.

British Legal Writer Thinks America and Britain Can Agree.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—In the course of an article analyzing the American views on the freedom of the seas, the legal correspondent of The Times, after referring to modifications in these views which he says have resulted from the war, continues:

"Far from there being any necessary antagonism between the British and American views of the so-called freedom of the seas, there is revealed, as the discussion proceeds, the possibility of an Anglo-American agreement respecting the main lines of the declaration of maritime rights and duties, to be worked out in detail, not at the Peace Conference, but at future conferences.

"The law of the past has been the same in both countries. The prize courts in England and in America have followed the same rules. This agreement may be continued if there is recognition of the facts as they are, among which are the unique position of England and the scattered, fragmentary character of her empire."

Enumerating the points on which he assumes that agreement can be reached, the correspondent goes on:

"Both countries would doubtless insist upon restrictions imposed upon submarine war, while the practice of strewing mines in the open sea is condemned both by Great Britain and the United States. They both sought in 1907 to prevent abuses of the practice, but were opposed by Germany. Many questions affecting neutrals may be reviewed with the hope of a reasonable settlement if Great Britain and America take the initiative."

The Times in an editorial emphasizes its belief that there is no antagonism between the British and American views, and says it sees no reason why an agreement should not be concluded. In one form or other, it argues, the doctrine of continuous voyage as developed by England in this war, "latterly with the full consent of the United States," is sure to become a part of recognized international law.

"A judgment in the British prize court," adds The Times, "lays down the principle that neutrals whose principles or policy lead them to refrain from punitive action of their own against the illegal action of others may well be called upon to bear a passive part in the suppression of courses which are fatal to the freedom of all who use the seas."

land. So far there has been no authoritative statement on the matter, although Winston Churchill during his election campaign at Dundee maintained that England could not desert her friends in Russia, as without her protection they "would get their throats cut by the Bolsheviki, who hated them like poison."

However, tomorrow The Daily Chronicle will publish an article "from a special correspondent" which suggests that some definite decision may be reached in the near future. It says:

"The situation in Russia is causing great anxiety in official circles," and then points out the extreme difficulty of getting any reliable information. All that is coming out now by wireless through Denmark and Sweden, it maintains, is scanty, unreliable, and heavily censored and the most recent news that can be absolutely accepted is two months old and comes first hand from people who have made their escape.

The Chronicle correspondent then dwells on the horrors of the prisons and massacres, and says:

"It may be asked how it is that with such horrors going on the Bolsheviki maintain their power. The answer is that it is a question either of adhering nominally to the party in power or being starved to death. No food can be obtained from any other source, and there are thousands of officers in the Bolshevist army as an alternative to dying of hunger.

"But the story of a great Bolshevist army of 3,000,000 is not credited in this country. The most reliable information puts the number at about 180,000, scattered all over the former Russian Empire. There is, however, a probability that an attempt will be made to increase this force with a view to the invasion of other parts of Europe in order to spread the principles of Bolshevism.

"It should be remembered that Poland is now in a very disturbed state and almost defenseless. There would, therefore, be little difficulty in the way of force of the Bolsheviki marching into Germany, in which country a large amount of propaganda work has been carried on during the past year.

"If the ideas of the Bolsheviki are carried out in their entirety Europe, in the opinion of diplomatic circles, is faced with a danger as grave as was the invasion of Genghis Khan or Tamerlane. Nor is it easy to say offhand what should be done to counteract this menace.

"The late elections have revealed in some parts of the country a considerable amount of sympathy with the Bolshevist Government in Russia, and it is certain that intervention by the Allies on a large scale would be hotly debated and criticised.

"It is fortunate that President Wilson is now in Europe so that this important matter can be discussed by all the Allies. It would be advantageous if some line of policy could be decided upon by other nations in common so that the problem could be jointly tackled."

Opposition to intervention in Russia, to which The Chronicle's correspondent refers, was verified by The Manchester Guardian this morning. It took the view that Admiral Koltchak, who seized control of the Omsk Government, and Semenoff, the Cossack leader, were fighting "not for Russia and still less for the Allies, but for their own hands," and went on:

"Even now drafts of British troops, men who volunteered to fight the Germans and defend liberty, are being ordered out to Siberia to fight the battles of Koltchaks and Semenoffs. If the British Government does not stop this disgraceful adventure of its own accord it will find it will soon be stopped for it."

The Westminster Gazette, which during the war maintained stoutly that the necessity of preventing Germany gaining control of Russia was an unanswerable argument against premature peace is now anxious about England's commitments in that region. It fears she may drift into "a series of costly, chronic and indecisive expeditions in various parts of Russia, or at best to permanent occupation, with large bodies of troops, of the various Russian provinces."

Moreover, it says, the Allies "have hitherto banked on the probability that the Bolshevist régime would be short-lived and another administration would come on the scene with which they could deal rationally and settle up the whole entanglement; but after fourteen months they must at least reckon with the possibility that Bolshevism will in some form be permanent in Russia and make up their minds what they are going to do if that proves to be the case."

One of the most disturbing factors in the situation is the entire absence of any person or assembly which has the smallest reason to claim the right to speak for Rusia as a whole. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent knows from the highest authority that this is causing much concern to the British Government. It is most desirous that Russia should be fully represented at the Peace Conference, but it does not know where to turn to find authoritative representatives.

SLOVAKS DELIGHT IN NEW LIBERTY

VOICE THANKS TO WILSON

BERNE, Dec. 16.—It is a relief to turn from watching the gloomy developments in defeated Germany and to see the joy of the liberated peoples that are now founding new States amid the ruins of the Central Empires. It is good to remember that while politicians are anxious and perplexed by the difficulties of the transition period, the peoples themselves are simply rejoicing in their new liberty.

There are the Slovaks, for instance, that people of peasants and shepherds in the hill country of Northern Hungary, who, after maintaining their nationality intact through 1,000 years of Magyar rule, now find themselves liberated as by a miracle and united to their Czech kinsmen of Bohemia and Moravia in a free Czechoslovak republic.

I have just received a bundle of Slovak and Czech papers, which give a delightful picture of the awakening of this picturesque people to liberty. In all the Slovak towns and villages, crowded and enthusiastic meetings are being held to celebrate the new era, and it is touching to read with what wondering happiness these simple folk hear that they are now allies of the greatest nations on earth, and that the power of their old oppressors is completely broken.

Invoke Blessing on Wilson.

One great meeting was held at the end of November in the town of Lucence, in Novohrad Province, north of Budapest, to which peasants went crowding from all parts of the province. A resolution was adopted unanimously expressing joy at their liberation and at their union with the Czechoslovak State, and adding:

"We bow low before the noble spirit of President Wilson, and will call God's blessing upon him in our daily prayers. The greater part of the people of upper Novohrad suffer terribly under the oppression of the proprietors of the great estates, and we demand that our people be free as soon as possible from that yoke, and that the big estates be speedily broken up in a legal way."

The meeting elected delegates to the Slovak National Council. A peasant speaker began his speech by saying, "This is the day which the Lord hath made;" and all the people responded: "We will rejoice and be glad in it." Then the people shouted: "Glory to our noble liberator, Wilson!" and with bared heads they sang the national song, "Lej Slovac."

Similar happy meetings are being held in many little towns and villages between Pressburg and Ungvar. One village reports:

"It was our prisoners returned from Russia who explained to us all the great things happening in the world."

There has naturally been a certain amount of trouble and confusion. Magyars and Magyarized Slovak officials have intrigued vigorously, and scattered bands of Magyar troops have committed acts of violence.

At Eperjes, under the shadow of the Eastern Carpathians, a rival National Council has been formed by individuals who never fought for the Slovak cause; and it has proclaimed an independent Slovak Republic, separate from Bohemia, on the ground that the Slovak language differs from the Czechs, very much as the Ukrainian does from the Russian or broad Scotch from London English. But, as President Masaryk is fond of saying, you cannot found a State on dialect; and the movement had slight success.

When the inhabitants of the district very near Eperjes were called on to send representatives to this new Council they scornfully rejected the offer and stoutly declared for the Turcin National Council and for the Czechoslovak Republic.

In any case the chief danger is now removed by a remarkable communication made on Dec. 3, in the name of the Entente, by the French Colonel at Bubapest to Karolyi, and to Hodza, the Czechoslovak representative. This declaration empowers Czechoslovak troops as Allies to occupy the Slovak country in the name of the Entente under the terms of the armistice, and orders the immediate withdrawal of Magyar troops from the country. The Czech Social Democratic organ, the Pravo Lidu, cries with joy: "Slovakia is ours!" and demands the speedy suppression of the Magyar magnates who have lived on the people's life-blood.

The Rumanian Socialist, Rakovsky, is new Lenine's envoy at Budapest, and is tolerated by the Karolyi Government. He has been carrying on Bolshevist propaganda among the Slovaks and Transylvanian Rumanians, and almost succeeded in splitting the Rumanian Socialist party. The Magyar Government is naive if it imagines that Rakovsky will only attempt to Bolshevize the other nationalities and not the Magyars. It is sending armed bands into Transylvania to create disturbances among the Rumanian population.

Karolyi's Government has experienced a mild crisis, which was solved by the retirement of the Minister of the Interior, Batthyany, the Minister of War, Bartha, and by Karolyi's adoption of a radical and socialist land program.

CALLED IN BATCHES TO BE SHOT BY REDS

Escaped Englishman Tells of Horrors Suffered by Prisoners in Petrograd.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The Daily Chronicle prints an interview with Victor Bulmer, an Englishman, long resident in Petrograd, who has just made his escape. He says:

"The conditions in Petrograd are terrible. Men were nightly taken in bunches from the Fortress of Peter and Paul and summarily executed. The guard would look in about midnight and call out twenty or thirty men, saying significantly: 'You need not bring your things.' Soon afterward the volleys of the firing party could be heard from the cells.

"Sailors were called upon to do this work, but the horrors of it drove two or three of them completely mad. Then Chinamen were engaged. They were bad shots, with the result that men were half killed and left in hideous torture. No trace of the bodies could be found, no graves could be discovered, and this gives color to the impression that the corpses were simply thrown into the river.

"As typical of the prison conditions let me picture a cell intended for one man crowded with twenty without accommodation for sleeping or eating, their sitting place a stone floor, the air foetid and walls streaming with moisture. Here a Russian became very ill and the Red Guards were asked to do something for him. 'He will probably die,' it was urged. 'Then let him die,' was the callous response.

"Soon the packed cell became his death chamber, and an appeal was made to the guard to remove the body. 'We will take it out with the rubbish in the morning,' answered the sentry, and it remained untouched until then.

"Latterly there has not been so much street firing, but perhaps even more terrible than bloodshed are the privations. And yet Lenine is credited with having said he does not believe there is famine in Russia and he will only believe it 'when queues are formed for coffins to bury people.'

"All thinking people of Petrograd are anxious that the Allies should enter the city to save their lives. Laboring men cherish the hope. 'Some one must save us,' they say. All intelligent classes of Russians are with the Allies, though the Bolsheviki consider them open enemies.

"Espionage was rampant. Arrests were made on any pretext. People were starving. I have seen refined ladies of good station rummaging in heaps of dirt for fish heads. Men and women barely able to stand through weakness have been sitting or lying in the streets holding out their hands for bread. There were food cards, but the profiteer held sway. I have had to pay 650 rubles for 18 pounds of dark flour, (about £35 on the old rate of exchange or £10 on the new,) 45 rubles for chicken, 75 rubles for one pound of butter, and 22 rubles for a pound of cheese.

"Though Englishmen in the Fortress the menaces were not carried to extremes, but I fear that the British subjects still left in Petrograd are likely to be shot as soon as there is any evidence of English troops advancing in Russia. Remember the Bolshevik has declared that for every man he loses he will take 1,000 heads of the combined peoples against him, and he is issuing most bloodthirsty placards."

JUGOSLAVS FEARFUL OF ITALY'S AMBITIONS

Their Paris Representatives Are Disquieted by Orlando's Speech Against Demobilization.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—The frame of mind of the Jugoslav representatives in Paris is daily becoming more disturbed. They find fresh cause for alarm in Premier Orlando's speech in Rome, as printed in Paris today.

They want to know what the Italian Premier means when he says: "We cannot demobilize and must keep all our war material intact, for the difficulties to be surmounted will increase rather than diminish.

The Jugoslavs, quick to scent danger to their own aspirations, read in this statement the threat of Italy to use force, if necessary, to drive the Slavs from the territory on the east coast of the Adriatic, which both countries are claiming as a reward for their respective parts in the war.

Italy so far refuses to yield any part of what England, France, and Russia promised her by secret treaty in 1915 to persuade her to enter the war against the Central Powers.

On the other hand, England, France, and America all have expressed sympathy with the Jugoslav desires. Italy has been asked by the Allies to concede something, but steadily refuses.

"Peace did not come to my people with the signing of the armistice," said a Jugoslav delegate to me recently. "Our only hope for justice is in what President Wilson can persuade the Allies to do to keep their promises to us. France is in sympathy with us and opposed to the greed of Italy, but France feels herself tied by the secret treaty. It is the same way with England, where we know Lloyd George is for us, but he may be helpless also.

"If everything else fails us, we will fight a war of our own."

UKRAINE UNIONISTS WIN.

Whole Country Said to Have Been Reconquered.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 16.—A telegram to the Social Demokraten says the Ukrainian National Union troops are besieging Kiev and have reconquered the whole of Ukrainia. The political situation is very favorable to the National Union. Another telegram says that the union has proclaimed a federative union of the whole Russian democracy.

The Social Demokraten thinks the National Union has been able to win allied support, and says that nothing is more natural than support from the western democracies to those who work on the Allies' own ground to make even Russia safe for democracy against Bolshevism and reaction. Another good symptom the Social Demokraten considers to be the English support to the democratic Government in Esthonia. It shows that the Allies' policy in the East follows clear democratic lines.

eigner—potentate or warrior—has ever known in Paris.

I learn from French sources that although discussion of vital points of the peace program has not yet begun with the French leaders, the latter express deep gratification at the broad-minded attitude of the President, who has impressed them by his eagerness to get their point of view on the general situation without—as some of them had expected—hastening to emphasize his own.

Hymans, Vandervelde, and van den Heuvel Are Peace Delegates.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 17.—The Belgian Government announces that its delegation to the Peace Congress will be composed of Paul Hymans, Minister for Foreign Affairs and former Minister in London; Emile Vandervelde, Minister of Justice and Socialist leader, and Baron van den Heuvel, Belgian Minister at the Vatican and former Minister of Justice.

GERMAN SOVIETS BAR LIEBKNECHT

body insisted on working out things in his own fashion, and that only the firmest co-operation and good-will could save the nation. These sentences evoked tremendous applause.

Then the house proceeded to organize itself.

Liebknecht Speaks from Roof.

While this was in progress, a small, dark man suddenly appeared on the roof of the Diet Building projecting into Prinz Albrecht Strasse. He wore a large red badge and waved a red handkerchief at the thousands already collected in the streets, who at the sight of the little man increased to tens of thousands.

"It is Karl Liebknecht," shouted the masses. "Let's hear what Karl says."

Meanwhile Liebknecht's bodyguard gathered around him on the roof—sailors, soldiers, and civilians with large red badges and red handkerchiefs. Soon he began to speak. Those near him told me afterward that he repeated his well-known program against Ebert, Scheidemann, the Government, and the national convention.

He spoke about ten minutes and his bodyguard with their red handkerchiefs gave the cue for the applause, which was readily taken up by the red-badged, red-handkerchiefed henchmen cleverly distributed among the masses in the street. Many shouted "Hurrah" merely for fun. Many because they thought that the orator was a member of a delegation greeting them.

Only about half the people knew that it was Liebknecht, and not 10 per cent. could hear what he said. It was one of those odd performances of the Spartacides which have begun to amuse the people rather than to cause apprehension.

Liebknecht had already addressed some of the delegates the night before, when he suddenly appeared at an entertainment arranged for them. They had listened quietly and with interest, because they were curious about his freakish ideas, but he certainly could not shake their determination that the national convention must be called early in January.

There were perhaps a hundred crowded political meetings in Berlin last night, at each of which, with the exception of those of the Spartacides, the same determination was found. The German people have become almost fanatically interested in politics, and any one watching them yesterday at their various meetings must have become convinced that Junkerdom and bureaucracy were wrong usually concerning the psychology of their own people, contending that the latter were the most unpolitical of all nations and that they alone had mastered the art of governing the Fatherland and the whole world, if only the latter knew it.

Spartacides Greatly Outvoted.

BERLIN, Dec. 16, (Associated Press.)—Three women were among the 450 delegates to the Central Congress of Delegates from Soldiers' and Workers' Councils, which opened today.

In the organization of the congress it became evident that the Independent Socialists and the Spartacus group were greatly outnumbered. A significant development was that none of the important posts in the congress was given to any delegate from Berlin.

The Spartacus group made a futile attempt to intimidate the congress. Early in the session a resolution was submitted that Dr. Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, leaders of the Spartacus group, be invited to attend the congress as guests, with advisory powers.

Presentation of the resolution caused a great tumult throughout the hall. The followers of Dr. Liebknecht and spectators in the gallery joined in the uproar, which lasted twenty minutes and threatened to result in fist fights. The resolution then was defeated, five to one.

A contest is expected Tuesday, when the question of summoning a national assembly come up for discussion.

Extremist Demands Smothered.

While Herr Müller, Chairman of the Workmen's Section of the Executive Committee, was speaking, the Chairman of the congress interrupted to say:

"There is a comrade present who wishes to submit a communication."

The newcomer announced that he represented 250,000 workmen who were then gathered outside the Diet building. He read a list of demands identical with the Spartacus program, including retention of all power by the Soldiers' and Workers' Councils, no national assembly, and the formation of a Red Guard. This aroused a storm of protest, and in the general uproar the intruder left the chamber.

The 250,000 workmen who he said were outside the building proved to be about 7,000 from five factories, whom the Liebknecht agents had induced to go on strike temporarily.

Anhalt Votes for Assembly.

The elections to a National Assembly in the former Duchy of Anhalt, which is the first German Federal State to vote for the constituent body, resulted today in a marked victory for the Majority Socialists. The Socialists polled 92,229 votes, against a total of 66,951 for the combined bourgeois groups. In the Reichstag election in 1912 the Socialists had 31,465, against 36,649 for the bourgeois parties.

The increase in the number of votes was due to the lowering of the age limit and the votes of women.

The Anhalt National Assembly will be composed of twenty-two Majority Socialists, twelve German Democrats, and two Conservatives. The Independent Socialists failed to get a sufficient number of signatures to nom-asm until Ebert warned them that the nation would go to the dogs if every- inate a ticket. The "Middlestand" group, composed of subordinate Government officials, including teachers, failed to poll enough votes to have a representative in the Assembly.

The elections to the National Assembly in the former Grand Duchy of Mecklenburg were announced to the congress as follows:

Socialists, 2; Liberals, 16; "Handicraftmen," 3, and Peasant Party, 1.

A general meeting of the Independent Socialist Party has decided that the party shall vote in favor of a national assembly. The Berlin correspondent of the Berlingske Tidende of Copenhagen says that this is a great defeat for the Spartacus group.

President Fehrenbach of the Reichstag, according to another telegram from Berlin, has informed the members of the Reichstag that as the armistice has been prolonged and preliminary peace negotiations are postponed there is no reason for the Reichstag to meet at present.

An Amsterdam dispatch last Saturday reported that President Fehrenbach had convoked the Reichstag, but that he had not announced the time or place of meeting.

Foreign Office Documents Safe.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 17.—Herr Müller, in presenting the report of the Executive Committee to the Congress of Soldiers' and Workers' Councils, according to a report from Berlin, announced that Carl Kautsky had examined the documents in the German Foreign Office and had been unable to find that any had been destroyed. He confirmed the report that the resignation of Dr. Solf, the Foreign Minister, had been accepted by the Government.

EBERT WANTS KAISER BLAMED

But Doubts Forcing His Surrender—Crewe Proposes Solution.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Friedrich Ebert, Socialist Premier of Germany, said in an interview yesterday that he did not know of any legal method by which William Hohenzollern's surrender could be forced.

"I cannot think of any provision in law upon which the former Emperor would have to be given up," he said. "But that is not a question which closely concerns us. We have separated ourselves from him, and now desire only that guilt for the outbreak of the war shall be finally fixed in order that he may be exposed, once for all."

Asked about his view of the future, Ebert replied:

"I am optimistic, but you must remember that our influence upon the course of events is limited. We cannot create bread for the German people. If the nation is allowed to starve, then the inevitable will follow.

"That a nation can be brought to a desperate pass and burst through all restraints has been shown by the experience of the last year. Our old system came to the ground as a result of Russian events which it, itself, provoked. It is poor consolation, however, that, in falling, one drags one's enemy to the ground. To us any other solution would be preferable."

Responsibility for punishing the former Emperor and other high German officials for crimes committed during the war must rest with Governments and not with jurists, according to the Marquis of Crewe, former Secretary of State for the Colonies, in a letter published in The Westminster Gazette. He writes:

"The atrocities in Belgium, the ill-treatment of prisoners and the execution of Captain Fryatt and Miss Edith Cavell are acts that can be brought home to the individual persons concerned, and punishment can be inflicted by tribunals. When, however, we go beyond these persons, responsibility is altered.

"The former German Emperor and the higher German politicians must be surrendered first and then punished by executive acts. For this procedure there are most ample precedents. These criminals can be put away where they will have no further chance of bringing mischief on the world, or they can be executed.

"In other words, it is important that legal technicalities must not be allowed to divert the hands of justice, as they well may do. The responsibility must not rest with jurists, but with Governments."

BERLIN BOYS AND GIRLS NOW THREATEN STRIKE

Parade and Present Demands for Participation in the Government.

ROTTERDAM, Dec. 16.—Humor, even though unconscious, seems to have dawned in Germany with the revolution. It was manifested in Berlin yesterday in the form of a demonstration of youths organized by the Spartacus group.

About 1,000 young people of both sexes took part, mostly from 15 to 17 years of age, and some even younger. These precocious youths and lassies formed a procession and to the huge amusement of thousands of spectators marched to the Reichstag building, where they halted while a deputation entered in order to present their demands to the Soldiers' Council.

While this was being done a youth mounted a pedestal and informed the crowd that their demands were as follows:

A six hours' working day for all under 18.

Fixing of a minimum wage which must be high enough to provide the means of existence.

Limitation of the period of apprenticeship to two years.

The franchise at the age of 18.

The right of the youth to participate in the government of the State.

Abolition of conscription.

Abolition of all disciplinary punishments.

The Executive Committee of the council treated the matter in all seriousness and sent out one of its members to address the demonstrators. He told them that so far as he was concerned he was in favor of their demands, but he added that the Executive Committee could do nothing, as its power was passing to the new authority to be established by the Soldiers and Workers' Congress.

The young rebels showed dissatisfaction with this declaration, and a seventeen-year-old orator made a fierce speech, in which he denounced Ebert and Scheidemann as traitors and the National Assembly as a new form of class Government. Amid a storm of laughter, he declared in a shrill voice:

"The youth of the country have kept going the economic life of Germany during the war. If our demands are not immediately and unconditionally conceded the youth of Germany will have a general strike."

BERLIN "DANCING MAD"; TRIES TO FORGET WAR

Enthusiasm Now Waning Over the Return of the Troops From the Front.

LONDON, Dec. 17, (British Wireless Service.)—The correspondent in Berlin of The Daily Express, dealing with the return of the German Army, says that the scenes of enthusiasm marking the homecoming of the troops are ending.

"Men have been coming home at the rate of 10,000 a day," says the correspondent. "Every day Herr Ebert takes his place on a rostrum opposite the French Embassy. He addresses the homecoming men and the bands play martial music, while the crowds cheer and wave their handkerchiefs.

"'Deutschland über Alles' brought me into the street this morning. To my amazement—and to the apparent amazement of the French officers grouped in the window of the embassy—a regiment was passing the Brandenburg Gate to the old tune. Later, I heard it played continuously as cavalry, infantry, and artillery swept by. Regimental flags were crowned with laurel wreaths. The men wore evergreens around their steel helmits and their tunics, and guns were covered with flowers.

"What particularly struck me was the attitude of the homecoming officers. Those I have seen in the Berlin garrison were quiet men, many of whom had removed their marks of rank. They were seldom saluted by their men.

"On the other hand, the troops just returned from the front are well-disciplined and salute as of old. The officers themselves are unchanged. They exhibit themselves, monocled and tight-waisted, to the population, which cheers them loudly.

"Berlin is dancing mad. There are about fifty cabarets in the city and dancing goes on all the afternoon and until 9 o'clock at night. In a week the edict closing dancing halls at 9 o'clock will be removed and dancing then will continue all night. Berliners are looking forward to this.

"It is a remarkable sight to see cabarets packed to suffocation with women in expensive toilettes and both soldiers and civilians dancing and drinking wine that costs £2 a bottle. Seats at the theatres can only be booked two days ahead. 'We are trying to forget,' said a Berliner to me today."

VIENNA ROYALISTS ACTIVE.

Name Archduke Maximilian as New Ruler of Austria.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 17.—At a monarchist meeting in Vienna yesterday, which was attended by a number of Generals, Archduke Maximilian, brother of former Emperor Charles, was nominated as the successor to the crown.

BOLSHEVIKI SHELLED BY BRITISH SQUADRON

Red Forces Operating Against Esthonia Repulsed—Mobilization There Progressing.

STOCKHOLM, Monday, Dec. 16.—A British squadron has bombarded Bolshevist positions along the southern coast of the Gulf of Finland, according to an official statement issued from the Esthonian Army Headquarters. Bolshevist forces have been repulsed, according to the report. The text of the statement reads:

> An English squadron in the Gulf of Finland bombarded front and rear positions held by Bolshevist forces. The enemy's advance on the Asserien front has been stopped.
> The mobilization of the Esthonian Army is progressing satisfactorily and allied support is strengthening the spirit of the people.

LONDON, Dec. 17, (British Wireless Service.)—The Esthonian delegation in Stockholm has received a dispatch from the Foreign Minister of the new Esthonian Republic, saying that the British squadron on its way to Reval was met at sea by representatives of the Government and that on its entrance into Reval it was enthusiastically welcomed by the population.

Reval was gayly decorated for the occasion and the men of the squadron were cheered wherever they went.

AMERICAN TROOPS ON COBLENZ ARC

Forty Thousand Men Have Now Arrived in Advanced Area of Occupation.

IN BUSINESSLIKE STYLE

Marched 200 Miles in Month and Occupied 5,000 Square Miles, with 1,000,000 Population

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Dec. 16.—The American Army of Occupation has now reached its final objective, from the Coblenz bridgehead on an arc of thirty kilometers' radius, with this city as the centre. The French have taken over a considerable part of our sector.

The American infantry reached its last destination at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The lines were organized today. The 3d Corps, 1st, 2d, and 32d Divisions, is across the river, the 4th and 7th Corps remaining on the west bank. The Third Army Headquarters is now located at Coblenz. The Second Army, in support of the Army of Occupation, has established headquarters in the City of Luxembourg.

It has been a beautifully businesslike operation, our march of 200 miles in the last month and the occupation of some 5,000 square miles of enemy territory with a million population. Our army is administering civil affairs in two cities, Trier and Coblenz, and in hundreds of towns and villages. All has been done without the slightest friction with the Germans, who seem to appreciate our kind treatment, which is represented as being in a class by itself. On all sides one hears Germans say how glad they are that the American army came into their territory. Local authorities are allowed to conduct civil affairs under American military supervision, the policy of which is minimum interference so long as things run smoothly.

American Force of 40,000.

COBLENZ, Dec. 15, (Associated Press.)—Approximately 40,000 American troops have arrived at Coblenz since the advance guard reached here a week ago. A large number of these troops have passed through the city, while considerable forces will remain here temporarily.

The people of Coblenz got their first glimpse of American airplanes today, several of the machines flying over the Rhine toward the bridgehead boundary and then returning.

The officers and clerks of the Third Army arrived here this morning, followed by trucks loaded with equipment and office supplies. The largest hotel in Coblenz, overlooking the Rhine and the two bridges where most of the troops cross the river, has been taken over as quarters for the Third Army officers. The headquarters of the Third Army are established in a Government building adjoining the hotel.

By noon the Third Army was in communication with the back areas by telephone, telegraph, and wireless.

Various detachments of infantry and artillery passed through Coblenz Sunday on their way to join the divisions east of the Rhine. Churchgoers viewed the marching troops with much interest. Late in the afternoon the 3d Division, which had been along the Rhine south of Coblenz, marched through the city headed by a band, each musician mounted on a gray horse. The 3d Division crossed the Moselle north of Coblenz, where it has taken up a position along the Rhine in support of the troops within the bridgehead.

All the larger hotels have been taken over by the Americans for billeting purposes, as well as many of the public buildings, which are being used as offices.

German officers who had remained in the city to turn over war material to the Americans soon completed their task, and proceeded across the Rhine in automobiles flying white flags to join the German armies beyond the bridgehead lines.

Throughout the sector held by the Americans, the men have settled down to what may be weeks of occupation. Ems and Nassau are two important towns which have fallen to the French sent into the American sector, but Neuwied, a big industrial centre, and all other towns in the northern half of the sector are held by the Americans.

The Americans have followed the policy which characterized their first days of occupation. They have promulgated no drastic rules to govern civil life, and in every way have endeavored to make the inhabitants feel that they will not be molested so long as they do not interfere with the military authorities.

On this first Sunday were shown the results of this policy. While the people of Coblenz are still somewhat resentful in their attitude, residents of the smaller towns evinced none of this hostility. Dressed in their Sunday clothes the Germans attended church services and appeared surprised to find among the congregations in some of the places a few of the enlisted men. In the afternoon the children in the villages made love frankly to any of the soldiers who would permit it, clambered over the trucks, and demanded their turn to snuggle into the seats of the guns in the artillery parks. And they were not reproved by their parents. The older among the men and women not only made no objection to billetings, as did many in Coblenz and Treves, but frequently showed a desire to make the men feel at home.

Wherever bands were playing the people crowded the street corners to listen to the music instead of hurrying to their homes—a situation that did not exist when the invasion of German territory began two weeks ago.

Applications for leave of absence are already largely on the increase, but it is notable that the American soldiers are not asking for permission to visit distant points, but merely to make excursions into the picturesque Rhine regions, where almost every valley is guarded by the ruins of a mediaeval castle.

Guard the Royal Castle.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Dec. 16, (Associated Press.)—The Royal Castle in Coblenz, known as one of the former German Emperor's Summer palaces, is now under guard by American troops. The palace stands on the banks of the Rhine, a stone's throw from the business centre of Coblenz.

The palace is surrounded by "royal gardens," and contains many articles of historic interest, in addition to silverware and other belongings of William I., who once occupied the building.

Since the arrival of the Americans there have been several attempts to remove some of the valuables in the palace. Therefore it was decided that the guard should be placed around the house as a precaution against the furniture and other things inside being disturbed.

The palace was built by Prince Clemens Wenzeslau. The building was started in the year 1778, and was finished eight years later. It was remodeled in 1845. During the occupation of Coblenz by the French the palace was used as a hospital, and later the Germans used it as a barracks. During the present war the palace was not disturbed by the German Army, although at various times movements were on foot to turn it into a hospital.

The royal barracks within the palace gardens is occupied by American troops, but thus far the Americans have not entered the palace itself.

BRITISH IMPRESSED PEOPLE OF COLOGNE

Civilians Stood in Steady Rain to Watch Long Columns of Infantry and Guns.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLOGNE, Dec. 13.—Following the cavalry, who went ahead yesterday, some of our infantry divisions crossed the Rhine today. It was a wet morning with steady rain washing the streets of Cologne and dripping in waterspouts from the gables above the shopfronts. Our men marched in their waterproof capes, all shiny as the rain soaked them, and the gunners and transport drivers buried their chins in their upturned collars.

But these long columns of men with their field guns and machine guns and their baggage wagons had a war-like look and their march through the narrow streets of Cologne to the Hohenzollern and suspension and pontoon bridges impressed the German people who stood under umbrellas or in the shelter of the shop fronts watching them pass.

An old German Jew, back from Russia, where all his war profits had been stolen by the Bolsheviki, spoke to me and said that the Germans in Russia used to say:

"The English have no army to count in this war, and will never have one before we win." The old man added, "Now they know better."

Across one of the bridges over the Rhine went battalions of Scottish troops of the Ninth Division, who have been leading this advance through Germany after long fighting in Flanders; and the music of their pipes went wailing down the Rhine, over the Dutch barges which are lying there by the quaysides, under the shadow of the great cathedrals whose spires rise to heaven, as it seems, above the little old gabled houses down there on the river's edge. Delville wood is a long way from Cologne and the Ninth Division, which fought through its shell-lashed trees in the first Battle of the Somme, have marched over many battlefields and left many of their comrades on the way before getting to this journey's end.

For hours there were three lines of traffic across the bridges, Scots of the 9th and 1st Canadian Divisions, and English battalions of the 29th Division, who fought at Mesnières and Marcoing in heroic defense a year ago, and who in many battles before and since proved themselves great soldiers.

It was in Gallipoli that the 29th Division first earned its fame by great courage and great sacrifice. Then it came into the fields of France and was among the heroes of Wytschaete and Messines and in the Somme battlefields.

In retreat and in advance they fought with the spirit of the Great Division, proud of their traditions earned in the first years of warfare. But among all their achievements I think their defense of Mesnières and Marcoing, when the Gloucesters and Royal Fusiliers, Essex and Guernseys, fought until there were few left standing, is the one which the world will most remember. They earned their honor in crossing the Rhine today.

On the left bank of the Rhine many heavy guns of ours are in position with stacks of shells about them, and their snouts raised for high angle fire across the river, where there are straggling towns and factories under black streamers of smoke. These things are visible proof of our power over the Rhine, but unless new madness breaks out and new tragedy overtakes the world there will be no roar of gunfire over this broad river.

BRITISH PUNISH COLOGNE CITIZENS

Deliberate Infractions of Curfew Rules Result in Fines and Imprisonment.

COLOGNE, Dec. 16, (Associated Press.)—Last night and the night before the Germans experimented with mild defiance of martial law as instituted by the British troops of occupation, and paid the penalty for their indiscretion.

When the British issued their edict that the civilians, with certain exceptions, must be off the streets at 7 o'clock in the evening, and then, thinking this too severe, altered the hour to 9 o'clock, many persons smiled knowingly and decided that the order was a mere formality and meant nothing.

Saturday night was the first time that the rule was rigidly enforced. At that time some 200 civilians who were parading the streets were rounded up by the military police and summoned to appear the next morning for trial. Yesterday these persons were tried, and, as first offenders, each was fined 10 marks.

Few excuses were made beyond the statement that the defendants had thought the police would not do anything. Last night the performance was renewed. At 9 o'clock large numbers of persons were promenading about the streets in the vicinity of the military offices. Some tardy ones undoubtedly were unwittingly breaking the law, but many of them made the infraction quite apparent. They simply were out for what would happen. These persons even looked at the street clocks and laughed as they lounged about and watched.

They soon found out, however, that business was intended. A cordon of military police was thrown about the most frequented section of the town and all persons were compelled to show passes or give their names or answer to a summons for today. Several hundred men and women were caught in the net and held for trial.

Field Marshal Haig came to Cologne this morning to make his initial tour of inspection of the territory occupied by the British along the Rhine. Immediately on his arrival the British Commander in Chief proceeded to the famous Hohenzollern Bridge for a meeting with more than a score of war correspondents representing all the great newspapers of the allied and neutral countries.

The occasion was in the nature of a farewell to the writers who have been accredited to British General Headquarters and who finished their labors when the British completed their occupation of the territory assigned to them under the armistice.

In a brief address the Field Marshal expressed his deepest thanks for the work done by the press in presenting the truth of the war to the world and the hope that the correspondents henceforth would devote their energies in advocating everlasting peace.

"Do not let us get swelled heads over our victory, the same as other persons did after 1870," said the Field Marshal in the course of his speech.

"I wish to thank you," he said, "for the great services which you have rendered during this war, which, indeed, has been the greatest war in history. I know that you have displayed untiring energy and contempt for danger in following the troops in all their offensive actions. I know that you have done your utmost to give accurate and complete information to the public through the great journals which you represent. It was impossible to do more than you gentlemen have done.

"You of the British press, from the beginning of the struggle have carried out your work with complete success. Your dispatches have helped to give hope and courage to our families at home and to enlighten the public as to the magnitude of Great Britain's effort in the great cause of freedom.

ATHENS, Dec. 17.—The situation in Smyrna is extremely critical, according to newspaper dispatches from Mitylene. Young Turk officials have posted armed bands at various places about the town and these have been bombarded by the allied fleets.

THREE SHIPS BRING 4,500 MORE TROOPS

CELTIC ANCHORS IN BAY

Medical Officers Tell of German Air Raid on Hospitals That Killed 200 Patients.

Three transports arrived yesterday from France and England bringing nearly 4,500 soldiers and sailors home to be mustered out of the service. They were welcomed in the manner which has now become a habit to New Yorkers, when the whistle of the river craft in unison is heard. The police boat Patrol went down the bay in the morning with Grover H. Whalen, the Mayor's secretary, and other members of the Welcome Committee on board, carrying newspapers, cigars, tobacco, cigarettes, and chocolates for the returning fighters.

The first to reach her pier, 54 North River, at the foot of West Thirteenth Street, was the chartered Dutch steamship Prinsess Juliana. The ship was two days late and her starboard rail had been smashed to pieces and a troop wash house swept off her forward deck in a storm.

She brought 111 passengers, including eight naval aviators and thirty-three enlisted men of the navy. There were also two officers from the British Army Medical Corps, Lieutenant J. Earl Bloomer of St. Joseph, Mo., and Lieutenant William Findlay of Graham, Mo., who said they had been in the large base hospital at Etaplew, near Boulogne, when it was bombed by German aviators. There were other hospitals in the district with a total altogether of 30,000 beds for the wounded.

Tell of Air Raids on Hospitals.

On two occasions, Sept. 4, 1917, and May 19, this year, the officers added, the German machines flew over the buildings filled with helpless patients, dropped bombs, killing six men and wounding four others in the first visit and killing 200 and wounding 600 in the ten separate hospitals in May this year. Of the victims on the latter occasion a great number were nurses and W. A. C. S.

Lieutenant Bloomer said there were thirty planes in the attack, and each one carried fifty bombs. When the supply was exhausted the machine would return to its base and be replaced by another. It was kept up for four hours continuously, he said. The Lieutenant said that a Lieutenant Fitzsimmons of St. Louis was the first American medical officer to be killed in the war.

The American transport Mauie, with 64 officers and 2,161 enlisted men from Brest, one day late because of the storm, was detained at Quarantine by the tide and did not reach Pier 3, Hoboken, until 12:30. All of them had been wounded either in France or Flanders, and out of the total number there were 80 who had to remain in their cots until the Red Cross attendants carried them ashore.

Some of the men were members of the old 69th Regiment, and others belonged to the old 23d of Brooklyn. Among them was Lieutenant William J. Moore of the 165th Regiment of 397 First Avenue, New York City. From a Sergeant he was made a Lieutenant in March for gallant conduct in the Luneville sector, and was also decorated with the French War Cross.

On March 7 he took command of a sector during a heavy bombardment after his superior officer, Lieutenant Normand, had been killed by a machine gun bullet. He organized relieving parties, whose duties it was to excavate men caught in caved-in dugouts. The shelling continued twenty-four hours, and during the fusillade Captain George McAdie of his company was hit by a machine gun bullet.

"After we had been at it for twenty-four hours," he continued, "during which the bombarding was most terrific, we were relieved by Company E and ordered to the rear to rest. We lost forty-two of our men. A week later I received a letter from the commanding General of the French Army with the surprising information that I had been designated to receive the French decoration."

Private Myles McDermott, who was drafted from Local Board 142, in Yorkville, fought with the 308th Infantry, Company A, known as the "Lost Battalion." He was shot through the left hip in the Argonne Forest on Oct. 4, two days after their communications had been cut off. He said they went without food for the entire period of their isolation.

Private Joseph Daly, a nephew of James J. Hagen, Tammany leader, who fought with the 305th Infantry of the 77th Division, was gassed in the Argonne Forest. He sent word to his uncle, who went down with the Mayor's Welcoming Committee on the Patrol, that he was "feeling fine and glad to get back to the big town."

Won French War Cross.

Private George Carey of Beloit, Wis., a member of the 28th Infantry and a graduate of the university of his native State, wore a French War Cross which he won for bravery under fire in the Lorraine country near Toul, where he captured several Germans single-handed in an outpost.

Another member of the old 69th on the Mauie was John Lefty Webb of 615 Hamilton Avenue, North Bergen, N. J., who was known as the baby of the regiment. He was shot through the left leg twice and gassed.

Among the soldiers on board was Congressman Royal A. Johnson of South Dakota, who enlisted in Company B, 313th Infantry, and trained at Camp Meade, and was later made a First Lieutenant. He declined to talk about his own experiences in the war, but admitted having taken part in several actions. He spoke in high terms of the work done by Dr. Alfred M. Bergstein of the Medical Corps, who was decorated for bravery in the fighting at Château-Thierry and St. Mihiel, where he was hit seventeen times with shrapnel. The young surgeon was too modest to talk about himself, but was eager to get to his home in Pottsville, Penn., he admitted.

Major Oliver L. White, of the 319th Infantry, of Roanoke, Va., who was wounded at Verdun, said: "The American boys are the best soldiers in the world without exception. From the tme of the battle of Château-Thierry the Germans were licked and they knew it. They fought a magnificent rear guard action from that time on. It was mainly a machine gun action, the machine gunners sacrificing themselves to hold back the American advance as long as possible. The only thing that beat them was the determination of the Americans to go ahead."

The Celtic, which arrived after dark and anchored off Staten Island for the night, had 155 officers and 2,122 enlisted men. Out of the total there were 68 bedridden cases, and 1,200 officers and men of the 814th Infantry, colored, of the Headquarters Medical Detachment. There were also a number of colored troops among the casuals on board.

UNTERMYER DENIES AIDING PROPAGANDA

one country in the world, not excepting our own, that has developed and lived up to the highest standards of personal, social, and political liberty and opportunity, and where, above all other countries, including our own, race and religious bigotry are fortunately unknown. For that spirit the people of my race cannot but be grateful, whilst in Germany the Jew has long been denied such liberty and opportunity.

The witness also said he had declined a request from THE NEW YORK TIMES to review the "White Books" from the German viewpoint. It was at the time a number of gentlemen were asked to contribute to a symposium on the presentation of their cases by the nations then at war. He refused, he added, because he had many "dear and loyal friends" in England, and to have accepted the task would have been "as though I were to accept a retainer to appear in a cause against a friend in which his honor and fortune were involved."

"In point of fact, I have never at any time acted either as counsel or agent for the German or Austrian Governments or embassies or for any of their members or associates or for any German, Austrian, or American citizen charged with violating our neutrality or with any other offense connected with the war, although in 1915 and 1916 it would have been entirely proper and professional for me to have done so if I had seen fit."

When diplomatic relations with Germany were severed, Mr. Untermyer said, he accepted the Presidency of an association of Yiddish newspapers in New York which was known as the Jewish League of American Patriots, the purpose of which was to arouse and foster a spirit of Americanism among the people of congested districts and to stimulate interest in Liberty Loan campaigns. Mr. Untermyer added that he had "strained his credit almost to the breaking point" in subscribing for Liberty bonds and gave the total of his bond purchases as $3,000,000, while he had contributed $150,000, he added, to the Red Cross and other war relief funds.

Mr. Untermyer, referring to his letter of Feb. 10, 1916, to Dr. Albert, in which the latter was informed concerning the possibility of buying The Sun, said in part:

"The incident referred to in that letter was so fleeting and unsubstantial that it had entirely escaped my recollection when I was first asked about it. I did not then even recall that there had been such an attempted negotiation or that I had written any letter, so completely had the thing faded from my memory, like many things that do not materialize and are accordingly dismissed.

"Since the subject has been agitated I have given it much thought, and it now all comes back to my mind. Nothing was ever done about the thing. The nebulous business proposition which I discussed with Dr. Albert of his investing money in an American-owned and controlled newspaper apparently did not appeal to him, for I heard nothing further from him beyond a note saying he was communicating with his friends.

Discussed Before the War.

"The negotiation, if it can be dignified by that name, was conducted by one of my friends, a well-known and experienced newspaper man. This was before I mentioned the subject to Dr. Albert or had any thought that he might be interested and for our joint account. I never came in contact with the proposed vendors; it never reached that stage. The talk about this evening and morning paper being in the market had been common gossip for a long time, and we were anxious to acquire it on proper terms. I had discussed it in 1913, before the European war, with the same friend, at a time when he was considering the purchase of The Evening Post, that was then supposed to be for sale. We have been and are still in negotiation for another paper on his behalf.

"The idea of a minority interest in the paper, with the right to us to buy back the bulk of that interest, even at a profit, evidently did not appeal to Dr. Albert and his friends, as I heard no more from him after he had written that he was cabling his friends.

"That, however, did not interfere with my friend thereafter continuing to pursue the negotiation, until he found that the owners were not willing to give him an option to enable us to investigate the financial merits of the enterprise and insisted on our buying in the dark and without an option, which we were, of course, unwilling to do, and there the matter finally ended."

The witness stated that "there would have been nothing that would have been the subject of just criticism if, in February, 1916, Dr. Albert or his Government had seen fit to buy a newspaper" for legitimate propaganda in behalf of their country.

Explains Warheit Deal.

The rest of Mr. Untermyer's statement had to do with his loaning $35,000 to Judge Aaron K. Levy to purchase an interest in the Warheit, which, he said, was a purely business proposition, and to a reference made by Mr. Bielaski to the "Citizens Committee for Food Shipments" movement, the advertised purpose of which was to ship milk to "starving German babies." Mr. Untermyer said he did not even know where the Warheit office was, and that all he knew concerning the milk for German babies movement was that his wife had been the President of the committee, and that it had held its meetings for a time in his home.

The cross-examination of Mr. Untermyer was by Major Humes.

"How many times did you confer with Bernstorff?" asked Major Humes.

"I think, once."

"Did that conference pertain to newspapers and the purchase of newspapers?"

"It did not. I never recall having spoken to Count Bernstorff on that subject."

"Were your interviews with Count von Bernstorff of a personal nature, or did they pertain to business matters?"

Meetings with Bernstorff.

"I had very few with Count von Bernstorff. I think I had met him only two or three times in all the years that he was here. One of them pertained to a matter about which he wanted me to advise them, and the others, I think, were purely personal. He was at my house up at Graystone once."

"When was that?" Senator Sterling asked.

"I cannot fix the date except in this way. It was shortly before Dr. Buenz of the Hamburg-American Line was on trial in New York. Dr. Buenz and some others, I think, had been indicted for violating our neutrality by coaling some warship outside the harbor.

"Dr. Buenz was very anxious to know what to do, and they put the thing before me, and they stated their legal proposition, and I told them that I thought the thing for them to do was to plead guilty."

"Now, Mr. Untermyer, were you acquainted with Dr. Ruemly in 1915 or 1916?" Major Humes asked.

"I think I had met him once, Major Humes."

"Did you help him one time in any way?"

Never Helped Dr. Rumely.

"I never helped him. I never had anything to do with The Evening Mail purchase, never knew it had been made, never heard of it until it got into trouble."

"Is it not a fact that when the ownership of The 7vening Mail was discovered you approached the Alien Property Custodian, as well as others, agreeing to purchase The Evening Mail for $200,000 on condition that the facts were suppressed as to German ownership of the paper."

"That is not only not true, but it is a very unjust and improper implication. I have got the correspondence here. I represented, and still represent, the American bondholders of The Evening Mail, Mr. Henry L. Stoddard and Mr. Block. Mr. Stoddard was the former owner, the old owner of The Evening Mail, one of the oldest newspaper men in America. He sold it to George W. Perkins, and Mr. Perkins, I think, or somebody, made the deal with Rumely. I don't know who it was. At any rate, Mr. Stoddard owns $275,000 of the $400,000 first mortgage bonds of The Mail, and he owns a great many of the second mortgage bonds, and Mr. Block owns a large number of them. They are conducting The Mail today.

"Now, when the question was raised of Rumely's ownership, and before it became published, they were very much concerned that if it became published before they got into control of The Mail, so that their Americanism would be pretty well known, they thought they would lose the money on their bonds, and I went down with Mr. Block and put the whole situation before Mr. Palmer. We had a number of talks on the subject, and this is the letter which has been presented to you, I think, Major Humes."

Untermyer's Letter to Palmer.

Mr. Untermyer then read the letter, which in part follows:

"To A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, Washington, D. C.:

"Dear Sir: I beg to apologize for being a few days in default on my promise to submit to you a bid in writing covering the equity in The Evening Mail as represented by its outstanding share capital over and above the bonded debt secured by mortgages on its property and franchises. The delay has been due to the unexpected withdrawal of a purchaser I had in mind, and whose name I confidentially disclosed to you, due to his fear that, in making this purchase, the good-will might be gravely impaired, if not entirely destroyed, by the publication of facts of his previous affiliations. The extent of the assurance I was able to offer him, following our conversation, was not satisfactory.

"All other efforts to secure a purchaser have proved unavailing, and I have now arranged with a few of the bondholders led by Henry L. Stoddard, who, I am told, owns about $229,000 of the first mortgage bonds and holds in one way or another a large block of the seconds, that in order to save their security from the destruction that would follow publicity, they will make an offer for the property, and I accordingly authorized and do hereby make on their behalf the following offer:

"(1.) Mr. Stoddard will pay for himself and associates $200,000 for the share capital of The Evening Mail, of which $100,000 will be paid within five days after the acceptance of the offer, and as to the balance, $50,000 in two months and $50,000 in four months, to be evidenced by the non-negotiable obligation of Mr. Stoddard secured by the deposit with you of the certificates of stock indorsed in blank.

Question of Publicity.

"(2) There is to be no publicity on the part of the Government in any way involving a disclosure of the prior history of the paper or its alleged ownership by the German interests or in aid of German propaganda, as you will readily realize that no change of ownership could rescue the property from such a fatal taint upon its loyalty. Its readers and advertisers would feel that they had been unwittingly misled into the support of a publication that was being conducted against the best interests of their country. Mr. Stoddard would be unjustified in securing the aid of friends to make the purchase with such a cloud impending over the investment.

"I realize that, even in your desire to put an end to the present control, and to secure for the Government the best possible money results, (in which you have demonstrated such splendid abilities and untiring indusetry, and have met with such conspicuous success in your administration of this important office,) it will not be possible for you and that you should not be asked to absolutely commit the Department of Justice, or any other department of the Government, and I have explained to Mr. Stoddard that all he can rightfully ask is that you will at all times use your best efforts consistent with your public duty, to secure the avoidance of legal proceedings and of publicity, to the end that the innocent bondholders who have had no voice in the manipulation of the stock, or the policy of the paper, and the new purchasers, shall not be made the victims of the transgressions or unwisdom of other people.

"If it shall hereafter transpire that in the purchase of the control of the paper, or in its operation, any offense has been committed against the criminal law, (the evidence of which I have been unable to find and do not believe to exist,) it goes without saying that neither you, nor I, nor any other decent citizen, concerned above all things for the safety and welfare of his country, would be willing to be parties in the compounding of a crime against our Government.

"(3) Dr. Rumely insists as a condition of surrendering his stock that it is rightfully his and that his claims thereon must be reserved to him. It is, however, now agreed (and not without difficulty) to limit such claims to the amount realized on the sale, and not in that event to hold you personally liable for what he may hereafter contend to be the value of the stock thus surrendered. While I do not represent Dr. Rumely, it is, of course, necessary to have his assent as the holder of the stock under claim of title, in order to effect this transaction without the publicity that would destroy the property.

"I understand that if you have not already done so you will make inquiry as to the value of this equity, and that your action upon this offer will be guided to some extent by the result of your investigation.

"May I ask that this be done speedily, if done at all? It seems to me that in this particular transaction our interests are alike, and if you desire any help from me in the way of securing the services of Mr. Don Seitz or Mr. Adolph S. Ochs, whose name I suggested to you, in advising you as to the value of the property, pray do not hesitate to command me. I might add the names of Mr. Norman E. Mack and Mr. Vance McCormick as those of men likely to know something about the values of this character, but for the fact that New York City properties of this kind are sui generis upon the subject of market values. Very truly yours,

"SAMUEL UNTERMYER.

"P. S.—It has occurred to Mr. Stoddard, and I agree with him, that it would be well for him to see you and to explain to you the situation of the property and its value from his point of view. Mr. Stoddard has had twenty-five years of experience with this paper. It is his 'child,' and he has a sentiment connected with its future. If he could afford to buy the property alone he would do so, but unfortunately he is not so situated. He is straining every nerve to do what he has offered to do, and I would like to have you see him. Please wire me whether this will be convenient to you and he will come over to Washington."

Conferred with Dr. Albert.

"I gather from what you say in your statement, read to the committee," Major Humes said to Mr. Untermyer, "that you did have some conference with Dr. Albert as to the desirability of his making an investment in this proposed newspaper?"

"Certainly," Mr. Untermyer answered, "I think it was in my office, but I am not sure whether it was my office or my home."

"Is it not a fact," asked Major Humes, "or, at least, is it not susceptible of the construction that you meant in your letter to Dr. Albert that the one-fourth interest which your client was to retain was the one-fourth of the contemplated four-sixths, for which you were negotiating?"

"I do not think so. It may be, but that is not what was in mind by anybody."

"If that was meant, then, Dr. Albert would have had one-half of the capital stock of the paper?"

"Well, let us see. I have not figured that."

"Four-sixths, and one-quarter of that you were retaining, which would have left three-sixths for Dr. Albert, would it not?"

"Yes, that would have left three-sixths, if that had been true, but that was not true," said Mr. Untermyer. "Nobody dreamed of that. You must not forget, Major Humes, that the management and control of this paper that I was buying was by a newspaper man, and a man of experience in the newspaper world, and that we had to have control of it. Nobody would have dreamed of putting up the money without that."

Senator Nelson—Have you any objection to stating who that man was?

Mr. Untermyer—I do not object to stating it to the committee. I have been dragged into this thing, and I do not want to drag any more into it than can be helped. Might I write it for the committee?

"Colonel's" Name Withheld.

Senator Nelson—Yes, just hand it to the Chairman.

Mr. Untermyer—It is a Colonel

Senator King—I think that should not be put in the record.

The Chairman—No.

Mr. Untermyer—He was one of the oldest and, I think, one of the best-known newspaper men in the United States.

Major Humes—He is probably connected with other publications?

Mr. Untermyer—Yes, with other important publications.

Senator Nelson asked Mr. Untermyer if in his opinion Dr. Albert was, in 1916, in the United States for the purpose of "investing his money in newspaper enterprises in order that he might make money."

"My opinion," Mr. Untermyer replied, "is that Dr. Albert was a very clever business man, and my information is that he invested in a great many things in which he did make a great deal of money—business enterprises here."

Questioned About Albert.

Senator Nelson—You had no idea that he was here in the interest of the German Government?

Mr. Untermyer—Of course I knew he was here for the German Government, after a certain time.

Senator Nelson—Was he here in the interest of the German Government at the time that you had this newspaper negotiation with him?

Mr. Untermyer—I think he was then connected with the Embassy.

Major Humes—You knew that at that time?

Mr. Untermyer—Yes, I knew that.

Mr. Untermyer—Yes.

Major Humes—If you were only, as a favor, going to permit Mr. Albert to have a minority interest in the paper, why was it necessary for him to bring the transaction to a conclusion?

Mr. Untermyer—In the first place, I have never said that I was doing it as a favor, and never intimated that I was doing it as a favor. On the contrary, I was making him a business proposition.

Major Humes—In other words, you were willing to take him in on what you considered a good transaction?

Mr. Untermyer—I was willing to take him in in order to get about a million and a quarter dollars that we did not want to put up.

The Chairman—What paper was it? Have you any objection to stating?

Negotiated for The Sun.

Mr. Untermyer—It has been published, I think, in the newspapers that it was the morning and Evening Sun.

Major Humes—At that time you knew that Mr. Albert, if he made the investment, was going to invest the money of the German Government?

Mr. Untermyer—No. I did not.

Major Humes—You knew it upon receipt of his reply, did you not?

Mr. Untermyer—No, I do not think that cable reply stated. He said he was sending a cipher cable to Berlin, and would let me know.

The Chairman, (interposing) — You would not have cared if you had known German money had gone into it, would you?

Mr. Untermyer—Not at all. I would not have cared anything about it in 1916, if they had a minority interest; not in the least, if we controlled this paper, and it was a business proposition. I considered it splendid business, and am very sorry we lost it.

Albert's Cable to Berlin.

Senator Nelson—How can you account for the fact that Albert wanted to communicate with Berlin before he closed the transaction?

Mr. Untermyer—I assumed whoever his friends were there he would have to communicate with them.

Senator Nelson—You had no suspicion, then, that he wanted to communicate with the German governmental authorities?

Mr. Untermyer—I did not consider it, and it made no difference to me.

Senator Nelson—And you did not care?

Mr. Untermyer—I want to add, if you will let me, that when that answer came I was just about on the way to South America, and never thought of it again.

Senator Sterling—You knew at the time of these negotiations of the relations of Dr. Albert to the German Embassy, did you not?

Mr. Untermyer—Oh, yes.

Senator Sterling—Now, could you imagine Dr. Albert's desire to acquire a great newspaper in America for any other purpose than to promote the German cause and German interests?

Mr. Untermyer—Yes, I could imagine not only his, but any other shrewd investor picking up that property at that time, which Mr. Munsey has since picked up and is making a fortune out of it.

Senator Sterling—Could you imagine Count von Bernstorff being interested in a newspaper for any other purpose than the promotion of the German cause or German interests, or creating sympathy for the German cause?

Seeing a Business Chance.

Mr. Untermyer—No, but I think Count von Bernstorff was in a different situation, because he was the Ambassador here, and Ambassadors do not engage in business; but a commercial attaché who is a business man and a merchant, and an investor, and, to some extent a speculator, as he was in large amounts, as I am told, would be likely to see a business opportunity as we saw it, and would be glad to have an interest in it.

Senator Sterling—You say when this matter was first called to your attention you were uncertain whether your conversation in regard to it was with Bernstorff or Dr. Albert?

Mr. Untermyer—Yes, I so stated. I do not remember it at all.

Senator Sterling—Then you must have had in mind that Dr. Bernstorff was somewhat interested in the acquisition of such a paper?

Mr. Untermyer—I did not know with whom the talk took place. I did not remember anything about it until I thought it all over.

Major Humes—Did you discuss the newspaper situation with von Bernstorff at any time?

Mr. Untermyer—No, I never did.

At the afternoon session Major Humes resumed his cross-examination with a reference to the Albert papers, which were published in The New York World in 1915. Mr. Untermyer said that he did not think he had conferred with Albert after the latter lost the portfolio containing the papers, which is understood to have been seized by an agent of the Secret Service. He also said he did not remember having received from Dr. Albert a letter regarding the loss.

"When did you first discover that Dr. Albert's papers had been stolen or gotten away from him in some way?" Major Humes asked.

"I do not know. My general impression is that I saw something in the newspapers about it. That is my impression."

"Did you have any knowledge of it prior to the publication of the documents themselves?"

"I do not think so."

"Mr. Untermyer, is it or is it not a fact that you approached The New York World, and endeavored to prevent the publication of those Albert papers prior to their publication?"

"I do not recall any such occurrence, Major Humes, but if you have anything that would refresh my memory —."

"Are you acquainted with Mr. Frank Cobb of The New York World?"

"Very well."

Major Humes—Did you not confer with him on the subject of those stolen papers?

Mr. Untermyer—It may be, but I do not remember it. It may be that you are right. I do not recall a thing about it now.

Major Humes—If you had conferred with Mr. Cobb in reference to the publication of these papers, after they were stolen, at whose instance did you act?

Mr. Untermyer—Well, that is rather a hypothetical question, Major Humes. I have no doubt that if I did I must have done so because Dr. Albert, or some one of his people, asked me to do so, but I do not recall doing so.

Nelson Presses Witness.

Major Humes—You stated in your general statement, and in the statement which you gave to the prints a week ago last Sunday, that the only connection that you had with any of these German agents, or any one connected with the Embassy, except with regard to the newspaper transaction that you testified to this morning, was of a social nature, and was the ordinary social intercourse that was common among all of the people acquainted with them.

Mr Untermyer—What I said was that I had never acted as counsel for any of them; that I had never taken a retainer; that I had never rendered a bill, that I had no business transactions with them, except this one.

Senator Nelson—But your answer is what I would call a negative figment. You seem to dwell upon not having received a regular retainer, or getting a fee. That is not the point. Did you have, under any circumstances, with or without a fee, with or without a retainer, any consultation with them? That is the question.

Mr. Untermyer—As a lawyer, Senator Nelson?

Senator Nelson—No; as a citizen—in any capacity, either as a lawyer or as a citizen.

Mr. Untermyer—Certainly; I have said repeatedly, and said in my statement that I had often talked with them.

Senator Nelson—No; but did you consult about these affairs here that they were carrying on in this country?

Mr. Untermyer—No. No, gentlemen, I did not do anything of the kind.

Senator Nelson—You never consulted with any of them about these stolen papers that have been referred to?

Mr. Untermyer—Not so far as I recall.

Senator Nelson—Well, now, Mr. Untermyer, that is a little surprising, in a prominent matter like that. If you had talked with these men about it I should think that would have impressed itself on your memory.

Mr. Untermyer—I do not see why it should, Senator Nelson. I do not think you realize how many hundreds of things come to a man in the course of time.

Senator Nelson—But you do not have hundreds of cases of stolen papers.

Mr. Untermyer—I did not think there was any importance about that when I read about it or saw about it. It may be he spoke to me before I saw it. That I cannot tell. But suppose he did. What on earth difference does that make, and what has that to do with any of these transactions? Suppose I did go to Mr. Cobb and ask him not to publish about this stolen property. I cannot see any significances in it at all. But I do not recall doing so.

Senator Nelson asked if the witness had no idea of the propaganda the Germans were carrying on in this country until war came, or until diplomatic relations were broken.

Mr. Untermyer—Yes, I did. I knew of their propaganda. I forget when it was made public, but as soon as it was made public I knew of it.

Senator Nelson—Did you not know it before?

Mr. Untermyer—Certainly not.

Senator Nelson—None of it?

Mr. Untermyer—Before the newspapers published it. I had no more knowledge than any other man had of that who read the newspapers. They were mighty careful, perhaps, that I should not.

First Knowledge of Propaganda.

Senator Wolcott—In other words, you did not know that they had formulated a propaganda plan?

Mr. Untermyer—No.

Major Humes asked Mr. Untermyer if he had collaborated with Dr. Albert in the preparation of a letter which Dr. Albert wrote to the newspapers after the loss of his papers. This letter, several columns in length, was printed in the newspapers of Aug. 20, 1915. Mr. Untermyer replied that he did not think he had anything to do with the preparation of that article

"Then," said Major Humes, "you are not sure of the significance of this statement in a letter from Dr. Albert to you, under date of Aug. 29, 1915, in which Albert writes, 'I have had very flattering comments on the statements. I know to whom they are addressed.'?"

"No," Mr. Untermyer answered, "because I see in your record here that you have introduced a letter, or something, from von Papen, in which he states that he and Albert prepared that statement. I remember that, so I judge that they prepared it. This is a letter, is it not, to his wife?"

"Yes," said Major Humes "it is a letter to his wife, and I now call to your attention that in this same letter of Aug. 20 that Albert wrote you he makes this statement: 'Will you please find inclosed draft of a note which I want to write to the State Department.' What was the nature of the note he sent to you that was to be prepared for the State Department?"

"I do not remember it. That is the trouble about it, Major. But the State Department would certainly have it in the files."

Notes to State Department.

"Did Dr. Albert submit to you, on one occasion, notes that he was preparing for submission to the State Department?"

"No, yet he may have submitted that one. I read that in the newspapers, and I looked over everything I had and I could find nothing of the kind. Yet undoubtedly it must have been inclosed. But I assumed that you would get it from the State Department, or wherever it was, and have it."

Mr. Untermyer indignantly denied that Dr. Albert was in constant communication with him regarding cases in the court involving Germans and that the counsel that appeared in some of these cases were "really junior counsel, and you had the actual charge of the practical handling of the litigation."

"When you were coming in contact with Albert did you ever come in contact with Captain Boy-Ed?" Major Humes asked.

Met Captain Boy-Ed.

"I think I met all the members of the embassy. In fact, I know I met Captain Boy-Ed, and I know that I met von Papen once."

Next Major Humes asked Mr. Untermyer if he had been concerned in litigation having to do with the steamship Atlantic. Mr. Untermyer said that this was a case between Dr. Albert and John Simon, and concerned a money transaction of about $750,000. He said that Hays, Kaufmann & Lindheim were the lawyers in that case. It was a case between two Germans, the witness said, and Simon had suggested that Bernstorff arbitrate the matter. He admitted that Dr. Albert had conferred with him regarding the affair.

Mr. Untermyer denied emphatically that he had ever known of any scheme entered into between Dr. Albert and a German purchasing concern to load the Atlantic with resin, clear the vessel for a neutral port, and then have a U-boat capture the ship and take it into a German harbor. He also denied Albert had ever told him that Simon sold him the boat to keep it from engaging in trade for the Allies. Mr. Untermyer pointed out that the transaction referred to occurred months before this country entered the war.

The witness denied having conversed with George Sylvester Viereck and Dr. Hale regarding a proposition for Mr. Untermyer to write certain articles. He said he never wrote any articles for Viereck, although he was asked to do so. He said that he had no recollection of ever having met Dr. Hale.

Major Humes—Mr. Viereck states in this letter which is already in the record: "I had a long talk with Samuel Untermyer, who is strongly on our side, and will write an article in support of our contentions, for THE NEW YORK TIMES."

Mr. Untermyer—Is it fair to put in all this stuff that these people wrote?

Major Humes—Well, if it is a wrong imputation, you certainly should have an opportunity to explain it.

Mr. Untermyer—I never did write any articles for anybody. The only articles I wrote were on the other side, during that time, and the public prints are full of them.

Not On the German Side.

Senator Wolcott—If by his statement he meant to imply that you were on the German side—

Mr. Untermyer (interposing)—I do not believe he meant to imply anything of the kind, but if he did it was not true.

The witness produced a letter from Viereck, dated Dec. 9, 1918, in which the editor wrote that he had never heard Mr. Untermyer express a pro-German sentiment, and that Mr. Untermyer was one of the few Americans who had lived up to the President's injunction to be neutral.

Major Humes—I call your attention to Mr. Viereck's letter of Jan. 12 to Dr. Hale, asking that certain material be furnished to you in order that it might be available for the purposes of an article, and ask you if you ever received that from Dr. Hale (handing paper to witness)?

Mr. Untermyer—I do not remember whether I ever received it or not, but if I did, I did not pay any attention to it, because I never wrote any article.

Major Humes wanted to know if Albert and Viereck had ever visited Mr. Untermyer's home at the same time.

Mr. Untermyer—I have no doubt that they had been at my house the same day. I do not see what its significance is, what it has to do with anything?

Opposed Preparedness in 1915.

Major Humes—There was something said about articles which you have written, Mr. Untermyer. I had a memorandum of three articles, interviews, and I assume, as a busy man, you are more likely to get into the papers on an interview than a prepared article.

Mr. Untermyer—I am more likely to be misrepresented in an interview than in a prepared article.

Major Humes—In THE NEW YORK TIMES of April 29, 1915, there is an article opposing preparedness.

Mr. Untermyer—Yes, I was opposed to preparedness at that time on the grounds that I thought those nations would be prostrated after the war, and a probably was mistaken. I am a pretty good preparedness man today.

Major Humes—During the same period of time, is it not a fact that you were in favor of an embargo on munitions?

Mr. Untermyer said that he was not in favor of an embargo on munitions, but that the State Department was having a controversy with Great Britain over the blockade. If England should insist, against our contention, upon a blockade, he had contended, we could easily carry out our points of view by an embargo on arms, and then Great Britain would come to the American point of view.

Major Humes asked Mr. Untermyer if he invested in any German war bonds. The witness replied that through Dr. Albert he bought $1,000 worth for a friend in Washington, and added, "I advised him that he was making a rotten investment." Mr. Untermyer said he never bought a German bond for himself.

Mr. Untermyer said he knew Dr. Dernburg well and thought him one of the great men of Germany. In his opinion, Dr. Dernburg always opposed unrestricted submarine warfare.

The last hour of the cross-examination was given up to the reading of telephone conversations supposed to have been recorded by dictaphone. Their admissability will be determined after further evidence is offered.

REVOLUTION IN BULGARIA.

Further Mistreatment of Greeks and Serbs by Bulgars Charged.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 17.—A revolution has broken out in Bulgaria, according to information received by the Lokal-Anzeiger from Bulgaria by way of Hungary.

SALONIKI, Dec. 16.—The Bulgarians continued to mistreat the Greeks and Serbians who were taken to Bulgaria during the war, according to information reaching the semi-official Athens News Agency. They compelled the Greeks and Serbs to pay their fares on trains, although they took all their money from them before putting them on the trains, the reports said. It is declared also that on several occasions train loads of Greeks were left standing several days without food.

The Bulgarians, it is added, have failed to keep fully their agreement to repatriate Greek children under 14 years of age, who were carried away during the invasion of Eastern Macedonia.

CRIPPLED SOLDIERS' JOBS.

Ford and Other Detroit Plants Plan to Provide Work.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 17.—Crippled soldiers returning to Detroit, no matter how serious their disability, will be afforded a chance to earn their own living in Detroit industrial plants. The Board of Commerce and Congressman Charles A. Nichols are co-operating to provide places for convalescents as soon as they complete their vocational training courses in Government schools. In the Ford motor plant positions are awaiting 4,062 maimed and wounded soldiers, including jobs for men minus both arms or both legs. Eighteen per cent. of the present working force of the company is composed of disabled men.

Hundreds of soldiers from other States who have been mustered out of service are flocking to Detroit for jobs, according to Board of Commerce officials. Employers, however, are giving first preference to soldiers whose homes are here.

HAD WILD VOYAGE AS U-BOAT CAPTIVE

GOT OUR ELECTION NEWS

Peace Summons Came to Undersea Cruiser After Prisoners Witnessed Other Acts of Piracy.

Two young officers of the United States Naval Reserve, who returned yesterday on the Cunarder Caronia from England, gave an amplified account of their forty-five days' imprisonment on board the German U-boat 152. They had been captured on Sept. 30, when the American transport Ticonderoga was sunk by shellfire with the loss of several of her crew, including the naval gunners.

The officers are Lieutenant Frank L. Muller of 1,684 Third Avenue, Oakland, Cal., and Lieutenant Junius H. Fulcher of Norfolk, Va.

After describing the sinking of the Ticonderoga, Lieutenant Fulcher said he and his companion were taken aboard the submarine while others were left to die. Lieutenant Fulcher was placed in a stateroom below and his blood-stained uniform removed and his wounds dressed by the surgeon of the submarine.

"After he had taken a few pieces of shrapnel out of my leg, they gave me a little brandy," Lieutenant Fulcher added, "and I went to sleep comfortably. Next day the chief engineer of the undersea craft came to see me and tried to explain that the Germans were not 'Huns, but really wanted to be human and treat people of other nations with kindness, even if they were at war with Germany, but he said somehow things did not turn out to be what they seemed.

"The quarters where I was confined, until my injured hands and leg got better, were something like the dungeons one reads about. As soon as I could get on deck for a few hours each day I recovered my health.

"The officers told me that we were on our way to the American coast, and on Oct. 9 they became excited over a message from Kiel that the Kaiser had sent a peace note to President Wilson. Two days later the U-boats were ordered to leave the Atlantic Coast and start for their base in Germany. On Oct. 13 we sighted the Norwegian bark Stefinder, and a little later captured her. This was a good thing for the crew, as it meant fresh provisions, cigars, and possibly some good schnapps.

"The Germans were all night working with the bark's boat to transfer the provisions to the U-boat. At 10 A. M. on Oct. 14 the crew of the Norwegian vessel, numbering nineteen, were ordered to take to their two boats, and were cast adrift with some biscuits and water 1,000 miles from land, and their ship was sunk with bombs."

Lieutenant Fulcher added that the U 152 next day overhauled a British steamship, and fired fifty shells at the vessel. A cruiser came to her aid, and the Germen then went down to a depth of 155 feet while nine depth bombs were being dropped by the warship. The submarine trembled so violently that the electric lights blinked.

On Oct. 17 they sighted another British steamship and fired eighty-three shots. Her crew replied with their two guns, and the Germans said later that the aim was so accurate that the submarine had to dive for safety, while the steamer escaped. On Oct. 20 all U-boats were recalled by wireless to Kiel.

"We traveled by the North Sea through the minefields to the Kattegat," the Lieutenant said. "The commander, Captain Franz, and his crew appeared to get news each night of the American elections, and were quite interested as to whether the Democrats or the Republicans would be elected by our people. They expressed their opinion that the ending of the great war was in the hands of President Wilson.

"News of the revolution in Germany was received on Nov. 6, and the success of the rebels, with the flying of the red flag on the warships, made the crew very sad. Finally the U-152 reached Kiel on Nov. 15, and all had leave to go ashore at night for a few hours.

"We were then transferred to the cruiser Prinz Heinrich and told two days later that we could go to Harwich on the U-boat which had captured us. We were sent to Heligoland, and left there on Nov. 20 with a flotilla which consisted of twenty-four submarines accompanied by a transport. The flotilla arrived Nov. 24 at Harwich and surrendered."

Lieutenant Miller corroborated his brother officer, and added that he did not know Fulcher was on the submarine until he had been there many days, and they met on the deck to get an airing.

Lieutenant Muller also said that on Nov. 11, when the news of the signing of the armistice was received, Captain Franz ordered a case of champagne broached, and all hands drank a peace toast.

Chauffeur Tells of Conference Before Robbery—Prosecutor Sees Much Crime in Brooklyn.

George H. McCullough, chauffeur of the Black and White taxicab in which the two gunmen who killed two of the officials while robbing the East Brooklyn Savings Bank of more than $13,000 rode to the scene of their crimes, was indicted yesterday for murder in the first degree in Kings County. He was arraigned before Judge Marcus B. Campbell, in the County Court, pleaded not guilty and was remanded to Raymond Street jail to await trial.

The indictment alleges that McCullough with others shot to death De Witt C. Peal, the paying teller of the bank, when he refused to open the gate leading to his enclosure in the office of the bank and turn the money in his possession over to the thieves. The principal witness before the Grand Jury was Rudolph Newschaffer of 404 East Fifty-fifth Street, Manhattan, a taxi driver.

Newschaffer owns his own cab. He asserted that he had known both McCullough and John Mulligan, the starter for the Black and White Cab Company at the Hotel Navarre, for a number of years. He told the Grand Jury that on the day before the murder and robbery he went to Mulligan's stand to borrow some tools. He saw Mulligan and McCullough in conversation with two men. The description of the men given by Newschaffer tallied closely with the description of the men who held up the East Brooklyn Bank.

Other witnesses before the Grand Jury, were David Morehouse, treasurer of the bank; Alfred Freeman, assistant paying teller, and acting Captain John Coughlin of the Detective Bureau, who has been active in the search for the murderers.

After the arraignment of McCullough, District Attorney Harry E. Lewis asked Judge Campbell to hold Mulligan in heavy bail as he was wanted as a material witness. The judge fixed bail at $10,000, which up to late last night he had not found.

District Attorney Lewis declared last evening that the Police Department would most likely make additional arrests in the near future as a result of information furnished by three volunteer witnesses who came to his office. The District Attorney turned over the information they gave to the Detective Bureau. The District Attorney said that never in his memory had there been so much crime in Brooklyn as during the past few weeks.

After Newschaffer had told his story to the police he was confronted with Mulligan and McCullough. They both denied his story. Mulligan finally admitted that he had had a drink with Newschaffer and that McCullough joined them in the saloon. McCullough asserted that he could remember nothing of the incident.

Both McCullough and Mulligan were arraigned yesterday in Adams Street Police Court on the charge of homicide made on Sunday by Detective Bridgetts. At the request of counsel for the two men and the District Attorney's office Magistrate Walsh adjourned the case until Friday. When it comes up at that time the proceedings before the County Court will take precedence and the Police Court charges will probably be dropped.

SOLDIERS ADD 7,419 TO SMITH PLURALITY

He Gets 11,675 Votes in City from Men in Service to Whitman's 4,256.

STATE COUNT NOT FINISHED

Officials Estimate That It Cost $6 to Record Each Vote Cast at the Camps.

Governor-elect Alfred E. Smith easily beat Governor Whitman in the poll of votes cast by New York City's soldiers and sailors at the last Gubernatorial election, counted yesterday at the various polling places in the city. Mr. Smith not only defeated his opponent in each of the five boroughs, but he carried every Assembly district in each borough. Smith's total vote in the entire city was 11,675, while Governor Whitman obtained 4,256, Mr. Smith's plurality being 7,419.

Governor Whitman's total civilian vote in the city was 286,741, and the addition of the soldier vote brought it to 290,997. Mr. Smith's total civilian vote was 547,576, so that, with the soldier vote added, he received 559,251 votes in all, or a plurality of 268,254.

While the soldier and sailor vote reduced the already slim pluralities of some candidates for minor offices there was no upset from the result as announced the day after election, so far as could be learned. In the race for Congress in the Sixth Congressional District, in Brooklyn, Frederick W. Rowe's plurality of 442 over Franklin Taylor was reduced to 240. For City Magistrate in the Second Municipal District, Brooklyn, Magistrate Esterbrook's plurality of 647 over Lawrence Fish was reduced by more than 300 votes. For member of the Assembly in the Sixth Assembly District, Brooklyn, Martin Solomon, Democratic candidate, whose plurality was 95, received 55 additional votes from the soldiers. The vote by election districts throughout the city, with the totals for each borough, was as follows:

Election officials estimated yesterday that it cost the State and various municipalities upward of $175,000 to count the soldier and sailor vote. The estimate was based upon the fact that a Chairman and two Election Inspectors, one representing each party, was stationed at each election district throughout the State where votes were counted. Each man was allotted $5 a day for his work, or $15 to an election district. Altogether, about $100,000 was spent on counting the vote in the various districts, while the work performed by the Secretary of State's office, where additional clerks were hired, is estimated at $75,000. On this basis, according to the officials, it cost approximately $6 to record each vote cast. The State assumes part of the expense and the municipalities the remainder.

Said a middle-aged business man:

"FOR the last four years I have not had much enthusiasm for Christmas. But, with the war over, I am feeling like a youngster again this year. Yesterday morning I stopped off at Lewis & Conger's on my way down to the office. Early in the morning is the best time to shop. Why the New York Fur Auction Sales?

Because

New York is the Fur Market of the World

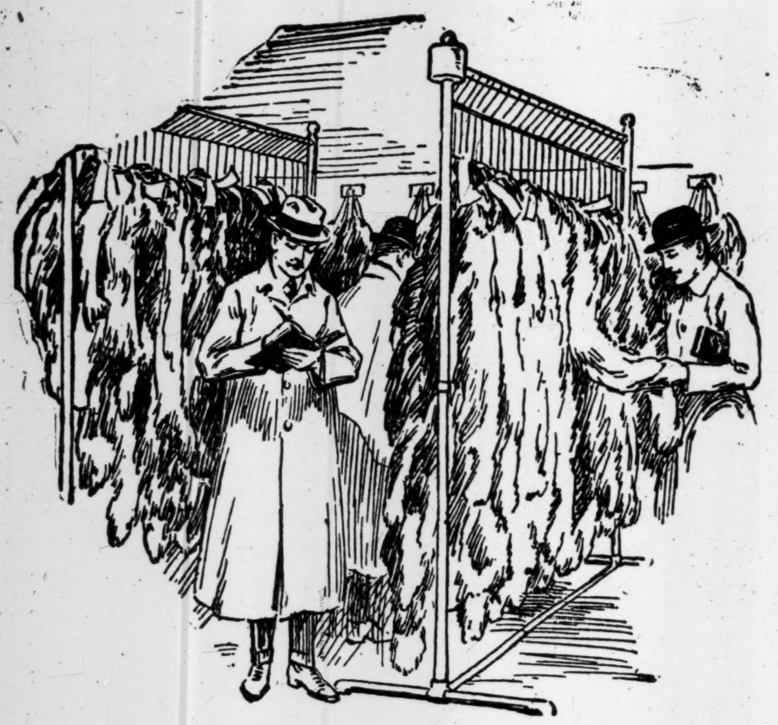
WHETHER you are one of America's fashionable women who recognizes the style leadership of New York's fur establishments, or

One of New York's retail or manufacturing furriers, dependent upon raw fur merchants for your supply, or

One of New York's raw fur merchants, supplying the needs of America's manufacturing furriers, or

A shipper or large collector of raw furs in any nation in the world—

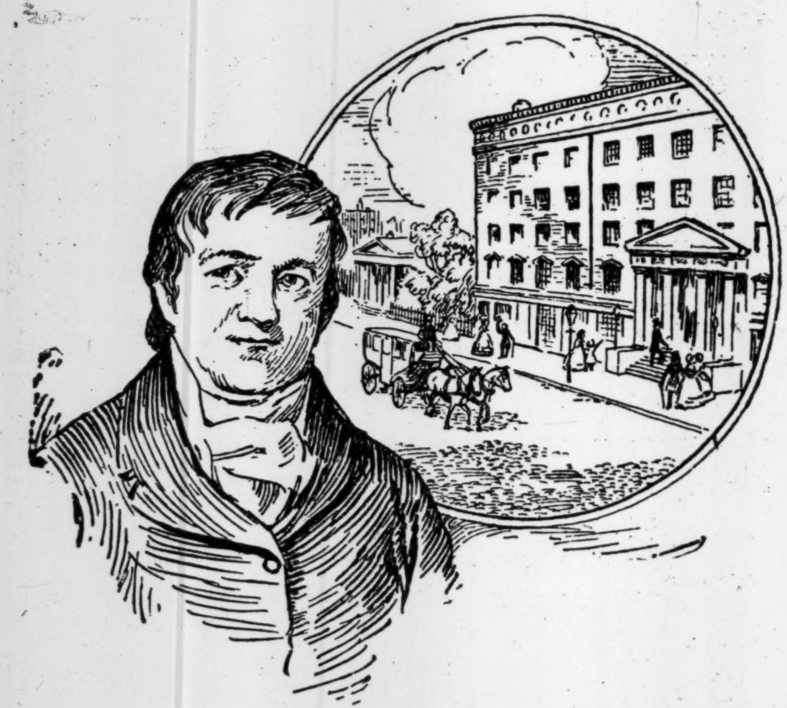
All of you, individually and collectively, are part of the New York Fur Auction Sales. All of you are receiving its benefits. All of you should give your unqualified and unconditional support!



IN the great warehouses of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, at 48-50-52 Great Jones Street, millions of dollars worth of furs are assorted for quick and ready inspection by the visiting and resident fur merchants and manufacturers.

From every fur bearing territory of the universe furs are shipped for New York's great fur auction sales. Catalogs are issued listing the merchandise to be offered at each day's sale. Here you see the busy buyers indicating in their catalogs just what they hope to buy and what they intend to offer.

The maintenance of the New York Fur Auction Sales makes it unnecessary for New York's fur merchants and manufacturers, the largest group in the world, to travel to a distant point for their fur needs. It makes it possible for them to attend to their regular duties during sales weeks. It makes it unnecessary to add to the cost of their purchase the addditional expense of handling, carting and shipping to New York.



PROBABLY the first man to recognize the importance of New York as the Fur Market of the United States was the original John Jacob Astor. He established trading posts on the great trans-continental trails, and to this day some of these posts are direct lines of communication with the New York Fur Market.

The Astor millions were originally fur millions, and could not have been accumulated had New York not been recognized as the great gateway to London. It was in London that Mr. Astor sold for gold the furs he secured from the American Indians in exchange for trinkets and little necessities which he purchased at home for silver.

AT each tick of the clock freight cars are leaving some one terminal in New York loaded with merchandise for consumption by the nation. These freight cars must be speedily returned for re-loading, and on their quick return many of them are used for the shipping of fur pelts from the fur bearing sections of the nation, marked for the New York Fur Auction Sales.

Because of New York's need of outgoing freight cars, shippers are assured prompt delivery of their incoming fur shipments.

New York's rail leadership offers not only powerful facilities for shipping furs out of the Metropolis, but offers unparalleled facilities for shipping them into it.

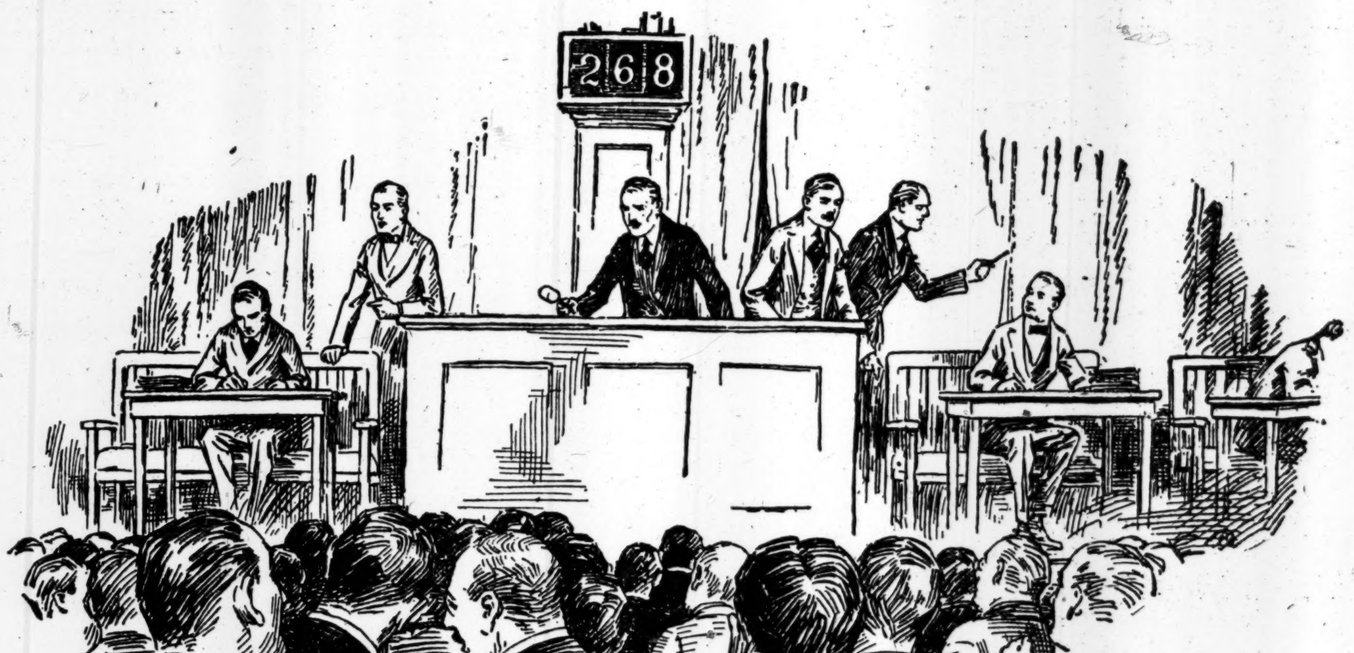
THE effect of the New York Fur Auction Sales on the New York Fur Market has been to make it grow even more rapidly than ever before. In every division of the fur industry this unprecedented and rapid growth is manifest. The entire United States as a fur producing nation has received more universal recognition since the institution of fur auction sales in New York. They have transformed New York from a market of domestic importance to one of international influence, bringing furs to the port of New York from every fur bearing territory in the world. They have, by their prestige, directed more shipments from the American fur trappers to the raw fur dealers in New York.

America will maintain this National Leadership because New York is a port accessible to international commerce.

To attract international Commerce America must hold her Fur sales at New York, the greatest fur manufacturing city and a port in daily contact with the other great ports of the world—not at a point central for the nation alone.

There can be offered no more logical reasons for New York's continued leadership as the fur market of the world, than:

1. Fur Auction Sales should be held at a port central to international commerce.
2. Furs should be concentrated where $165,000,000 of fur capital is invested.
3. Both domestic and foreign furs should be offered in the market where 85% of American manufacturing is done.
4. Furs should be offered for sale at the market where 95% of the American catch is dressed and dyed.
5. There is no reason why furs should be sold at a distant place and then shipped to their point of consumption.



New York's Next Fur Auction Sale

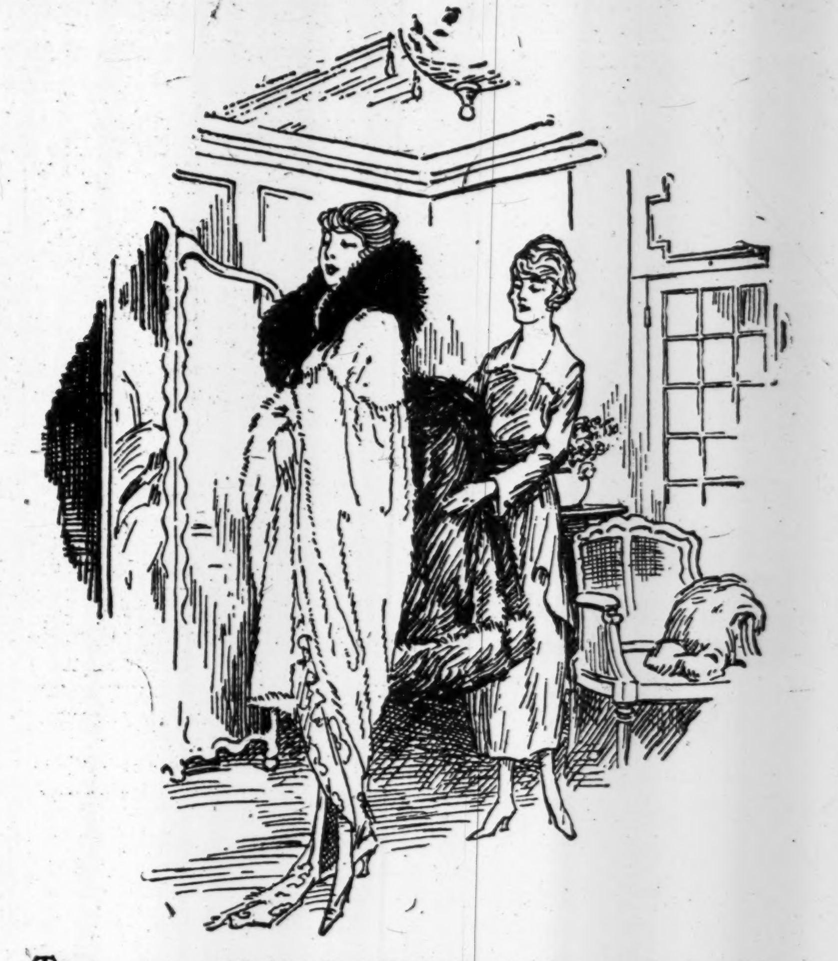
January 27th

Catalogs will be issued and the warehouses opened for the inspection of merchandise January 22nd. Sale will be held as usual at the Masonic Temple, 71 West 23rd Street.

Support New York!

FUR AUCTION SALES were instituted in New York following the outbreak of the great world war. It was then that America ceased buying back her own furs at European auctions, sending them to Germany for dressing and dyeing, and back again to America for manufacture and sale.

NEW YORK FUR AUCTION SALES CORPORATION
48-50-52 Great Jones Street, New York City

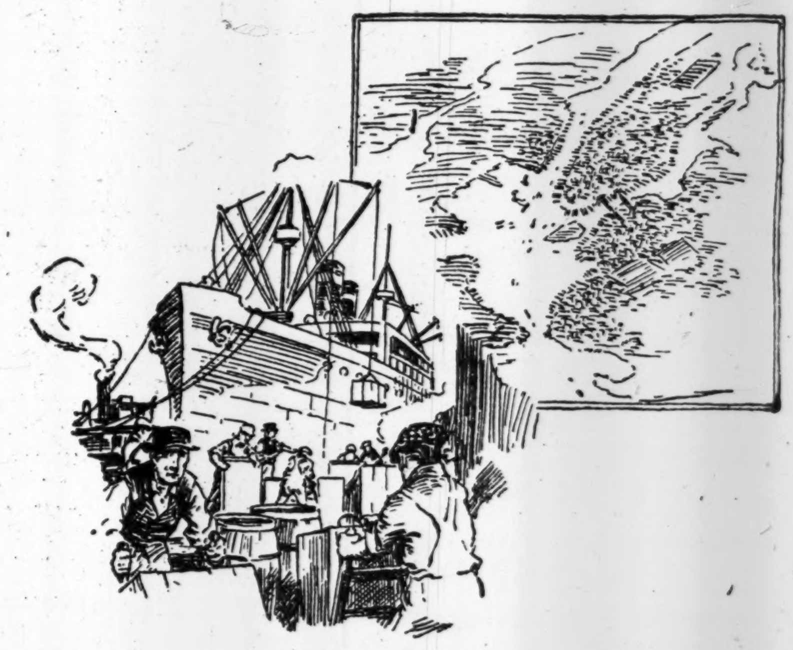


TO the women of fashion New York offers the largest selection of furs. No city in the world can claim the style leadership for furs that rightfully belongs to New York. In New York's fur market today are Parisian buyers seeking the finished styled product to export to France.

To buy furs in any other city, either home or abroad, is to make your selection in a market smaller in its scope and more limited in its style correctness.

Of all the fur manufactured in the United States 85% is produced in New York. As a means of comparison it is interesting to know that New York manufactures more furs than Paris, London, Berlin, Leipzig, Vienna, Budapest and Petrograd combined.

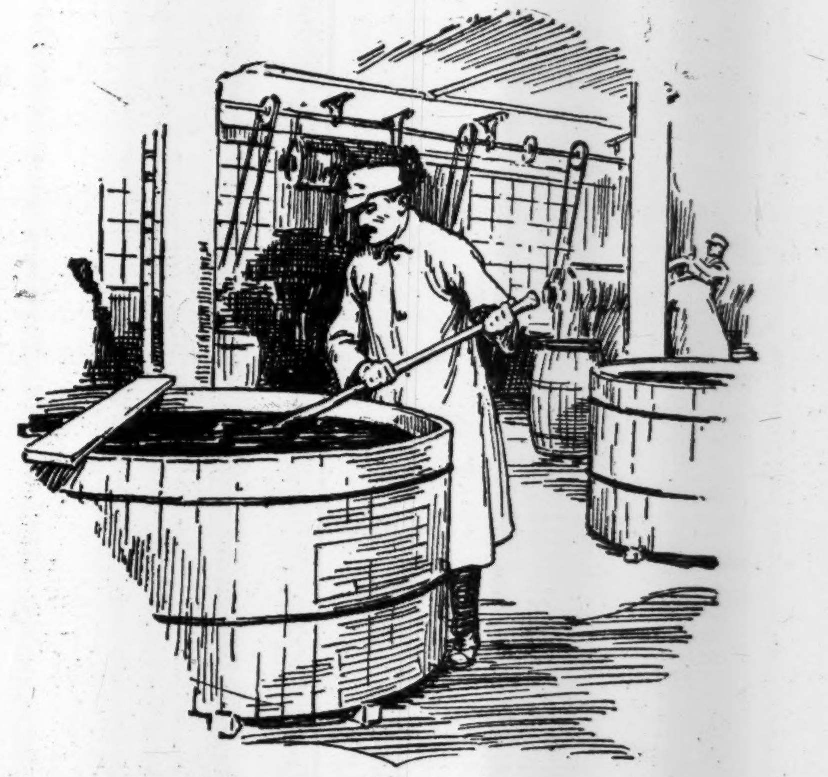
Every time you buy furs from a New York retail merchant, you are receiving the direct benefits resulting from the success of the New York Fur Auction Sales.



WHEN the Island of Manhattan was first known as New Amsterdam its geographical advantage as a port was quickly recognized. From that day until this more ships arrive in New York than any port in America. Steamship lines from all over the world have direct connection with New York. With the Panama Canal open to Pacific Ocean shipping, New York as a port stands without an equal in the world.

If the United States seeks to maintain the fur dominance it now rightly holds as a nation, it must concentrate its raw fur market at New York, a port readily accessible to every nation and harbor in the world.

The maintenance and unqualified support of the New York Fur Auction Sales by the fur industry of New York and the nation, is the only guarantee of America's continued leadership.



THE development of the fur dyeing and dressing industry in the United States has been very marked since the outbreak of the World War in 1914. The dominance of New York, the Fur Market of the World, is again supported by the fact that 95% of the entire American fur catch is dressed and dyed in New York.

It is but natural that the fur dyeing industry should concentrate its efforts in the largest raw fur market. The New York Fur Auction Sales are directly essential to the continued leadership of the dyeing industry in New York because the international influence and prestige of the institution attracts pelts yearly to New York from dealers and large collectors in America, Europe, Australia, South America, Japan and other foreign countries.

FLEET IS DUE HERE AT DAWN TUESDAY

Will Be Reviewed Off the Statue of Liberty by Secretary Daniels at 9 o'Clock.

LAND PARADE IN AFTERNOON

Leave for Officers and Men at Its Conclusion—Armada to Stay Till January 8.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Plans of the Government for the great naval review and parade to be held in New York upon the return home from active service in European waters of the American dreadnoughts, destroyers, and other units now crossing the Atlantic from Brest, were partially disclosed today by Secretary Daniels.

The returning fleet is expected to arrive at daylight of Dec. 24, the day before Christmas. It will be reviewed the same morning as it steams by the Mayflower, stationed near the Statue of Liberty, and enters the Hudson. In the afternoon the officers and men of the fleet will parade through the streets of New York City, and at night Christmas Eve shore leave will be given to them. Mr. Daniels's announcement concerning arrangements for the review was as follows:

"The fleet is expected to arrive off Ambrose Light Vessel about daylight on Tuesday, Dec. 24, and will pass the Statue of Liberty about 9 A. M., mooring ship in berths in the North River from abreast Fifty-fifth Street to Fort Washington.

"The fleet will be reviewed by the Secretary of the Navy from the Mayflower at anchor near the Statue of Liberty. After the last vessel has passed up the river the Mayflower, followed by city officials in the Patrol and the Manhattan, will review the vessels at anchor, steaming around the fleet. The Mayflower will then take up an anchorage at the foot of Ninety-second Street, where the Secretary will receive the Commander in Chief, Admiral Henry T. Mayo, the flag officer, and commanding officers of the various ships.

"At 1:30 P. M. a parade will be formed in the vicinity of Ninety-sixth Street, men without arms, and will march down Broadway, Fifty-ninth Street, Fifth Avenue, and Twenty-third Street to the North River, where they will re-embark for their respective vessels.

"On account of the parade occurring the day before Christmas and the anxiety of officers and men to see their families, leaves of absence will be granted to both officers and men immediately after the parade.

"The City of New York has been very gracious and kind in tendering a banquet to the officers, but on account of the holiday season and the desire of the officers to be at home on Christmas Day, the Secretary, speaking for the officers of the fleet, deems it impossible to accept this invitation. The city will provide many entertainments for the men of the fleet.

"The fleet will probably remain in the North River until Jan. 8.

"In addition to the ships returning from foreign service the following vessels of the Atlantic Fleet will take part in the review:

"Battleships—New Mexico, Mississippi, Missouri, Maine, Wisconsin, Alabama, Illinois, Kearsarge, Iowa, Indiana, Massachusetts, hospital ship Solace, supply ship Bridge, and one or more fuel ships.

"Neither the exact number or names of the destroyers and converted yachts that are returning from abroad are known at this time. The destroyers and small craft on their arrival in the North River will be anchored in berths on the New Jersey shore and west of the fleet.

"The battleships returning are:

"The Pennsylvania, Admiral Mayo's flagship, under command of Captain L. M. Nulton.

"Division 6, under Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, New York, (flagship,) Texas, Wyoming, Florida, Arkansas, and Nevada.

LAUDS WELCOME COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to the Home-Coming Troops held in the City Hall yesterday, the Mayor, for the first time, took cognizance of the many protests against the appointment of William R. Hearst on the Reception Committee. He said:

"It has been found necessary to limit the membership of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to 5,000, and it is to be regretted that it will not be possible to place on the committee the names of the thousands of applications which have been made to the Mayor's office. The committee represents all shades of political opinion, creeds, races, and occupations.

"I am sure the citizens of New York will be proud of the reception that the committee will arrange for the returning troops, and there is no doubt that the troops themselves will appreciate the efforts of this committee.

"This is no time for political resolutions or personal animosity. The people are united in their desire to give the boys the royal reception that they are so justly entitled to.

"The big, broadminded men and women who are members of the committee have undertaken in a most patriotic spirit the inspiring task of providing for a proper and fitting celebration to our returning soldiers, sailors, and marines, and I am deeply grateful to them for their earnest and sincere assistance."

At the time the committee met no definite information was available from the Navy Department as to the time of the arrival of the fleet.

A Gift of Life Long Service

Have you thought of the New Encyclopaedia Britannica printed on the beautiful India paper, in any one of the lovely bindings, as a Christmas gift? There are a half dozen persons, including yourself and some of the family, for whom this great library of knowledge would be a superb present. Consider what a day after day, month after month and year after year source of pleasure and profit the Britannica will be to yourself, to your wife and to your growing children. Could anything be more appropriate, more sensible or more practical than this wonderful set of books. They must be considered as an investment that will many times repay you in the hours of profit and pleasure you will have with them.

Encyclopaedia Britannica
"Handy Volume" Issue

This celebrated work should be in every home. It is the greatest and most authoritative book of facts and information ever published. It sums up in an authoritative way all the knowledge of the world. The Britannica teems with the romance of mythology—it thrills with the adventure of explorations and discovery. It entertains and enlightens the entire family with its intelligent survey of every field of knowledge—architecture, religion, mechanics, agriculture, stock raising, electricity, biography, education, manufacture and commerce, business—everything you or any man can think of.

You are a progressive man and ambitious, with a keen desire to be more intelligent, better informed on the questions of the day—you wish to keep up with the tremendous strides of progress being made in this reconstruction period. You wish to interpret correctly questions which will be brought up during the Peace Conferences to be held soon. The Britannica will tell you whatever you like to know and will lay a splendid foundation of knowledge for you.

The Britannica is the key to knowledge in any home. It is of great value to the business man, professional man, housewife, the woman in business, farmer, clerk, the man with a hobby, the millionaire, the wage earner —every man—every woman.

In all there are 41,000 separate articles—there are 500,000 indexed facts in the new Britannica—the text is profusely and fittingly illustrated—the 29 volumes containing 15,000 splendid illustrations and 569 maps. This marvelous book was written and edited by 1,500 master minds and cost $1,500,000 to produce. The style is so clear that every member of your family can read and understand the Britannica. This great library is the supreme gift for business partner, friend, family—or for yourself.

$1 As a First Payment Will Bring You the Entire Set in Time for Christmas and You Can Pay For It in Small Monthly Payments for a Limited Period. ¶You Cannot Invest Your Money to Greater Advantage. The Britannica is the Cheapest and Best Present You Can Buy.

Don't lose any time—Christmas is almost here. Make sure of getting one of the few remaining sets of the Britannica printed on the genuine India paper.

O'LEARY OF OLD 69TH IS DEAD OF WOUNDS

Sergeant Major Was One of First American Soldiers Overseas to Capture German Prisoners.

Major Frances Eugene Dougherty was a member of the 1917 class graduated from West Point soon after this country entered the war, and was assigned to the 4th Infantry of the Regular Army as Captain in command of the Headquarters Troop. According to the official notice of his death received by his fiancée, Miss Ethel M. Sneden of West New Brighton, S. I., he was killed in the Argonne Forest on Oct. 16. He was only 23 years of age.

Chaplain Barrett P. Tyler, who went overseas with a regiment of New Jersey troops, has been shot in both legs, according to advices reaching members of his congregation of the Church of the Redeemer in Morristown, N. J. He received leave from his congregation last August.

Sergeant Major John J. O'Leary, dead of wounds, was one of the best-known members of the old 69th Regiment of the National Guard, and before the unit went to the Mexican border he had earned the reputation of being one of the best non-commissioned drillmasters. His job always was to drill the recruits, and when picked men were ordered for special guards of honor he was always consulted in the choices. He served several years in the British Army, and had one enlistment in the American Coast Artillery before he joined the 69th in 1912. Correspondents at the front credited him with being one of the first American soldiers overseas to capture German prisoners. When the 165th was fighting along the Ourcq it was reported that he accepted the banter of his comrades and went out into the German trenches early in the morning for prisoners and brought back five at the point of the bayonet. In August he was struck by machine gun bullets, and gangrene set in before the stretcher bearers were able to find him. In a letter to his sister, Mrs. Ellen Shay of 1,525 Hoe Avenue, the Bronx, while he was in hospital, he expressed a desire to die in America. Details of his death and burial were given to his wife, who lives at 412 West Fiftieth Street, in a letter from Father Duffy.

Sergt. Donato Pace, killed, had served more than ten years in the regular army before he was drafted and assigned to Co. D, 305th Infantry. He lived at 131 Thompson Street, Brooklyn, and in his last letter to his mother told of visiting the grave of his brother Connie, who was killed while running dispatches for the headquarters company of the 306th Infantry.

Lieut. Charles F. Hauptner, dead of disease, was the son of Mrs. S. L. Hauptner of 528 Riverside Drive, and enlisted in Battery D 101st Field Artillery before this country entered the war. He was commissioned at an officers' school.

Lieut. Charles A. Weston, dead of wounds, was a graduate of the Virginia Military Academy and was commissioned at the first Plattsburg camp. His first assignment was to Co. M, 305th Infantry, at Camp Upton, but he was later made battalion Adjutant in the same regiment. During the first fighting in the Argonne he was wounded, but returned to his regiment. An unofficial cablegram said that death was caused by pneumonia. He was a son of James Weston, the lawyer, and a nephew of De Lancey Nichol. He lived at 44 West Forty-fourth Street.

Lieut. Stephen W. Dickey, killed in action, was a son of Charles D. Dickey of 37 East Fifty-first Street and a member of the class of '18 at Harvard. He was commissioned at Camp Upton and assigned to Co. D, 306th Infantry, but was serving with Co. C, 110th Infantry, when he was killed in the Argonne fighting.

Corp. Horace Moore, killed when the 107th Infantry of the 27th Division broke through the Hindenburg line, was a veteran of the 71st Regiment, and had served on the Mexican border. He lived at 2,343 Third Avenue.

How Germany Must Pay

For submarine outrages—for Zeppelin raids—for ruined Belgium and devastated France? How shall she make restitution and restoration? What guaranties must she give for future good behavior? What retribution must she suffer? What shall be done with the workers of abomination, from the Kaiser down, who violated the laws of God and man?

While Justice imposes stern requirements, it is necessary to study the questions of Germany's man-power, material resources, financial ability, and political divisions.

These and all other vital after-the-war problems are discussed in striking articles each week in

A Message of Appreciation to the Public and the Druggists for their Patience and Co-operation in Meeting a National Responsibility

WHEN war was declared the Government called upon Johnson & Johnson to furnish enormous supplies of surgical dressings for first-aid stations and hospital units.

We deemed it our duty to risk all, including our good-will if need be, to serve our country and our Allies. Our good-will, built up during thirty years, was worth more to us than our profits. But our duty came first.

Since then, hundreds of millions of bandages have been made; thousands of tons of cotton have been used; miles of adhesive plaster have been spread; an army of loyal workers have kept our vast laboratories in operation day and night.

It was our great privilege to serve our country to the full extent of our resources, and these war-winning orders necessarily had right of way over the public demand.

During these trying times we know that many of our customers could not make their usual purchases of Johnson & Johnson Red Cross Products.

Normal production is not yet fully re-established, but by January conditions should be such that deliveries can be made promptly.

Today, as in the past, Johnson & Johnson quality is the standard. Manufacturing costs considered, the consumer gets greater value than ever.

Ordinarily, the druggist renders an invaluable service to his community. In these times of readjustment we are confident the public will take advantage of it all the more.

We appreciate the patriotic, whole-hearted support given by the druggists in telling customers that our products were "on active service." And our thanks are due the public for their patience.

Christmas Won't Be Christmas Without Any Presents

HUNDREDS of thousands have laughed and cried over the book that begins with that sentence.

You, who know your "Little Women," will never forget that opening chapter, where Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy discuss their Christmas plans—plans overshadowed by the privations of war.

TO-DAY thousands of women are asking in the true spirit of patriotism "What shall we do about Christmas? Shall we have the usual gifts? Or ought we to do without them?"

If it will help bring back our boys one day earlier, we are ready to forget the customary observance of Christmas, but will it!

We are all made of very human stuff. Our rightful pleasures are dear to us. Our habits are fairly well fixed. Self-denial, when it is not needed, is a bad thing for everyone concerned, and good times—our Puritan forefathers to the contrary notwithstanding—are a wonderful tonic for body and soul.

It will be infinitely better for us all to have our Christmas, and make the most possible of it, but without extravagance, without gluttony, without waste—in short a Christmas that keeps in mind the glorious victory our fighting men have earned and the imperative duty of making ample provision for their necessities.

That is the spirit in which the Woman's Home Companion approaches Christmas and the New Year.

The Companion believes that the woman makes the home. Everybody believes that at Christmas, of course, but the Companion has believed and practised that for nearly fifty years, and is today an accurate and faithful expression of the American woman's needs, deeds and thoughts.

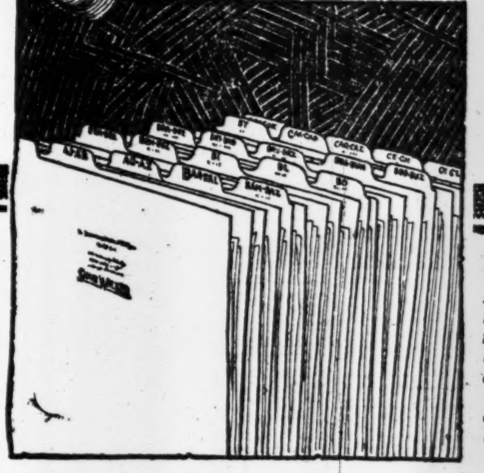
SHAW-WALKER Letter-File Guides come in heavy, stiff manila and wear-resisting press-board



Shaw-Walker alphabets are so subdivided as to file practically the same number of letters between each two guides. This insures quick finding and easy filing.

Open It and Look at the "Works"

OPEN your file drawer. What do you find? Folders that sag, bend and slip down below the level of the guides? Guides that are "dog-eared," split and torn? Alphabets that are illegible and defaced—that you have to study and study in order to know where to look for the letter you want?

That is not the quality that means a smooth-running office. It is not quality such as Shaw-Walker for 19 years has been building into its indexes, guides, folders and cards.

We can supply you with indexes, from stock, that fit your needs as though specially devised for your business. We can supply you with guides, folders, cards, etc., that are long lived and sturdy—far outlasting the ordinary filing supplies.

Furthermore—we can supply you with a file clerk who will keep your files supremely accurate and neat, a file clerk who knows filing from the ground up—the basic principles, the short cuts, all the fine points. Or, for slight expense, we will train one of your own file clerks to 100 per cent filing efficiency.

"Built Like a Skyscraper"
TRADE MARK

Over a year ago we demanded that our hosiery mill supply a silk-plated sock that might be sold this season, with reasonable profit, for 50 cents a pair.

It couldn't be done.

We contracted for 18,000 pairs that look good enough to fetch a dollar, the way things go these days. Marked them 75 cents and waited.

The profit is to the wearer. A good Christmas gift.

How about a $3.50 Camp Toilet Case, now $2.25, for a soldier who's still on the job, or the Boy Scout who's looking forward to his next Summer's hike?

Gift order forms are in order for those wishing to give warm, woolen suits and overcoats, or anything else men and boys wear.

They Come Back

The great circle of regular Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoe wearers among men and women is constantly growing as more and more people discover the healthful principle on which these shoes are made.

Men who have worn them for years come back season after season usually asking to be fitted in the same style shoe they have been wearing.

This is the greatest recommendation for Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoes that we know of.

SHORT TRAINING TRIPS FOR BIG LEAGUE TEAMS

CLUBS WILL LIMIT SPRING TRAINING

Both Leagues May Adopt Rule Barring Trips South of the Carolinas.

ECONOMY IS WATCHWORD

Giants and Yankees Practically Abandon Plans for Sending Teams to Florida.

All of the sixteen major league clubs will probably curtail their training trips next Spring, and those which do not train at home will be limited to trips no further South than the Carolinas. This is the proposition which it is expected will be adopted when the two major leagues hold their joint session here on Jan. 16.

This policy is simply one of the many which will be adopted next season for economy. A major league official said during the recent baseball meetings that not one major league club showed a profits on its books at the end of last season. In fact, many of them lost so much money that training trips to Southern States in the Spring would be out of the question. The high railroad mileage and Pullman fares is the principle reason that the trips to the States in the extreme South have been abandoned.

Many baseball officials believe that it would be unfair to the weaker clugs which are compelled to stay in the North because of lack of funds if the more prosperous clubs were to go to Southern climes a month before the season opens and come back in midseason form. It is only fair to all teams that the Spring training should be as uniform as possible.

While there may be protests from a few clubs about curtailing Spring training trips, it is believed that for the good of the game all the teams will follow the same training tactics. The Chicago Cubs have been planning to go to California again, but Manager-President Mitchell said during the recent meeting here that the trip was not by any means a certainty.

On account of the high price of transportation the Giants, generally conceded to be one of the most prosperous clubs in the game, have decided to give up the trip to Marlin Springs, Texas. Manager McGraw has been considering a trip to one of the resorts in Florida, but as the players are not expected to be called until April 1 it is believed that it will be too warm in Florida for hard training. The Yankees also have been planning to pass up Macon, Ga., this season and try a Florida resort, but with the change in the start of the season to May 1 Manager Huggins is not so enthusiastic about sending his men down to get toasted alive.

Florida would not be desirable as a training camp after April 1, for the Winter visitors who patronize the exhibition games will have all left for the North by that time.

After April 1 the weather north of the Carolinas is very suitable for training. For several years, the Washington club trained at Charlottesville, Va., and there are any number of places within a short distance of Washington where the clubs can train. The saving would be great, and the chances for better exhibition games in Northern cities during the latter part of April would be far more favorable than the early dates on which the clubs have played in the past.

PHILS TO TRAIN AT HOME.

Club Will Probably Play Spring Series with Athletics.

It has been decided that the Philadelphia National League club will train at home this year if the league adopts a 140-game schedule opening the season May 1. This announcement was made by William F. Baker, President of the club, who favors the original suggestion made by Connie Mack.

It is expected that a Spring series between the two Philadelphia teams will be played as part of the training of the clubs.

TO RESUME BASKET BALL.

Metropolitan A. A. U. Will Sponsor Tournament to Begin in January.

After a period of inactivity extending over eight years the Metropolitan A. A. U. is again going to sponsor championship basket ball tournaments, according to an announcement made yesterday following a meeting of officials of the association and club representatives at the St. George Club. The initial step in the rehabilitation of the court game will be taken early in January, when a district championship tournament will be promoted for teams averaging 145 pounds.

Subsequently it is planned to conduct tournaments for teams of 125 pounds and unlimited weight. Tentative plans for these latter tournaments are already under consideration, but their adoption depends on the success of the 145-pound title tournament. A further cause for a delay in conducting an unlimited weight tournament is the lack of players of this class, who are expected to return to the local clubs with the demobilization of the nation's military and naval forces at the conclusion of peace.

The plans for the 145-pound tournament will be completed at a meeting to be held around Jan. 2. On this date the entries will close and the officials will immediately get together for the purpose of arranging a schedule and deciding on other details. It is planned to arrange a home and home series in which the team scoring the greatest number of victories will be awarded the title. Regulation association championship medals will be distributed among eight members of the leading three teams. The clubs will be permitted to enter teams of ten men each, to provide for substitutes in emergencies.

Representatives of the following organizations attended the meeting and agreed to enter teams in the tournament:

Morningside A. C., St. George's Club, Grace Club, Peoples Palace A. A., Union Settlement A. C., Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A., St. Christopher Club, Pennant A. C., Alpha Club, McCombs A. C., St. Anselm's A. C., St. Jerome's C. C., Knights of St. Anthony A. C., Bronx Church House, Glencoe A. C., Hollywood Inn A. A., Loughlin Lyceum, Mohawk A. C., National Turn Verein of Newark, and Brooklyn Centre Y. M. C. A.

CLARK DEFEATS MULDAUR.

Elin Too Much for Gershell in Cue Title Play.

G. Clark gained the decision over M. Muldaur yesterday afternoon in the 18.2-balkline billiard tournament for the championship of the A. A. B. A. at the Morningside Billiard Academy. The score was 250 to 133. Clark made a high run of 31, with an average of 5. Muldaur's highest was 18, and he averaged 2 35-49.

In the evening game M. Elin defeated W. Gershell by the score of 250 to 111. Elin made a high run of 27 and averaged 7 26-32. Gershell's high run was 17, and he averaged 3 18-31.

Shore Now an Ensign.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 17.—Ernest Shore, former pitcher for the Boston American League team, was graduated today from the Naval Officers' Material School here with the rank of Ensign. He enlisted in the navy directly after the declaration of war with several other members of the Red Sox team.

Collegiate Beats Berkeley-Irving.

Collegiate School's basket ball team defeated the Berkeley-Irving School five in a closely contested game yesterday on the Collegiate court by a score of 13 to 7. Harold Cook was an important factor in the Collegiate triumph. He scored nine of his team's points.

ERASMUS VICTOR IN TANK.

Burrill and Ross Swim Fast in Dual Meet with Commerce.

Joseph Burrill and Clarence Ross led the swimming team of Erasmus Hall High School to an overwhelming victory over the High School of Commerce aquatic team yesterday in the latter school's pool. The score was 45 to 8.

Burrill was victorious in two events, and aided in bringing victory to his team in another. He eclipsed, or helped to eclipse, two records now on the P. S. A. L. books, but performances will not be accepted because of the ruling that such achievements must be recorded in championship competition.

The speedy Erasmus Hall swimmer captured the 100-yard swim in convincing fashion, and was clocked in one minute. The record in the latest P. S. A. L. handbook is 1:02 1-5, made by Ted Cann in 1915, when he was swimming for the Commerce team.

In the 160-yard relay swim Burrill was an important factor in an Erasmus Hall triumph, the time being 1:35. This is twelve and four-fifths seconds faster than the record made by the Commerce team back in 1907. Burrill's other success came in the dive for form competition, when he scored 27 points, one marker better than the total of Schwartzburg of Commerce.

The summaries:

160-Yard Relay Swim.—Won by Erasmus Hall H. S., (Burrill, Ross, Franken, and McMullen;) High School of Commerce, second. Time—1:35.

100-Yard Swim.—Won by Burrill, Erasmus Hall; McMullen, Erasmus Hall, second; Dorfman, Commerce, third. Time—1:00.

50-Yard Swim.—Won by McMullen, Erasmus Hall; Franken, Erasmus Hall, second; Stengader, Commerce, third. Time—0:28 1-5.

220-Yard Swim.—Won by Ross, Erasmus Hall; Bleyer, Commerce, second; Sattener, Commerce, third. Time—2:31.

Plunge for Distance.—Won by Ross, Erasmus Hall, with 42 feet, in 0:17; Suskind, Erasmus Hall, 42 feet in 0:18, second; Liebman, Commerce, 42 feet in 0:24, third.

Dive for Form.—Won by Burrill, Erasmus Hall, with 27 points; Schwartzburg, Commerce, 26 points, second; Kirkpatrick, Erasmus Hall, 25 points, third.

Point Score—Erasmus Hall, 45; Commerce, 8.

SPRINT DECIDES RACE.

Zabludofsky Wins by Close Margin in Clark House A. A. Run.

A sprint in the final few yards of his journey gave P. Zabludofsky of the Morningside A. C. a victory last night over Charles De Stefano, Mohawk A. C., in the Clark House A. A. invitation road race, held over a course of about four and one-half miles. These two harriers led a fair-sized field over the entire course, frequently alternating in the lead. In the dash for the tape, however, the Morningside A. C. athlete proved the stronger and won by a close margin. Zabludofsky's time was 26:30 and De Stefano was one-fifth of a second behind him.

The order of finish follows:

P. Zabludofsky, Morningside A. C., 26:30; C. De Stefano, Mohawk A. C., 26:30 1-5; George Thompson, High School of Commerce, 27:15; L. Melofsky, Kings County A. A., 27.49; H. Levengrub, Boys' Club, 28:43; S. Rochnes, Seward A. A., 29:00; R. Lewis, Clark House A. A., 29:10; S. Inselbuch, Clark House A. A., 29:15; O. Pollack, Kings County A. A., 29:34; A. Bock, Clark House A. A., 29:40; L. Beck, Clark House A. A., 29:41.

GOULDING IS REINSTATED.

Kennel Club Acts Favorably on Appeal from Six Months' Suspension.

A nominating committee, which will have control over the nomination of all officers of the American Kennel Club, was appointed yesterday at the quarterly meeting of the A. K. C., held in the offices of the organization at 1 Liberty Street. This action has long been advocated by members of the organization as a progressive measure.

Another important matter was disposed of when the Executive Committee voted to reinstate Arthur Goulding, owner of a boarding kennel, who had been suspended for a period of six months because of alleged inaccuracy in the breeding of a dog. Goulding's suspension was to have been effective until March, but as a result of the favorable action taken on his appeal for reinstatement he will be restored to good standing again after Jan. 1.

Reginald McI. Cleveland and Elbridge Gerry Snow, Jr., were elected as delegates. Cleveland will represent the Shepherd Dog Club of America and Snow the Ladies' Dog Club of New England.

The delegates present included:

BASKET BALL FOR BENEFIT.

C. C. N. Y. and All-Star Fives to Play for Aid of Jewish War Fund Drive.

Arrangements have been completed to stage a basket ball game between the 'Varsity five of City College and the Collegiate All Stars, composed of former stars of universities, for the benefit of the Jewish war sufferers, on Saturday, Dec. 21, at the gymnasium of the College of the City of New York. The veteran City College five will stack up against one of the best aggregations of stars merged into one team, and a good game is assured.

There will be a preliminary game between the freshman five and the Scholastic All Stars, another crack team. The preliminary game will start at 8 o'clock sharp.

The following players will line up with the Collegiate All Stars: Tischinsky, (C. C. N. Y.,) left forward; Sontag, (Stuyvesant,) right forward; Klat, (Savage,) left guard; Baker, (N. Y. U.) right guard; Specht, (Brooklyn Polytech,) centre; Reimers, (Rensselaer.) The game will be refereed by Tom Thorpe of Columbia University.

Scudder and Cahill Are Winners.

S. Scudder defeated Dr. Birs last night in a closely contested three-cushion billiard game at Doyle's Academy by a score of 25 to 22 in thirty innings. Scudder made a high break of 5, while Birs's highest was 6. Tonight E. Rogers will oppose C. Maxwell. In English billiards E. Cahill beat F. Griffth by the score of 250 to 169 in sixteen innings, the high breaks being 24 and 21, respectively.

Meehan, C. C. N. Y. Coach, Killed.

Word reached this city yesterday of the death in action of Lieutenant George Meehan, who formerly was attached to the Brookline Swimming Club, Brookline, Mass. Lieutenant Meehan gained his commission at Plattsburgh. Before entering the training school he was swimming coach at City College. He held the record for swimming from the Battery to Sandy Hook, a feat he accomplished in 1914.

COLUMBIA DECIDES TO RESUME SPORTS

Coaches for Track, Swimming, and Polo Teams Named by Athletic Committee.

All sports will be continued by Columbia University next Spring, in so far as that is possible under the conditions that may prevail. This was the decision reached by the Columbia University Committee on Athletics at a meeting held yesterday and as reported by Levering Tyson, graduate manager of athletics.

In order to further this scheme two coaches were appointed by the committee, one for the track and field team and the other for the swimming and water polo teams. Carl Merner was named as track coach and will report for duty at Columbia on Jan. 1. Merner was engaged last Spring to coach the track squad, but resigned to enter the service. George Holm, who has been acting as swimming coach, was selected to coach the swimming and water polo teams. He will probably be assisted by graduates and will go up to Morningside Heights from time to time.

A preliminary report on the 1918 football season was submitted by Tyson, which showed that the S. A. T. C. football team had broken even on the year, which ended with the game with Syracuse on Thanksgiving Day. The report indicated that all sports at Columbia during the Fall were conducted by the Canteen Council of the Post Exchange and were wholly without the control of the university authorities or the university athletic association. Soccer was conducted on the same basis as football. The salaries of the coach and trainer and all other expenses, with the exception of a few small bills, which are still outstanding, have been paid, and the final accounts will probably show a slight profit on the season. The committee passed a vote of thanks to Major Herbert C. Earnshaw, commandant of the S. A. T. C. post, and Rear Admiral Taussig, commander of the naval unit.

STEINBUGLER WINS EASILY.

Defeats Romberg by Goodly Margin in Billiard Tourney.

C. Steinbugler registered his first victory in the N. A. A. B. P. Metropolitan Class C 18.2-balkline billiard championship tournament at the Broadway Academy last night, when he defeated A. Romberg. The score was 150 to 115, in forty-two innings. Steinbugler made a high run of 22 and averaged 3 24-42. Romberg's highest run was 18 and his average was 2 33-41.

EASY FOR CRESCENT FIVE.

New Moon Basket Ball Team Trounces Armed Guard.

The Crescent A. C.'s basket ball quintet overwhelmed the Brooklyn Armed Guard team last night on the New Moon court in Brooklyn and annexed its third straight victory. The final count favored the Crescent team by 50 to 16.

The New Moon athletes clearly outclassed and outplayed the sailors. At the whistle in the first half the Crescents were leading by 22 ot 5, and this margin was increased proportionately through the second half. Heath was the leader in the New Moon offensive, accounting for eight field baskets. Austin got four.

The lineup:

Crescent, (50.)	Position.	Guard, (16.)
Herten	R. F.	Jackson
Heath	L. F.	Van Zandt
McTigue	C.	March
Ashmead	R. G.	Clark
Austin	L. G.	Parks

Field goals—Herten, 3; Heath, 8; McTigue, 2; Ashmead, 2; Austin, 4; Irving, 2; McCann, 3; March, 2; Jackson, Clerk, Brown. Goals from foul—Ashmead, 2; Van Zandt, 2; March 4. Substitutions—For Crescent A. C.: McCann for Heath, Kleinert for McTigue, Nahmacher for Ashmead, Irving for Austin; for Armed Guard: Brown for Parks. Referee—Mr. O'Brien, Central Y. M. C. A., Broowlyn. Times of halves—Fifteen minutes.

Masterson Hopes to Regain Today His Amateur Status.

Whether Frank Masterson, former New York A. C. and Mohawk A. C. athlete, will be restored to amateur standing, is a question which will be decided today when the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan A. A. U. gathers for a special session. Masterson's case will be the most important matter up for decision. The former runner professionalized himself several years ago when he accepted a position as coach of the Swedish-American A. C. track team.

"How can my husband get out of the rut?"

The American Magazine asked Ralph C. Peters, President and Federal Manager of the Long Island Railroad.

"Don't let yourself get stale," he says.

"Keep the inlet open to new ideas. Also keep the outlet open.

"Keep doing.

"Be interested in your work.

"Take some time to play."

These are some of the suggestions. Old as the human race, you say? Sure. But they are the rules of a man who has applied them and made good. They are not outlawed yet.

JEWISH WAR DRIVE NOW IN FINAL DAY

BROOKLYN'S $500,000 GIFT

School Children of City Turn In $25,000 as Leaders Speed Relief to War Sufferers Oversea.

To reach the goal of $5,000,000, the Jewish War Relief Campaign must produce total pledges today—the last of the drive—amounting to $739,000. At yesterday's gathering of the campaign workers at the Hotel Biltmore headquarters there were reported subscriptions of more than $620,000, which brought the sum realized by the drive thus far to approximately $4,261,000.

The feature of the day's accomplishments was a pledge of $500,000 for Brooklyn. This big contribution, which brought the campaigners within measurable distance of their goal, was pledged by Max Abelman on behalf of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities. That body has not the sum in hand, but has agreed to raise it, and announced that for the purpose it would introduce a campaign in its own borough during the month of February. Another sizeable addition to the total came with the receipt of a report that the canvass among school children of the city would net not less than $25,000.

These subscriptions were announced by the various teams yesterday:

The Joint Distribution Committee of the American Fund for Jewish War Sufferers, the collecting and disbursing agency for Jewish benevolence abroad, held its first public meeting yesterday, joining with the campaign workers in bidding farewell to Dr. Boris D. Bogen, who starts immediately for Europe to direct the disbursing of the $10,000,000 fund of which New York Jews now are engaged in raising one-half.

Jacob H. Schiff, Felix M. Warburg, director of the drive, and Harry Fischel, all representing the Central Committee, together with Meyer Gillis, representing the People's Relief Committee, and Cyrus L. Sulzberger, as spokesman for the American Relief Committee, joined in paying tribute to Dr. Bogen. This will be Dr. Bogen's second visit to Europe in the interest of Jewish philanthropy, and he will be followed shortly by representatives of the three constituent committees of the Joint Distribution Committee.

Many interesting contributions from organizations were announced at yesterday's gathering of the committee. The Central Synagogue, of which Dr. Nathan Krass is the Rabbi, contributed $2,010. Through Harry G. Fromberg, the Young Israel Synagogue contributed $5,000 with the encouraging announcement that the collections in this east side Synagogue would reach more than $7,000, virtually all in sums averaging less than $1 each.

Public School 184 contributed $49.75. Private Charles J. Gogel, of the Quartermaster's Corps, Governor's Island, sent in a collection amounting to $17 from soldiers in the office staff. A gift of $2 was received from two Brooklyn school children. The Ottynier Progressive Young Ladies' and Young Men's Club, David Bindelglass, Secretary, turned in $25; the Society B'nai Salem, $50; Lodzer Lodge No. 123, $205; David Bresler, for employes of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in the Harlem district, $143.25.

Mrs. Felix Ullman sent $10 "in memory of Private Irving Blanstein." Bendin Sosnowicir K. U. V., gave $40; the Garfield Club, of the Federation Settlement, $10; Italian School, of Children's Aid Society, $4; children of Children's Aid Society, $25; First Przemysler S. B. Society, $50; Congregation B'nai Scholom Anshe Seimel, $10; First New Sandez Sish and Benefit Society, $200; Hungarian Society of New York, $50; employes of Prudential Insurance Company, New York, $50; congregation Kahal Adath Joshurun, of the Bronx, $150; Spanish and Portuguese congregation Brith Sholom, through J. deA. Benjune, $300.

DEATH OF MAJOR MANNING.

Father of Slain Officer Receives Tribute from Gen. Kuhn.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 17.—From Major Gen. Joseph E. Kuhn, Governor Manning has received the following letter regarding the death of his son, Major William Sinkler Manning, formerly of THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"Near Verdun, Nov. 22, 1918.

"His Excellency the Governor of South Carolina.

"My Dear Sir: Before this can reach you the War Department will certainly have acquainted you with the death in action of your son, Major William S. Manning, 316th Infantry of the 79th Division.

"I write you as a man and father to convey to you my deep sympathy for the great bereavement you have suffered. As Major Manning's Commanding General, I write to tell you that a braver soldier never faced an enemy and that in making the supreme sacrifice he set an example of courage and devotion to duty which serves as an inspiration for the entire command.

"Almost from the organization of the 79th Division, some fourteen months ago, my attention was called to Major, then Captain Manning. His ability, soldierly bearing, and gentlemanly conduct won for him the regard and respect of all his comrades, who deeply feel his loss.

"Major Manning received his promotion the very day the division entered the line on the heights north of Verdun and east of the Meuse, where hot fighting was in progress. He fell, gallantly leading his men, one week later, Nov. 5.

"I have recommended that the Distinguished Service Cross be awarded for extraordinary gallantry in action and trust it will be granted. Very sincerely,

"JOSEPH E. KUHN,

POLES MASS BIG ARMY.

Alliance with Democratic Party of Posen Is Predicted.

BERNE, Dec. 17, (Havas.)—According to dispatches received here the Polish General Staff has called for the mobilization of the classes extending from 1883 to 1901.

It is asserted that the mobilization will bring to the colors 1,500,000 men.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—In discussing the severance of relations between Poland and Germany, the Petit Journal forsees an alliance in the near future of the Polish Government with the democratic party of Posen (German Poland.)

CHICAGO AIR MAIL TODAY.

To Leave Belmont Park at 6 A. M. —Due There in Afternoon.

Plans for starting the air mail service between this city and Chicago from Belmont Park at 6 o'clock this morning were completed last night by officials of the railway mail service here in cooperation with Richard M. Thomas, manager of Belmont Field. Planes will leave for Chicago today and are expected to arrive late this afternoon. No attempt will be made to have a single plane or aviator fly the entire distance, but the first plane, scheduled to have been flown by Leon D. Smith, formerly a civilian instructor employed by the army at the Texas flying fields, will land at Bellefonte, Penn., about 220 miles to Cleveland and a third relay will take the mail into Chicago.

Letters for the Chicago air mail, it was announced, will be received every morning as late as 3 A. M. at the General Post Office, Thirty-third Street and Eighth Avenue.

Trade Test Office Here.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A demonstration office of the Federal Employment Service is to be opened soon in New York City for the purpose of determining to what extent trade tests should be used in examining soldiers and sailors who apply for work in special trades. If it develops that such tests are necessary, this system will be put into effect over the entire country.

MUSIC

By James Gibbons Huneker

The Philadelphia Orchestra.

It was ladies' day yesterday afternoon at Carnegie Hall, where the Philadelphia Orchestra gave its second concert of the series. The Brahms Symphony in F dripped sweetness. Leopold Stokowski was never more mellifluous, Ossip Gabrilowitsch was near saccharine, and even the kettle drummer tapped in the key of caramel. Any experienced diagnostician would have found the index card of the program rather overburdened with sugar; in a word, a diathesis not to have been expected from the names of Brahms, Rachmaninoff, and Rimsky-Korsakov. The reason for all this linked sweetness long drawn out may have been the belated Indian Summer weather, or the fact that so many of the uneasy sex filled the seats of the mighty. Look out for this blond young man from the Quaker City! The watchmen in the critical towers should follow his every move. He is to give three more concerts here with his Quaker musical oats. Next season he may give a dozen—that is, judging from the enthusiasm of his auditors on this occasion. And the season after? Who shall abide by the time of his going then? He may conduct Cosmopolis itself, for he is ambitious, and he does know how to lead an orchestra with telling effect.

But yesterday his Polish blood ruled the musical roost. At his first concert last month he was wholly Celtic in his Tschaikovsky interpretation, the F minor symphony. Sarmatia, lovely land of Chopin, permeated the third Brahms, and with beautiful results in the third movement. The opening Allegro—already heard three times thus far this season—was smooth as velvet. When, we despairingly asked ourselves, are we to hear that magnificent passage sweeping down for almost two octaves, like some gigantic bird after its prey? Neither Stransky nor Damrosch gave the curving line, nor yet did Stokowski. Why? Because there is little hint of such an image in the score, when the figure simply cries aloud for impassioned treatment. Some day Brahms will cease to be academic or sentimental. He is virile, even most gracious. However, in all fairness Mr. Stokowski read the work in an essentially romantic key; too much so in the Andante, which was transformed into an Adagio; truly the Prayer from "Zampa." In the finale the band played its prettiest. It was Hungarian à la Zingarese, à la Margher, then Isla. But Brahms too perfumed.

Batuisha Gabrilowitsch played the second, the C minor Rachmaninoff pianoforte concerto, which he had played here just ten years ago with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, (Dec. 3, 1908.) It was a loving performance and he fairly won his many recalls. Especially in the slow movement was he greatly artistic. His coronal of hair, his antique collar, so high that it almost blurred his Louis Philippe profile, his exquisite touch—why, you exclaimed "Is it le cher pauvre Frédéric" masquerading as a Russian? And then there was Stokowski giving a perfect accompaniment—he, too, has a Chopin profile, the profile of the Bovy medallion. Yet the concerto, pleasant as it is to hear, is not very individual. The facture is admirable. The Slavic melancholy pervades every bar of the Adagio, but banal at times. Too much tonic and dominant. The scherzando is cleverly constructed, and the present conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra distinguished himself as a virtuoso. The Capriccio Espagnol by the Russian Berlioz, Rimsky-Korsakov, closed an afternoon overflowing with milk and honey, (otherwise marmalade and Devonshire cream.) The concertmaster, Thaddeus Rich; the first violoncellist, Hans Kindler, and the harpist played the solos with finish. Mr. Stokowski was, with Mr. Gabrilowitsch, heroically acclaimed.

McCormack in 'Butterfly' Next Week

While the Metropolitan stars were off to Philadelphia yesterday with three little Puccini operas fresh from a world-premiere, the same bill was posted on Broadway for Monday next, when it will open the season's seventh week. Caruso will sing in "Pagliacci," preceded by "Cavalleria," at a special Christmas matinée, and also in "Samson et Dalila" on Friday, with Mme. Homer. Saturday-week will see a matinée production of Weber's "Oberon."

John McCormack will rejoin the cast in "Madame Butterfly" on Thursday with Mme. Farrar. Mme. Hempel will sing Christmas night in "The Daughter of the Regiment" and Saturday night in "Traviata." On Tuesday there is a Christmas Eve "Aida," in Brooklyn. An added star at Sunday's concert will be the famous cantor Josef Rosenblatt.

FOR WAR ON SHOPLIFTERS.

Big Stores Form Association to Try to Diminish Losses.

The Stores' Mutual Protective Association, Inc., organized to suppress shoplifting and petty thievery in department stores here, yesterday gave out a series of letters from the District Attorneys of New York and Kings, the Police Department, Magistrates, and Special Sessions Justices praising the plans of the organization and promising co-operation in the campaign.

Detectives have been hired by the association, and a sign similar to that used by the members of the American Bankers' Association is displayed in the windows of the stores of members. The members are Abraham & Straus, B. Altman & Co., Best & Co., Bloomingdale Brothers, Gimbel Brothers, James A. Hearn & Son, Inc., Frederick Loeser & Co., Lord & Taylor, John Wanamaker, James McCreery & Co., R. H. Macy & Co., A. I. Namm & Son, Oppenheim, Collins & Co., Saks & Co., Franklin Simon & Co., and Stern Brothers.

French Hotels Bar Foe for 10 Years.

PARIS, Dec. 17, (Havas.)—The General Syndicate of French Hotel Men announces that it has decided that for ten years it will not receive a native of enemy countries as an employe or customer. This decision will be transmitted to organizations of hotel men in all the allied countries.

500 GUNS A MONTH OUR ARMY OUTPUT

This Quantity Reached in Addition to Vast Artillery Supplies Sent to the Allies.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Faced by a program of producing 2,000 guns of all calibres per month, without disturbing the flow of guns to the allied nations or the navy's prior right, the Ordnance Bureau of the War Department had achieved an output of about 500 guns a month when the armistice ended hostilities. By June of next year, production would have been in full swing.

Many American gun forgings and completed guns have been sent to Great Britain, and shipments to the French armies had reached a total of 1,000 guns a month.

The needs of the navy as the second defense line also gave it priority, and the Shipping Board came next in the list for steel and other commodities needed to carry out the huge program mapped out for the American Army itself. This placed the American ordnance program fourth on the list, with the necessity of building from the ground up, as every existing facility for gun manufacture was in use.

A striking feature of what was accomplished, it was shown by officers at the proving ground, was the fact that in the 155-MM howitzer program, an output had been reached that exceeded the estimated needs of the American forces even on the basis of 4,000,000 men in France, and 600 howitzers were sold to France as excess.

The Rose of No Man's Land

CHORUS:

"There's a rose that grows on 'No Man's Land'
And it's wonderful to see,
Though it's sprayed with tears,
It will live for years,
In my garden of memory.
It's the one red rose the soldier knows,
It's the work of the Master's hand,

ORDER OUT OF CHAOS.

There are some signs that the German people, the real majority mass of the people, are trying to make their voices heard, their influence felt. The attempt to convoke the Reichstag was an indication of this purpose, reactionary though it may have been. There has been no actual "revolution" in Germany, no Government has been set up. There was no uprising of the people to depose their autocratic master and make themselves free. What happened was that the armies were beaten, the Kaiser ran away, and then the Socialists, of two or three varieties, proceeded to organize Councils of Workmen and Soldiers, after the Russian model, and a body of Commissioners of the People was called into being which took upon itself the duties of a Ministry or Government. In these proceedings the great mass of the people had no voice; the councils and the commission are not representative bodies, or at most are representative only of a class; and the resulting "government" has no claim to legitimacy.

Chaotic conditions have resulted which have at times tended dangerously toward the actual chaos that prevails in Russia. Germany has been spared that extreme affliction because it is inhabited by an educated people, the illiteracy and ignorance that prevail in Russia being the most favorable possible medium for the spreading of the Bolshevist malady; because it has a very large middle class, the "bourgeois" element, possessing not only some property, but a good deal of common sense and soberness of mind; and because there are in Germany great numbers of intelligent men with considerable training in politics who are capable of leadership. The extreme Socialists, the Spartacides, who would have been glad to repeat in Germany the horrors of Russian Bolshevism, in whose minds the issues of the class struggle are put above all others, are a small group. That they are outnumbered, distrusted, rejected, appears from what happened in Berlin yesterday. The Majority Socialists do represent a very much larger element of the German population. They have felt that they had a right to speak for the German workingmen, and the immense development of industries in Germany has made that class much more numerous than the corresponding class in Russia, which, through sodden ignorance, became the proletariat in the Bolshevist sense of that word. The German factory workers could not be so easily betrayed into courses of anarchy and destruction, and even they do not appear to be in control of the soldiers. But the middle class, who are neither aristocrats nor factory workers, have yet to be heard from.

They are in a way to be heard from if the course which political events are now taking in Germany shall continue. A Congress of Delegates representing the local Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils met in Berlin yesterday, and as its first achievement put down the radicals, who are most numerous and active in the capital, where the Spartacus group has been conspicuous. This Congress, it is expected, will take action to establish a new Executive Committee, and will make provision for a National Convention. When delegates to the National Convention or Constituent Assembly have been chosen Germany will, for the first time, be on the way toward the establishment of a legitimate, representative Government. It may be a Socialist Government, for the whole world knows that Germany is the home of socialism. In the election of national delegates in the former Duchy of Anhalt the Majority Socialists polled 92,229 votes and the combined bourgeois votes totaled 66,951. This would indicate that there will be a substantial opposition party in Germany, made up of representatives of the middle class with leanings toward conservatism, at least with a strong aversion to Bolshevism.

Not only the German people, but the nations that have been fighting Germany, all the world, have an immediate interest in the setting up of a responsible Government. It will be impossible for the Allies to make a satisfactory peace until such a Government has been established. It would be a farce to sit down at the conference table and make a treaty with the plenipotentiaries of a heterogeneous lot of Workmen's and Soldiers' Councils, self-chosen, not representative, and liable at any time to be dispossessed of even the small estate of power which they have usurped. When a National Assembly has met, when a Constitution has been adopted, and officers have been installed who will hold and exercise their powers through the declared will of the German people, there will be a sovereignty with which it will be possible to negotiate and to make a treaty. The congress now in session in Berlin has, of course, no valid title as a representative or constituent body; it corresponds rather to a group of volunteer citizens who, in this country or in any other, might call a mass meeting where action would be taken for the organization of a political party which ultimately through the presentation and election of candidates might establish its regularity and become representative. But since the congress has assembled with a view to ordering the election of a Constituent Assembly it affords ground for the hope that Germany may presently have a Government.

NAVY WEEK.

Christmas week will be Navy Week in New York. Before the war in Europe the fighting ships of the Atlantic Fleet used to drop anchor in the North River for a Fourth of July holiday, and our people had an opportunity to get into intimate touch with the service, which in those days always aroused more enthusiasm than the army. The spectacle of sea power—everybody took to the water in excursion craft to see the ships—was an aid to recruiting, and New York in gala dress played the host to officers and men. No one then dreamed that the American Navy would ever be in battle array in European waters in a great war of nations. Admiral RODMAN's dreadnoughts and destroyers which are to steam up the Hudson just before Christmas will be a victory fleet, and the spirit of welcome will be very different from that which stirred our people when the Atlantic Fleet came here to make a holiday in the serene and careless days of peace.

New York will see the destroyers that fought Germany's treacherous submarines through many anxious nights and days; it will see the great battleships that were always stripped for action for the test with Germany's High Seas Fleet, and which, as a reinforcement of the British Navy, had so much to do with deciding the issue of the war. "When the 6th [Amer-"ican] Battle Squadron became part "of the Grand Fleet," Admiral BEATTY said, in his farewell address to Admiral RODMAN and his officers, "I "knew that they [the Germans] "would throw up their hands." The ships of the High Seas Fleet came out at last, only to be taken as captives to a British base, American warships witnessing the humiliating surrender. The German Admiralty had understood from the first that the American superdreadnoughts were superior in gun power to its own battleships and that to seek a decision with the Allies would be to court overwhelming and immediate disaster. Always decisive as a factor in the sea campaign were the ten powerful vessels which New York will soon see forging past its skyscrapers.

As a spectacle of sea power the homecoming fleet will be joined by dreadnoughts of the home station, like the New Mexico, North Dakota, and Delaware, together with destroyers of the new construction, which have no superiors. No Fourth of July pageant in these waters ever made such an exhibition of naval strength as will be viewed in the Hudson in Christmas week. The German Navy at its best could never match the fleet which will be led by the giants Arizona and Pennsylvania. And no navy in the world has today a finer personnel than will be seen in the parade and review of 25,000 American bluejackets which is set for the day after Christmas.

THE GREETINGS OF FRANCE.

What is not logical is not French. What is not in good taste is not French. These are ancient aphorisms, approved by modern practice. The visit of Mr. WILSON at Paris, the speeches made to and by him, give us a measure not only of French literature as the expression of French life, but also the measure of our own. That the national life is infinitely more important than the few signal voices that speak for it for a generation or two and are then forgotten or merely registered in some "Cours Littéraire" is as commonplace as ordinary life. What might stir up the wearied observer of the sayings and doings of former men is the fact that these Frenchmen, honoring Mr. WILSON, the voice of the United States, speak one language of moderation, of "measure," of precision, and still of good hope.

The ceremonial speeches made by the President of the Paris Municipal Council, for example, his little address, a jewel of well-bred compliment to Mrs. WILSON, without excess, worthy of inheritors of the old Greek, "nothing too much," might have been written by the Academy itself. Their felicity of phrase, their urbanity of style, their calmness of recital in dealing with wrongs unforgivable and irremediable, their sobriety of judgment, their cogent, manly way of speaking of the inhuman wrongs done to France; their thought, suffused, but not made undignified, by the memory of outrages unworthy of cannibals—the tact, the delicacy, the sense of the actual, the just but not excessive concession to emotion, the remembrance of a great history and tradition, all France, from the Oath of Verdun and the Song of Roland to the Tiger, are there.

The sense of civic and national dignity, the unconscious survival of noble examples, the distinction of expression and of demeanor—all France, the France in which "nothing that is not clear is not French," are there. He misses much who doesn't read carefully the speeches of M. MITHOUARD, President of the Municipal Council of Paris. Yet, it is just to say that he who has not read the speeches of Mr. WILSON in Paris has missed much more. Their sobriety, their logic, their interpretation of thought and emotion, suggested or expressed with restraint, their clearness, sagacity, and good form, their perfection of taste, allied with great, generous sentiments, not exhibited but indicated—this was French and American. It was the taste of the Academy and the feeling of a nation.

STRANGE STORY FROM ICELAND.

A blood-curdling tale of German fiendishness contemplated but never carried out is reported by AXEL AABEL, an Icelandic engineer. It seems that a German scientist in Reykjavik, whose stay in that city must have been viewed with alarm by those who were in his confidence, told Mr. AABEL that in a few years more Germany would have been irresistible in war, for she would have made drug fiends of all the other nations of the world. Into well-known German brands of tooth paste and patent medicines—naturally for export only—habit-forming drugs were to be introduced; at first a little, then more, as the habit grew on the non-German victim and his system craved ever greater quantities. Already the test had been made on natives in Africa, who responded readily; if the General Staff had not been in such a hurry German scientists would have made their task an easy one, for in a few years Germany would have fallen upon a world which cried for its German tooth paste and soothing syrup—a world of "cokeys" and "hop fiends" which would have been absolutely helpless when a German embargo shut off the supply of its pet poison.

But although the tale of this Teuton-all-too-Teuton scheme is probably a mere invention, German did concoct and spread through the world a habit-forming drug, and her leaders in this war have made good use of its ravages in other countries. More than half a century ago socialism was invented in Germany; and the rulers of the empire, foreseeing its vast possibilities in breaking down national morale, fostered its propagation abroad while they did their best to stamp out the habit at home. Meanwhile the inventive scientists were busy. Those whose systems were becoming immune to the old Marxian formula were assaulted by neosocialism of the Lenine brand; and when the proper moment arrived the German armies walked through Russia as through a nation of exhausted drug addicts. But in several important details the plan went wrong. The drugs would not work everywhere. Among the American people, for instance, whose systems had been toughened by their own home-made social panaceas no less than by their own patent medicines, the German philtres made but little impression. And presently there came a reaction. Morphine and cocaine and their like gain a hold on their victims because they offer great initial attractions; the addict becomes lost in magnificently impossible dreams whose splendor for a long time seems worth the pain of awakening. Socialism could not be stamped out in Germany. Just as workmen in the tooth paste factories might have surreptitiously sampled the brands made for export only and found attractions not present in the products for the home market, so the Germans took to socialism and neosocialism. It is a rare poison that will not act on the system of its own inventor.

PUBLIC UTILITIES AND PRIVATE PROFITS.

Mexico now thinks that the supply of oil is a public utility. The Legislature of Louisiana a few years ago thought that the supply of sugar was a public utility. Anything is capable of being made a public utility under laws enacted by zealous experimenters at public risk. Postmaster General BURLESON thinks that the wire services are a public utility, and proposes to buy them for the public by applying for twenty-five years the difference between 4½ per cent. interest on national bonds and 8 per cent. dividends on the properties now privately owned.

The prospectus is pleasing, but there is no guarantee. There is no record for these properties of a quarter century's dividend at that rate, and the art is one in which discovery makes capital investment hazardous. There is doubt that the Government could borrow at the rate proposed for that purpose. Bonds issued to save the nation's life, when defeat or death was the alternative, are now selling near 5 per cent., and the rate would rise if the Government were to embark on trade speculations. If in twenty-five years the result should differ from the promise, Mr. BURLESON would not be in office to be called to account for the misadventure, and a judgment against his party would be derisory.

In considering the merit of the proposal, it is necessary to consider the authority on which it is made. Unfortunately, Mr. BURLESON's financial authority is a liability rather than an asset, for his department as well as for himself. The Post Office customarily earns a deficit upon its own showing, and has been capable of claiming a profit which no certified accountant has verified, or would, on any commercial basis. There is now current a statement of a loss incurred where recently the Postmaster General promised a profit for both the railways and himself, and which neither will realize. The Post Office Department procured a law altering the manner in which the department's payments to the railways were calculated by arguing that the railways would earn more railway mail pay by leasing car space than by collecting on a tonnage basis. In 1917 railway mail pay decreased $2,816,000. In 1918 up to November mail pay decreased $4,730,000. Over those periods all other railway earnings increased, and railway costs of operation increased more. The railways' prophecies of loss having been verified, they are now suing in the Court of Claims for a more suitable payment for services upon which the Post Office claims a surplus while the railways are in desperate financial condition. The Treasury is facing a loss on railway operation at the same time that the Post Office is claiming a surplus.

That the Post Office is not scrupulous regarding the manner in which it earns its surpluses appears from the manner in which it scrapped the pneumatic tubes in several cities at large loss to the owners in contract with the department, and from the manner in which now it is proposing to pay for the wire services it covets. However agreeable it might be to see the Post Office make profits, there is reason to doubt that its capacity to make them equals its enthusiasm for the attempt. Also, there is reason for regret that the department has so often shown its readiness to profit at private loss, rather than by economy, efficiency, or that initiative by which private enterprise shines in comparison with Government. It is not usually called initiative to take other people's profits away against their will.

Private profit is large because it supplies the guarantee of success which Mr. BURLESON could not provide if he would. For that reason officials make proposals rashly, without the sense of responsibility which accompanies the risk of financial loss. One test of the soundness of a business proposal is the amount of the proposer's cash in the enterprise. "Blue Sky" promoters like to make their ventures with the resources of others. They win if the venture succeeds; their dupes lose if it fails. Mr. BURLESON has no hope of money profit, but he is like the "Blue Sky" promoters in that he ventures the Government credit without responsibility for loss if there is one according to the normal course of the affairs of his department.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Alone Hate the Red Cross.

An attack on the Red Cross at this time—a denunciation of it as a public enemy and an exhortation to ignore its appeals for money on the ground that gifts to it will be used for the enslaving of the public—things like these most people will assume to be impossible, except, perhaps, as the ravings of the criminally insane. The attack, the denunciation, and the exhortation come from the New York Anti-Vivisection Society; and they are all contained in a long circular which the High Priestess of that pestilent organization is sending out to her followers and dupes in the hope that she may get their assistance in her effort to stop, by depriving it of financial resources, the activities of the Red Cross.

All of those activities, she says, have the single end of gaining power and authority, which, when acquired, are to be handed over to the "political doctors." That being the case, she asks, "is it not clear that we must hold ourselves and our finances in reserve, and use our influence that others shall do the same, for our medical freedom organizations, which are face to face with a legislative struggle to obtain for the people the right to bodily freedom from coercion at the hands of Health Boards and their medical-political henchmen?"

A Concession Worse Than Useless.

In this animosity, none the less outrageous because futile, the Red Cross has its reward for yielding to the malignant fanatics in the matter of its appropriation of $100,000 for the conduct of medical research by means of animal experimentation. Its withdrawal from that beneficent and altogether commendable method of using a part of its money was the result, not of any conclusion or suspicion on the part of the Red Cross officials that the allotment was wrong—every one of them knew better—but from a fear that the antagonism of the anti-vivisectionists would mean the loss of contributions to an amount possibly large.

As might have been expected, the loss was not prevented, for the hostility of insanity for sanity is fundamental and unconquerable. The only effect of the concession—a concession that should not have been made—was the grieving of at least a hundred, perhaps a thousand, sensible people for every one person who demanded it. Fortunately the consequences stopped there, for, though the mistake of the Red Cross in this matter was deeply regretted, it was not allowed to count against a record otherwise so brilliant, and it probably did not, as it certainly should not, lead to the withholding of a single cent that otherwise would have gone to the greatest and best agency of relief and help the world has ever known.

A Chevron That Is a Grievance.

There are constantly coming to this office evidences of a deep and widespread dislike, in many instances rising to bitter resentment, that has been created by the determination of the War Department to put, or to allow to be put, a silver chevron on the sleeves of men whose army service in the great war has been on this side of the water. The men who are thus to be marked feel that thus an unjust discrimination has been made visible and cruelly hard to bear.

They claim, with entire truth, that the reason why they did not go abroad had nothing to do with either merit or preference. From the glory of their more fortunate fellows they would not detract, but they protest that it is wrong to emphasize and advertise their own ill-luck, and they insist that the silver chevron, instead of being, as is, for instance, the wound stripe, the record of an honorable fact, is too often interpreted—always, by the unthinking, who are many—as marking its wearer as a man who stayed at home when better men risked their lives at the front.

There is something, unquestionably, of super-sensitiveness in this feeling, but it exists, it is sincere, and it is worthy of consideration by the departmental chiefs whose will is law on such subjects.

As between a silver chevron and none, the soldiers whose opinion has come to the knowledge of THE TIMES are unanimous in declaring for none. What they would like best, however, is that between home and foreign service there should be no distinguishing insignia. Only by letting the uniform speak for itself in all matters except rank and length of service, they insist, can an invidious and undeserved contrast be avoided. And they are particularly insistent on the fact that foreign service does not necessarily mean service under fire, though most civilians take it so.

Opportunity Meets Obligation.

To say that "charity begins at home" is to invite the reply that the fact of its doing so is not an excuse for its ending there. Still, nearby needs do have a special claim to attention, and they carry with them, too, a special responsibility—the same responsibility that falls upon him who actually sees a fellow-creature in danger and distress. The call for help certainly is louder for him who sees than for him who does not see.

All this has its application in the matter of "the hundred neediest cases" which have been presented in THE TIMES. Its readers, in effect, do see these victims of misfortune—these men, women, and little children whom the accidents of death or of sickness have reduced, for the moment, to inability of self-support. Not one of them is a professional beggar—not one asks for more than will enable him or her to attain independence. And no more than that is asked for them.

These "hundred cases" offer, too, the much-valued opportunity to relieve definite instances of personal need. That is not the only important form of philanthropy, or even of charity, but it is a most appealing one, and properly so. Whoever neglects to utilize such opportunities misses one of the real joys of life—the warm and assured consciousness of doing good—of making the world better as well as happier.

A Message from M. Cheradame.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Before leaving the United States, I wish to tell you what a beautiful and grand souvenir I am taking away of my sojourn here. I have been able to gauge the friendship and sincerity and the admiration of the American people for the courage and stoicism of the French people. I have witnessed, during the last eight months of the war, the ardor, the generosity, and the spirit of sacrifice of the American people in the struggle against autocracy, and I am leaving convinced that the American people have primarily the idea to follow their ideal, and that they desire a just peace and a reparation for the damage wrought on innumerable victims of German aggression.

For these reasons I am convinced that the relations between the United States and Europe will be lasting and all more cordial, especially as we know each other better. As a political writer, I shall consider it always desirable to contribute in the best manner of which I am capable toward the development of European and American friendship, thus constituting one of the most solid foundations of a durable peace.

Please accept this expression of my sentiments of sincere sympathy.

ANDRE CHERADAME.

New York, Dec. 14, 1918.

A CHRISTMAS PLEA.

Now by the storms of Death returned unclaimed,
Behold War's victims—haggard, worn, and maimed.
Their peaceful past, one hateful Will effaced;
Bereft of homes, their fields and orchards waste,
Their hours consume themselves in bitter care;
They know no fellowship save dull Despair.

These broken lives no pity can rebuild
So that no trace remains of That which filled
Each separate cell with horror, pain, and grief!
But this much lies within our hands—Relief!
To soothe, and faintly cheer, and slowly heal,
Until some heavenly hope once more they feel!

"The time draws near the birth of Christ." Shall we Refuse to hear His suffering brothers' plea?
Shall friendship, love, and kin receive our all
While want and woe in vain for succor call?
The Cross of Mercy points the way once more:

MARIE L. EGLINTON.

THE KAISER'S LIABILITY TO TRIAL.

Two Charges, Beginning the War and the Way of Carrying It On, Must Be Treated Separately.

By MAJOR GEN. WILLIAM CROZIER.

In preparing to mete out just punishment to the Kaiser for his crimes care should be taken that his prosecution be not instituted in such a way as to incur the danger of at least partial failure. In a statement of policy issued by Mr. Lloyd George on Dec. 5 there occur the following passages:

> The Kaiser must be prosecuted. The war was a crime. Who doubts that? It was a frightful, terrible crime. It was a crime in the way in which it was planned and in the deliberate wantonness with which it was provoked. It was also a crime in the invasion of a helpless little State and in the wicked and most brutal treatment of that little State. Remember the treaty of neutrality, the scrap of paper!
> Surely the war was a crime. The fact that all these iniquitous things were done in the name of war and under the Imperial edict of an autocrat does not change their nature. The war was a hideous, abominable crime, a crime which has sent millions of the best young men of Europe to death and mutilation and has plunged myriads of homes into desolation.

In these passages there are two arraignments—one for bringing on the war, the other for the manner of conducting it. Now the making of war is, by the law of nations, a prerogative of sovereignty, and a sovereign government is the sole judge of the cause which may impel it or induce it to this extreme act. If, as in the present instance, war is undertaken for a bad cause, the act does not constitute an offense against international law, nor one which is properly cognizable by a court of justice, either national or international. This does not mean that no consequence can be visited upon those responsible for an unjustified and iniquitous war, but it must be done as a matter of policy by administrative authority and not as a result of judicial procedure. It might very well happen that a council of representatives of a government, or of allied governments, would conclude that one or more persons whom a victorious war had placed within their power were too dangerous to the peace of the world to be allowed to remain at large, or even alive, and might order their confinement, as in the case of Napoleon I., or their execution; but such a proceeding would rest upon conscience, upon public opinion, and upon higher and unformulated law, and not upon that established law and precedent which it is the province of courts to pronounce upon.

Not so with the violation of the laws of war itself, or of those laws made and accepted with special reference to a state of war. Transgression of these brings the transgressor directly within the jurisdiction of courts, if the power exists to bring him to the bar, and he can be tried and punished in strict accordance with the principles and practices which have characterized the administration of justice in civilized countries since the beginning of the reign of law. If in the conduct of a righteous or an unrighteous war persons, of whatever standing, are guilty of the unnecessary killing of military prisoners or civilians, of rape, or of other acts which are forbidden by the recognized international code, of which prominent parts are contained in the two conventions for the laws of war on land adopted at The Hague Conferences of 1899 and 1907, they render themselves distinctly liable to trial and punishment by court-martial or military commission, which is a species of court, or by a specially constituted judicial tribunal, without any violence being done to the best traditions of civilization or to the most technical legal requirements. The history of war is full of instances of such punishment of war criminals, and nowhere is there to be found any reason, or even excuse, for distinction based on the rank of the offender to whom offense can be brought home.

The invasion of Belgium by the German Army was in direct controversion of the first article, adopted unanimously, of the convention concerning the rights and duties of neutrals of the second Peace Conference at The Hague in 1907, which states that the territory of neutral countries shall be inviolate. The character of Germany's act was not changed by her declaration of war against Belgium, after the latter's refusal to accede to her request for the passage of her troops across Belgium's territory. If a neutral country could be deprived of its character of neutrality and thrown into a belligerent status by the mere declaration of war against it for standing for its neutral rights the guarantee of inviolability of neutral territory would be meaningless. A murderer, having first created apprehension of his intended killing upon the part of his victim which would induce the latter to try to kill first, could not plead self-defense for his own act. Similarly, Germany's conduct was not regularized by her declaration of war in due form, and the responsible members of her Government are properly liable for violation of the law expressed in the convention. Besides, the declaration came too late, having been made on Aug. 4, while German troops entered Belgium, at Verviers, on Aug. 3.

Charles I. was not properly subject to the jurisdiction of the special court created by Parliament for his trial, and took his stand upon the impregnable constitutional ground that as sovereign he could not be arraigned before a court of his subjects and refused to plead to the charge of treason. His subsequent conviction and execution were therefore without judicial regularity. William Hohenzollern has no such claim for immunity, and would not if he were still Kaiser, but as a member of the military forces of Germany, being Commander in Chief of all her forces on land and sea, is subject to trial by a judicial tribunal of the opposing forces, for any such violation of international law as those mentioned above, or for sinking merchant vessels and drowning or otherwise doing to death the crews and passengers, instead of providing for the safety of these persons, as required by established law and precedent; or for any other transgression of which evidence can be obtained.

The law officers of the British Crown are reported to have found several indictments justifying the extradition and trial of the ex-Kaiser, and these professional gentlemen undoubtedly can be trusted not to confuse issues suitable for presentation to a court with matters proper only for consideration as grave questions of policy; which distinction a politician, even of the statesman class, like Lloyd George, might very naturally fail to draw, especially in a campaign document. The war was a hideous crime, as Lloyd George says, but was a crime which is not reached by the imperfect law of nations, and should not be sent before a court, but should be dealt with politically. Crimes of the other class, however—those concerned with the manner of prosecution of the war—are definitely and technically covered by well understood law and practice, and the perpetrators, either by act or order, can be haled into court, without danger of failure through lack of jurisdiction, or of reaction of public opinion, in case of conviction, against a strained application of judicial process.

BRITISH CABINET CHANGES.

Milner, Geddes, and Bonar Law, as Well as Smuts, Likely to Go.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Commenting on the fact that General Smuts, who has been one of the mainstays of the War Cabinet during the last years of the war, is expecting to retire soon, The Daily Chronicle's Parliamentary correspondent says:

"General Smuts is still a member of the War Cabinet, and he will probably remain so while it continues in being. He has recently been engaged as Chairman of the Committee on Demobilization.

"In the ordinary course of events the War Cabinet will soon be superseded by the normal Cabinet, of which General Smuts will not be a member. Since he arrived in England he has kept himself studiously aloof from party controversies, and it is obvious that he could not possibly serve in a domestic Cabinet. He will have important duties to fulfill in connection with the Paris negotiations, and he may be associated with General Botha as a member of the Peace Conference.

"It is understood that Mr. Lloyd George is averse to a large Cabinet, and when his Government is reconstituted after the election results are known, it will probably be found that the personnel of the new Cabinet will not exceed twelve. Considerable changes may be looked for. Lord Milner will leave the War Office and Sir Eric Geddes the Admiralty, and it is an open secret that Austen Chamberlain will succeed Bonar Law as Chancellor of the Exchequer.

"Advantage may be taken of the nationalization of the railways to appoint a Minister of Transport, a post for which Sir Eric Geddes has obvious qualifications."

GOVERNORS DISCUSS LABOR.

Brumbaugh Favors Industrial Training and Compulsory Education.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 17.—State Governors in conference here today inspected the Naval Academy, went to Baltimore tonight as guests of the Baltimore Press Club, and between times discussed future State labor, educational, and public land policies.

At the final session tomorrow the conference expects to take up the question of what is to become of the National Guard after demobilization.

The Naval Academy was in full working order as the Governors were escorted through it by Rear Admiral Edward W. Eberle, the Superintendent. A battalion of more than 500 midshipmen were at drill, a hundred or so at their gymnasium games and in the swimming pool, half a battalion starting for a cross-country hike, and others reciting in class.

Governor Boyle of Nevada, addressing the conference on labor policies, said public opinion "no longer approves the brutal methods of the past employed in the settlement of labor controversies."

A solution of the labor problem must come, Governor Boyle said, by mutual consideration by employes and employers, and it is the function of the Government, Federal and State, to bring these two forces together. Governor Boyle said the American Federation of Labor has been the most powerful single influence in pointing the way to a practical solution of labor questions and in guiding men away from socialistic theories and radicalism. The I. W. W., he said, includes many honest men, waiting for the right kind of leadership.

Schools in the future must do more to educate both the foreign and native born population and to train men and women in trades, said Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania today, in an address on State educational policies before the Conference of Governors here.

"The school must widen its sphere of service," he said. "We welcome immigrants and we give them home and haven. But we should insist that every immigrant within five years must master the English language or leave the country. We should also, everywhere, enforce by compulsion the education of all native-born people. We shall be wise if we at once establish continuation schools and enforce attendance therein of all youths above the age of 14 who are employed legally in industry.

"Each citizen, man or woman, should master a definite trade, and schools should be in position to train in these branches. We are a wasteful and extravagant people. The schools must teach thrift and train our people to save and conserve. The school must set a new policy of national loyalty and must be not only passively but aggressively moral."

Governor-elect Thomas E. Campbell of Arizona recommended that all States enact compulsory arbitration laws to minimize strikes and labor disturbances. Arbitration boards, he said, should be composed of an equal number of representatives of labor and employers, with the Governor as the odd member. Mr. Campbell declared employers must not seek to drive down wages until the cost of living decreases, saying "both will have to come down together."

Governor Richard I. Manning of South Carolina pleaded for continued national unity after the war.

"I hope, now that the war is ended," he said, "we will remember the lesson of unity which we have learned, so that in dealings with Federal authorities we will put aside sectional and partisan differences, working for America rather than for individual States."

Governor Frederick D. Gardner of Missouri presided at the morning session and expressed the belief that bills providing State workmen's compensation, modeled after the Ohio law, under which the State administers the insurance, would be presented to every State Legislature within the next year.

Governor Williams of Oklahoma urged adoption of the workmen's compensation system by every State "to protect injured workmen, throw the economic loss on industry, where it belongs, do away with ambulance chasers, and the damage suit man."

NAVY TO NEED 200,000 MEN.

Recruits Are to Take Places of Those Who Enlisted for the War.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — Two hundred thousand men must be recruited for the navy next year to take the places of men enlisted for the war, who will be demobilized. Captain H. Laning, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, made this estimate today in asking the House Naval Affairs Committee for an appropriation of $12,000,000 to cover transportation and recruiting expenses.

After July 1 next 350,000 men will be needed in the regular naval force to man the naval and Shipping Board vessels, Captain Laning told the committee. The regular navy at present has 215,000 men, and 165,000 of these enlisted since the war began, 120,000 for four years and 45,000 for the duration of the war. More than 60 per cent. of the war recruits have asked to be discharged, Captain Laning said, and the navy is in honor bound to release them.

"The navy has made no promises to release the men who enlisted for four years," he added, "but all understood they would not be held after the war ended. Unless they are released the navy will be made up of discontented men, and its efficiency will be lowered."

In addition, it was explained, as soon as peace terms are signed the Naval Reserve Force, numbering 290,000 men, must be placed on inactive duty. Ten per cent. of the force of the men of the regular navy are soon to be discharged.

RED CROSS TO RULE 'AVENUE OF MERCY'

SIRENS WILL OPEN REVELS

Then 40 Bands Will Play the National and Allied Anthems and the Mardi Gras Will Begin.

Fifth Avenue will witness a new and unusual episode in its history of war pageantry tonight when the "Avenue of Mercy" from Madison Square to the plaza at Fifty-ninth Street is turned into a great Mardi Gras, with each block in the possession of the American Red Cross or some other society or official organization for revelry, dancing, or any other entertainment conceived by the block managers in their plan to further the enrollment of members for the Red Cross for 1919.

At 7:45 o'clock this evening the sirens placed on the factories and police stations here to warn of any possible German air raids will sound a long signal for the clearing of traffic from the thoroughfare and as a signal to all those who have become members of the American Red Cross in the "Christmas Roll Call" that the city's first carnival or block party on a large scale is about to open. Upon receiving that signal squads of policemen, fifteen men to each block, under the command of the Chief Inspector, will divert all traffic to the side streets and form lines to exclude all who do not wear the symbol of the Red Cross, showing that they are members of the American organization of mercy. The opening of the carnival will be preceded by a short parade of police and others who are to have shows and entertainments in the blocks.

No person can enter the "Avenue of Mercy" and share in its revels and joys unless he carries the sign of the Red Cross—the police have promised to see to that—but all along the avenue there will be booths where those who, through neglect or delay, have allowed two days of the roll to pass without becoming members of the Red Cross may pay $1 and receive their badge.

There is to be another badge of admission to the carnival, the committee says, and it has always carried with it the mute assertion that every man who wears it had the intention of becoming a life member of the organization of mercy. That is the khaki of the soldier or the blue of the sailor.

Garlands and evergreens are to be used in the decorations of the avenue for its carnival, but interspersed with these joyous reminders of the Christmas season there will be paintings and sculpture and small pageants to show how the Red Cross cares for the wounded soldiers and sailors from the firing lines to their own homes; how they provide homes for the refugees and for orphans; and how all the work is carried on under great disadvantages, sometimes under fire or in storms or without shelter—but always carried on.

Forty bands, from the United States warships in the port, from naval training stations and army camps, from allied warships, and from patriotic organizations throughout the city will furnish the music for the carnival. In opening the carnival about 8 o'clock these bands upon a given signal will play the national anthem, and then the anthems of the allied nations. Throughout the Avenue of Mercy the bands will be playing these same airs in unison, and it is the belief of the committee that no part of the celebration will be more impressive. In addition many of the blocks represented by races or nations will have bands of their native instruments. Blocks in the "Avenue of Mercy" have been assigned to organizations and groups as follows:

25th to 26th..........	Norway.
26th to 27th..........	Armenia.
27th to 28th..........	Portugal.
28th to 29th..........	Redmen; Pocahontas.
29th to 30th..........	Borough President.
30th to 31st..........	Jugoslavs.
31st to 32d..........	Negroes.
32d to 33d..........	China.
33d to 34th..........	Marines; Nat. League Women's Service.
34th to 35th..........	Italy.
36th to 37th..........	Russia.
37th to 38th..........	Red Cross.
38th to 39th..........	Czechoslovaks.
40th to 41st..........	Red Cross.
41st to 42d..........	Red Cross.
42d to 43d..........	Great Britain.
43d to 44th..........	Stage Women's War Relief, Friars, and Lambs.
44th to 45th..........	Artists.
45th to 46th..........	Syria.
46th to 47th..........	Greece.
47th to 48th..........	Sweden.
48th to 49th..........	Ukraine.
49th to 50th..........	Navy.
50th to 51st..........	Latin-Americans.
53d to 54th..........	Crew of Leviathan, Motor Transp. Girls.
54th to 55th..........	Elks.
55th to 56th..........	Poland.
56th to 57th..........	Colleges and Schools.

The committee has announced that bad weather will only postpone the carnival to Thursday night, and if the weather is bad then, it will be held on Friday night, or a night later to be announced. The Weather Man promised last night that the party would not be postponed.

No count of the number of members already enrolled in the two days of the roll call had been made at the campaign headquarters, 665 Fifth Avenue, yesterday, because so many thousands of cards came in from the volunteer women workers who have been making the house-to-house canvass that the Registration Committees were unable to make even an estimate.

Among the meetings for today are the regular noon gatherings at the Sub-Treasury, City Hall Park, the Public Library, and Times Square. The Aldine Club will give a Red Cross luncheon with Lieut. Col. Whittlesey as the speaker, and there will be community meetings tonight at the American Museum of Natural History, at 197 East Broadway, and at the 22d Regiment Armory, at Fort Washington Avenue and West 168th Street. There will be a special sale of toys, toilet articles, vases, and other Christmas gifts at the Red Cross shop at 587 Fifth Avenue. Other exhibitions open on Fifth Avenue are at Nos. 257, 296, 411, 575, 583, 651, 669, 681, 719, 725, and 755.

PERSHING PAYS TRIBUTE.

A message from General Pershing in support of the American Red Cross campaign for membership in its Christmas roll call was given out here yesterday by the Campaign Committee. He expressed the thanks of the American army for the relief work done in France. His message follows:

"The American Red Cross is the recognized national organization for relief work with the army and navy in time of war. It is through this organization that the men and women of America contribute their funds and their labor for the relief and comfort of the men in service. To the millions of women whose hearts and hands are consecrated to the service; to the millions of the men, rich and poor alike throughout the country who have contributed and sacrificed, and even to the millions of children of our schools who are doing their part, it should be made clear that the relief and comfort contributed by them through the American Red Cross to the men in service are essential.

"The Commander in Chief desires to express, for the entire American Expeditionary Forces, the deep sense of appreciation of the service being rendered by the American Red Cross."

CHILDREN'S NEEDS APPEAL

LETTERS FROM THE GIVERS

Contributions for New York's Hundred Neediest Cases yesterday amounted to $10,126.80, making a total received to date of $13,751.41. The gifts sent directly to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday amounted to $2,280.50, the rest going to the four charitable organizations which selected the 100 cases as being the neediest among thousands of unfortunate and deserving families and unhappy orphans in New York City.

The full amount that was asked for has been contributed for nine of the cases, those which were listed as numbers 2, 12, 18, 55, 65, 74, 79, 85, and 91. Five of these were the stories of children presented by the State Charities Aid Association, which asked for only small amounts of money in their behalf. Very few of the large families needing help on a substantial scale have been provided for so far.

The readers of THE NEW YORK TIMES contributed last year a total of $62,103.47 for the Hundred Neediest Cases and for supplemental cases which were presented when the public by its continuing contributions indicated that its generosity had not been exhausted by its response to the original appeal.

Distress Abnormal This Year.

The sum of $62,103.47, however careful and able its administration, will not give relief on the same scale this year that it gave in 1917. The amount must be substantially enlarged if the appeal is to have the same success that it had last year, when it gave relief to 872 individuals who had, through no shortcomings of their own, fallen into the extremities of distress and despair.

Even if the sum contributed this year should be large enough to equal the buying power of $62,103.47 a year ago, the relief which it would bring would bear a smaller proportion to the relief needed. The distress this year is abnormal, because of the hundreds of fathers taken off without warning by influenza and pneumonia and the number of widowed mothers reduced by sickness so that they have had to give up for the time the struggle to earn the necessities of life for their children.

There were 2,891 gifts for the Hundred Neediest Cases last year, many of them coming from groups of individuals in schools, factories, business houses, clubs, battleships, and army camps, so that the total number of individual contributors was about 3,500. Still more contributors are needed this year. The gifts cannot be too small or too large. Every cent will do its part.

The gifts of $1 and less were numerous enough last year to raise many families from sickness, despondency, and the dread that mother and children might be parted and perhaps not reunited. The records of the charitable societies show that nearly all the families, helped through an emergency by these contributions, have later forged ahead by their own industry and thrift and continued united and happy.

Selected from Hundreds.

The Hundred Neediest Cases were selected from hundreds of similar cases, and only by a more or less arbitrary selection could there be established any order of precedence in misery and want. Many contributors, appreciating the special reason for an increased effort to aid the sick and helpless in civil life this Winter, have expressed themselves in letters to THE NEW YORK TIMES inclosing contributions. One prominent man, who asked that his name should not be mentioned, wrote:

"Realizing, as I do, that the hearts of the American people have turned so largely to Belgium and France of late that our own poor have to a great extent been overlooked, we should all give a thank offering by helping those who have been forgotten in the noise of the battlefield. I am hence sending you my thank offering in answer to your appeal for certain cases of extreme want in our city, and you will find my check inclosed for $100. The cases described are all so pitiful that I leave it to your good judgment to use this 'mite' as you may deem best among them."

Mrs. Arthur D. Brandeis wrote as follows:

"So that our own needy shall not be neglected, while all the world is helping abroad, I am sending inclosed $50, to be used toward the relief of those you quote in THE SUNDAY TIMES."

"I have received the following," wrote De Witt C. Jones, "in a letter from my son, Lieutenant De Witt C. Jones, Jr., 319th Regiment, A. E. F.:

"'Pick me out the three most pitiful cases from THE NEW YORK TIMES list of 100 Neediest Cases and send $5 apiece for each. Pick out cases of some struggling man with a family or some boy up against it who needs a chance. They are always the ones which appeal to me most.'"

One contribution of $5 was received with the following letter signed by "J. F.":

"I saw in THE TIMES of today a list of destitute cases, some of them very pitiable. I inclose you $5, as a mite to be used to help to relieve whichever in the judgment of either yourself or the charity organization needs it most. THE TIMES is responsible for a great many good things that have happened since it exposed the Tweed Ring so many years ago."

W. S. McKewen, who sent $10 to be divided among the four societies, wrote:

"I tender this check in memory of Private Joseph A. Wynn of South Brooklyn, who was killed in action overseas some time during October of this year."

Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady said in the letter accompanying his countribution:

"Once again I congratulate myself that your effective presentation of the needs of some of our less fortunate fellow-citizens gives me an intelligent opportunity to make you one of my almoners at this Christmas season. I inclose you a check with many prayers that you may touch the hearts of others as you have touched mine, and that the results of your appeal to the generosity of our citizens will exceed your most sanguine expectations. Give my dole to the most unpopular and neglected case on the list."

"This is a very deserving charity."

Letters from Men in Service.

Several letters were received from men in the service. A. D. Taylor wrote from the War Camp Community Service Canteen at Newport, R. I. He said: "God grant you full fruition in your grand and splendid thought. Every heart must yearn to help to alleviate such human distress."

Contributions were received from many States. There were many gifts from up-State New York, from New Jersey, and Connecticut and others were received from Williamstown, Mass.; North Adams, Mass.; Bethlehem, Penn.; Franklin, Penn.; Washington, D. C., and Woonsocket, R. I.

The gifts were not all in money. One woman called at the office of the State Charities Aid Association and took out the two litle boys, Philip and Stanton, described in Case 38, took them to lunch and bought them outfits of warm clothing. Several women promised outfits of clothing to others, and several offered their services in various ways.

A few women made appointments to visit families with the intention of giving the full amount asked to cover their needs. One man contributed $250 to provide for the girl called Isabel in Case 18 in memory of his own daughter, who had borne that name. A young woman sent the State Charities Aid Association $1 and wrote:

"I am sending it for this child as a thanksgiving for my own little blue-eyed brother, who was born with crooked and weak legs, and is now a fine little fellow of 9 away out in sunny Kansas. If you do not get enough for this little laddie, I should be glad to give more."

Many Girls Will Be Adopted.

For some reason or other the little boys, no matter how pathetic their stories, have not received much attention. There has been a rush to aid the little girls whose cases were presented by the State Charities Aid Association, and many of them will be adopted, but the poor little boys were generally passed by.

The most fervent gratitude has been expressed by those who are receiving relief. The first gifts to be received on behalf of the different cases have been used at once to give them the aid they have needed most and many households in New York tenements began to feel despair lifting and to see light ahead.

At the offices of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor the charity workers who have been doing their best with scant means to keep hope and courage alive in the families reported by them among the Hundred Neediest Cases have been watching with intense interest a blackboard on which the score of contributions is kept case by case. The bulletin boards of a world's series are not watched more earnestly. On each visit to the vases in their charge the workers carry to excited families the news of how those families have fared in the response to the Hundred Neediest Cases.

Gifts can be made for the Hundred Neediest Cases to THE NEW YORK TIMES direct or to the charitable organizations which selected the cases as among the neediest. Widows for whom help is asked are only those who are ineligible for State pensions. The associations reporting the cases are as follows:

The New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, 105 East Twenty-second Street. Telephone, Gramercy 7040.

The Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street. Telephone, Gramercy 4066.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The stock market backed and filled yesterday with a slight increase of activity over the day before, but without showing any definite tendency. As far as the more active issues were concerned business reflected the undoing of some speculative purchases made before and in the broad group of specialties there were a number of stocks which moved forward. The bond market supplied very little of interest and price changes were negligible.

In stock trading circles considerable attention was paid to the money situation, an inciting influence being the reiteration of rumors heard last week that restrictions on loans for market purposes would shortly be removed. As far as definite information went there was nothing to encourage the belief that the next few days, or the next few weeks, would see any change in the current regulations. Treasury officials are understood to be firm in the opinion that credit should be conserved in preparation for the next Government security issue, and, in the meantime, for the easy absorption by the banks of certificates of indebtedness. In some banking quarters where it is expected that loanable funds will tend to expand largely until industry swings into its peace stride, the feeling prevails that the pressure of idle money is likely to become so great that the Money Committee will permit increases of brokerage loans without making definite announcement, perhaps, that the market had been made free. Call money was loaned to a fair amount at 4¾ per cent. although the bulk of the day's transactions were put through at 5 per cent.

Now that the number of steel companies have been quoting prices lower than the established figures for some days inquiry is being directed toward the effect among consumers. Reports from various steel making centres go to show that buyers have by no means hurried into the market, but the producers are not yet voicing any concern over the lack of a marked development in the buying field. It will doubtless require several weeks before a comprehensive survey of the market may be made and in this period it is possible that the export demand may make itself felt. The organization of the new Copper Export Association was accompanied by the announcement of prospects as seen by leading producers which presumably involved the marshalling of the best information obtainable in respect to next year's needs abroad. The figures were encouraging inasmuch as they forecast an active demand over and above the probable consumption in the United States. The unity of purpose shown through the personnel of the association's management supplies an encouraging comment on the realization of copper producers that prosperity next year and in succeeding years depends to a large extent on sales outside the country.

The continued strength of the cotton market is worthy of comment and indicates a change of sentimental and market conditions which was hardly looked for a fortnight ago. A prominent influence in the rise is the expansion of exports, not only to Europe but from Western ports to the Far East. The increase of available ocean tonnage is having its effect and the signs at the moment seem to point toward a greater immediate absorption of American cotton by spinners in all parts of the world than was believed to be at hand when the armistice was signed.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Settling Steel Contracts.

Reports from steel making centres show that the British Government is settling as rapidly as possible with munition steel makers on orders cancelled when hostilities ceased. In some instances manufacturers are receiving about $40 a ton on special grades of steel which the buyer had agreed to take at $70, the difference of $30 representing the scrap value of the material to the manufacturer.

Central Steel Committee to Dissolve.

The special committee on steel and steel products of the American Iron and Steel Institute will go out of existence at the end of this week. With the elimination of this committee, which is headed by E. H. Gary, will pass away the last visible evidence of joint direction of steel manufacturing for Government purposes. The committee was the intermediary between the Government Steel Administrator and the producers in dividing war orders, including shipbuilding, among the various producing companies.

An Opinion on Market Restrictions.

When the armistice was declared many stock brokers chafed under the limitations placed on their loans as they thought the signs pointed then toward a big upward movement in prices. The opinion is now expressed, in some quarters at least, that the artificial check put upon speculative purchases may prove in the long run to have been a highly valuable measure. This thought is built on the belief that a plunging upward movement under the force of enthusiasm over the end of the war might easily have brought later a severe reactionary movement which would have weakened the prospect for a sustained rise later.

Leather Stocks Depressed.

The leather stocks were the subject of bearish attention yesterday. American Hide and Leather preferred declined 2 and Central Leather 1½ points. The selling was out of line with the trend of operations among other industrial issues and for that reason attracted considerable notice in speculative quarters. The decline appeared to be more the result of a hesitant demand than the product of sharp pressure, as dealings were small in size.

Ingot Production Improves.

An increase of 1.4 per cent. in the ingot production of the United States Steel Corporation is reported for the last week. The figure attained was 97.9 per cent., as compared with 96.5 per cent. during the previous week. Blast furnace operations were reported 93.2 per cent. of normal, a decline of 1 per cent. from the mark of 94.2 per cent. which was established the week before.

Demand for Shipping Increases.

Reports reaching this country are to the effect that European nations are already planning for the re-establishment of their merchant marine. It is said that France has placed orders with English shipbuilding concerns for 400,000 tons of ships and Norwegians are reported as being in the market for 1,000,000 tons. Already the United States Shipping Board has announced that American shipbuilders may accept contracts for the construction of wooden vessels either for foreign or domestic account without making special application. American builders of steel ships are also freed from restrictions as to supplying domestic demand, and it is possible that within a short time concerns in this country will be entering the race for world trade with their foreign rivals.

New York Railways.

New York Railways adjustment 5s were firm in yesterday's market. They opened at 14¾, sold up to 16 on a fair turnover, and closed at 15½. The refunding 4s on a comparatively small amount of business advanced from 47 at the opening to 47¾ at the close. Interborough Rapid Transit first and refunding 5s and Interborough-Metropolitan 4½s were also firm.

RELAXING IMPORT BAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—As part of its program for removing as rapidly as possible all regulations which changed conditions flowing out of the armistice have rendered unnecessary, the War Trade Board today announced that instructions issued on Sept. 18 had been revoked and that Consuls had been instructed to certify invoices without official notice from the War Trade Board, upon production of a letter or cablegram from the consignee, giving the import license number, commodity, and quantity licensed.

The official cabling system has been continued up to the present time to protect importers who obey regulations, by preventing others from violating them. It is now felt that this can be abandoned and that importers who are cooperating with the War Trade Board by complying with regulations may be protected by other means.

Vance C. McCormick, Chairman of the board, explained today that all official notifications of license numbers, cabled or mailed to Consuls by the War Trade Board, were still effective, and Consuls would continue to certify invoices thereunder. Individual notices will be sent to all importers who have applications for licenses pending before the Bureau of Imports, where official notice to the Consul is not sent by the board due to the present ruling.

The present ruling does not affect in any manner general or P. B. F. licenses, nor shipments of coffee, sugar, or nitrate of soda, for which existing regulations do not require that license numbers be cabled. Shipping companies will be required to return at their own expense all shipments not covered by Consular invoices, where invoices are required under State Department's regulations.

A new allocation of Egyptian cotton was announced today. The regulations issued on June 20, affecting the importation of such cotton, have been revoked and applications will now be considered by the board for licenses to import, beginning Jan. 10, not to exceed 40,000 bales of Egyptian cotton, without limit as to quality or grade. Control over distribution of the licensed amounts will be maintained by the board through the Textile Alliance.

COPPER MEN UNITE FOR EXPORT TRADE

Incorporate $250,000 Association to Protect Against Foreign Combinations.

HAS TRADE BOARD SANCTION

Ryan Explains Organization as a Large Brokerage Concern Working Without Profit.

Announcement of the formation of the Copper Export Association, Inc., to represent American producers of copper in foreign markets was formally made yesterday, following the first meeting of the organization in the offices of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, by John D. Ryan, who has been elected President of the export concern. Such an organization has been in process of construction ever since the passage of the Webb-Pomerene bill in the last Congress permitting the organization of American producers to engage in foreign trade.

The new organization, which is incorporated under the laws of Delaware, has a nominal capital of $250,000 of 7 per cent. preferred stock which is to be distributed pro rata to producers. Each producer will be entitled to one share of common stock with cumulative voting power, based upon his production of copper for export. The cumulative feature gives one vote for each 500 tons of copper produced in the twelve months preceding the taking of a vote. This common stock is without par value and without market value, as no earnings are to be distributed among the common share holders.

It was explained by Mr. Ryan that the export organization would in reality be simply a large brokerage concern working without any idea of profit other than for the payment of dividends on the preferred stock or the retirement of the same. Any balance above those requirements will be distributed among the producers.

For the time being the export company will be at the Anaconda offices, but eventually it will engage offices of its own. At yesterday's meeting the following Directors were elected, representing practically all of the large producing interests of the country: Murry Guggenheim, Simon Guggenheim, and F. H. Brownell of the American Smelting and Refining Company; John D. Ryan, Cornelius F. Kelley, and Benjamin B. Thayer of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company and the Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company; W. D. Thornton of the Greene-Cananea Copper Company; Charles Hayden, Charles M. MacNeill, and D. Jackling, representing the Utah Copper Company, Nevada Consolidated, Ray Consolidated, and the Chino Copper Company; Walter Douglas and James McLean of Phelps, Dodge & Co.; R. L. Agassiz and James MacNaughton of Calumet and Hecla; Stephen Burch of the Kennecott Copper Corporation; William A. Clark of the United Verde Copper Company; Archibald Douglas of United Verde Extension; Adolps Lewisohn of the Miami Copper Company, and Gordon R. Campbell of Calumet and Arizona. The Chairman of the board is Simon Guggenheim.

The other officers are: President, John D. Ryan; First Vice President, Walter Douglas; Second Vice President, R. L. Agassiz, James McLean, Murry urer, C. W. Welch. The Executive Committee is composed of Simon Guggenheim, John D. Ryan, Walter Douglas, R. L. Agassiz, James McLean, Murray Guggenheim, Cornelius F. Kelley, William A. Clark, James MacNaughton, and Adolph Lewisohn. The Executive Committee will select a Selling Committee to conduct the actual export business, but all questions of policy as regards foreign trade will be determined by the Executive Committee of the association. In discussing the new organization, John D. Ryan said:

It is believed that the plan, being purely a mutual one, and providing for no advantage on account of the size or location of any contributing organization, will fulfill the expectations of its promoters and firmly unite all American exporters of copper.

The production of American smelters and refiners was, before the war, fully 70 per cent. of that of the whole world. It is believed to be now 85 per cent.; about 60 per cent. of the pre-war production was exported. It is expected that that proportion will continue to hold good. The Federal Trade Commission in its investigation of the copper trade found that by combination of buyers from European countries and manipulations of markets for futures the foreign consumer had been enabled to obtain this copper from American producers over a period of years for about 1c per pound less than the American consumer had paid. It is believed that the Export Association will remedy this situation, and, without interfering with the domestic trade, will not permit the foreign combinations to secure such undue advantage.

The fact that every producer, large and small, in the country has been or will be invited to join, and the door will not only be opened, but will be kept opened for any one who desires to come in, will undoubtedly satisfy every possible requirement of public policy, and it is the belief of all of the copper people that the organization is formed along ideal lines to commend itself favorably to the Federal Trade Commission or other governmental agencies having to do with the regulation of export trade.

Mr. Ryan called attention to the purchasing organization which had been created abroad, and said that in previous dealings with foreign buyers there had been a loss of some $15,000,000 a year to American producers because of the cent a pound lower price which it was estimated had prevailed in export business. Congress, by enacting the Webb bill, he said, seemed to think that this should now go to the producers to be distributed, some to labor and some to the shareholders. The new export company has the approval of the Federal Trade Commission.

It was the opinion of Mr. Ryan that the needs of Europe would be heavy during the coming year. "The nations cannot get back on their feet," he said, "until the people are put at work, and they can't be put to work until they have the raw materials." Of the 2,500,000,000 pounds of copper produced a year he said that 1,500,000,000 pounds would go for export. Estimates by Government and Anaconda representatives were that Great Britain would require 200,000 tons, in the coming year, France 145,000 tons, and Italy 85,000 tons.

Ajax Company Issues New Stock.

Directors of the Ajax Rubber Company authorized yesterday the issue of $1,000,000 treasury stock, amounting to 20,000 shares. The stock is to be offered to present stockholders for subscription at $55 a share, the proceeds to be added to the company's working capital. The issue, according to announcement, has been underwritten by Pritchitt & Co., 60 Broadway.

COTTON MAKES NEW GAINS.

Market Quickly Overcomes Depression Due to Profit-Taking.

With the continuance of the demand for cotton in yesterday's market prices again went into new and higher ground. The market was strong from the opening, first prices being 11 to 21 points higher than Monday's closing quotations. Throughout the morning session the principal trading was centred in the near months, with December selling up to 29.05c, an overnight gain of 75 points; January at 27.40c was up 51, and March at 26.27c was up 50 points. May and July contracts likewise advanced under the stimulus of the strong tone displayed in other months, with May selling up to 25.44c, a gain of 45 points, and July's high of 24.82c showed an advance of 42 points. Around midday some profit taking was in evidence, this coming from traders who had supported the market during the recent spell of weakness, and this liquidation induced recessions of 40 to 50 points on the general list, and 65 on December contracts. The strong cables from Liverpool, and another sharp rise at New Orleans caused a rally in the late trading, and at the close a good deal of the losses had been made up.

The market was barren of news, or any specific information which would tend to enhance the present favorable condition of the staple, but notwithstanding this the trade is expecting that the present large exports will continue for some time to come and be an asset in stabilizing prices here. Clearances yesterday totaled 34,978 bales, and on Monday 37,012 bales.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 8,655 packages. Market firm on choice and fancy grades of fresh creamery, with supply barely equal to the needs of the trade. Secondary qualities are hardening a little. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 70@70½c; extras, 92 score, 69½c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 64@68½c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 59@63½c; lower grades, 53@58c; unsalted, higher than extras, 72@72½c; extras, 71@71½c; firsts, 66@70c; seconds, 60@65c; State dairy, good to prime, 63@66c; common to fair, 52@62c; renovated, extras, 53@54c; firsts, 50@52c; lower grades, 43@48c; imitation creamery, firsts, 47@48c; ladles, current make, firsts, 44@45c; seconds, 43c; lower grades, 41@42½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 42½@43c; No. 2, 41½c; lower grades, 36@40½c.

EGGS.—9,773 cases. Receipts of fresh gathered eggs continue light for the season and advices indicate light shipments now in transit. The continued mild weather leads to a belief that supplies will increase in the near future, dealers are confining their purchases to immediate needs, and these are not sufficient to absorb all the stock arriving and on hand. The surplus, however, is generally held with some confidence, and on the trading reported prices are sustained, although the tone of the market is irregular and some holders would shade slightly to find prompt outlets. Storage eggs continue in demand beyond the supply available and prices rule firm. Nearby white eggs dull and the demand is of a selective character. A little very fancy, uniformly large, new laid hennery stock working out at sustained prices, but most of the offerings contain more or less small eggs and are dragging heavily at a wide range. Some further sales of fancy Petaluma whites at 90c, but most of the California eggs here are of less desirable quality and are not moving at any price that purchasers are as yet willing to accept. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 71@72c; extra firsts, 68@70c; firsts, 65@67c; seconds, 60@64c; Fall gathered, poor to prime, 50@63c; dirties, No. 1, 53@57c; No. 2 and poorer, 44@54c; checks, good to choice, dry, 46@48c; undergrades, 40@45c; refrigerator, 43@55c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 90@92c; ordinary to prime, 75@82c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 75@90c; pullet whites, 70@78c; Pacific Coast whites, extras, 90c; lower grades, 80@88c; pullets, 68@74c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 70@83c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 75@78c; gathered browns and mixed colors, 66@72c.

OPPOSE OWNERSHIP BILL

Marconi Officials Say Private Operation Can Best Solve Problems—Griggs Fears Censorship.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—John W. Griggs, President and General Counsel of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph and Cable Company, and Edward J. Nally, Vice President and General Manager of that company, testified before the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee today, in opposition to the Administration bill proposing Government ownership of the wireless systems in the United States.

Mr. Nally told of the wireless operations of the Germans in Mexico and said there would be great advantage in an American organization controlling the wireless systems connecting the United States with Latin America. He said the Navy Department had encouraged the Pan American Wireless Telegraph and Telephone Company, of which he is President, to get concessions in South America, and then, by suddenly changing its position, had forced the abandonment of the enterprise.

Mr. Nally said the wireless situation in Mexico was controlled by the Germans, adding:

"Some facts bearing on the wireless situation in Mexico may be of interest to this committee. They show how terribly disadvantageously we are placed with respect to the commercial wireless agencies of other countries, and the great handicap suffered by United States manufacturers and operators of wireless apparatus. We sent an agent to Mexico to look over the situation and make preliminary arrangements toward the creation of a commercial wireless service with the United States. We were aware, of course, that the Germans were in full control of the wireless stations in Mexico, and we hardly expected, without active aid from our Government, to be able to break such control before the end of the war, but we were animated by a feeling that any success at this time, however small, would not only be to our advantage, but would tend to the patriotic end of assisting in winning the war.

"Our representatives found that the new Mexican Constitution, formulated in 1916, had carefully provided for Government ownership of wireless. The predecessors of Carranza, after Diaz, had recognized the great desirability of supplementing the land telegraph system with a chain of radio stations linking outlying provinces of the country, so as to lessen the chances of interruption of communication by the rebels. Carranza had little money and less credit when he started to make improvements in the system, and it was, therefore, the most natural thing in the world that the Carranza Government should fall an easy victim to the wiles of the German Telefunken Company when it offered to repair the old stations and to finance and man them with competent German operators. It is only fair to keep in mind in this connection that at the time this deal was made both Mexico and the United States were neutral, and the Mexican Government had as much right to buy from Germany as from any other country.

"Although the Mexican Government claims title to all these stations, the apparatus is strictly German. There have been German operators in every one of the twenty-odd stations. Moreover, there have sprung up Government electrical shops with German Superintendents, and the whole system has been supervised by German radio experts, who were formerly employed at Sayville or Tuckerton or on German liners which were interned in this country at the beginning of the war.

"Leaving out of consideration the military thorn in the flesh that this system in Mexico has been to us during the war, we must recognize in it an even greater disadvantage and handicap to our merchants and manufacturers in the days to come, when fighting for a reasonable share of the trade in Mexico."

Mr. Griggs told of the struggles of the Marconi Company, its capitalization, and the 23,000 stockholders, who had received only two dividends in sixteen years, and now, when success was in sight, he said, the Government proposed to step in and confiscate the property. Such an act, Mr. Griggs said, would be clearly against the interests of the public, asserting that, with the navy in control of wireless, "a permanent censorship would be established on commercial and newspaper messages."

"When the United States Government took over the wireless systems in the United States, the Marconi had high-power stations in Great Britain, Norway, the United States, and Japan," said Mr. Griggs. "Before the Government took over our lines we could get a message to Japan and a reply in one hour; now it takes seven days. I cite that as an example of Government control, and Government ownership would be just as bad, if not worse.

"Our investors, representing over $7,000,000 of capital, were willing to wait until the time should come when they might receive a proper return on their investment. We had hoped to cut rates and acquire a large part of the cable business, and had been planning to that end. Now, after twenty years, with only two dividends received, the Government steps in and would destroy all the hopes of these investors and take over the property without an adequate compensation. The acquisition of private property in times of war by the Government is severe, but in times of peace it is harsh, and in this instance cannot serve any public need.

Mr. Griggs said he did not want to discuss Government ownership as a policy, but merely to point out the present trend in that direction.

"For instance," he said, "the Marconi Company was compelled to sell its ship-to-shore stations to the Government after the armistice had been signed; the cables were taken over after hostilities had ceased; the pending bill appeared after this occurrence, and now only recently the joint resolution has been introduced authorizing the Government to acquire the telegraph and telephone systems of the country."

Mr. Griggs then related the difficulties his company had had with the navy, which, he said, had refused to recognize the Marconi patents and had used "piratical" inventions, despite the fact that the United States courts had decided that the patents used by the Government were an infringement on the Marconi patents.

Mr. Griggs ended his argument by expressing the hope that the committee would defeat the bill. In case it should be reported, he offered an amendment which provided for full and adequate compensation.

HINES BACKS M'ADOO ON RAILROAD POLICY

Agrees Roads Should Be Turned Back Now or Control Extended Five Years.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Reports that Walker D. Hines, Assistant Director General of Railroads, a former Chairman of the Santa Fé, was to succeed William G. McAdoo as Director General, which were active in the days immediately following Mr. McAdoo's resignation, were revived today by the release for publication of a statement by Mr. Hines to the effect that he agreed with Mr. McAdoo that the railroads should either be returned to their owners as soon as possible, or that the period of Federal control should be extended five years.

Mr. Hines does not make a choice between these two issues, but the effect of the statement, which consists of an address delivered last Thursday at a meeting of the Railroad Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and answers to questions asked, following the address, points to the extension of five years of Federal control.

The release of the address, at this time, just before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce is to take up Mr. McAdoo's suggestion to extend the time five years, may have the effect of reinforcing the arguments of Mr. McAdoo by a man who, until he came into the Railroad Administration, was one of the leading railroad executives of the country. Those who support Mr. McAdoo's plans expect that the position taken by Mr. Hines will obtain serious consideration by railroad men for the Director General's proposals, and generally will direct second thought to the plan.

With regard to the advisability of twenty-one months of peace-time control, Mr. Hines says:

"The twenty-one month solution is not a practicable thing and will simply pile up conditions which are unsatisfactory now, and which would grow increasingly unsatisfactory in the twenty-one months."

Therefore, he adds, the question reduces itself to turning back the railroads promptly or a five-year extension. In answer to a question, Mr. Hines said:

"My view is that, if a five-year extension should be granted, this would be the situation: That this subject, upon which the thought of the country has not yet crystallized, will crystallize as the result of the ensuing discussion in the next two years. I should think, inevitably, it would be a prominent subject in the Presidential campaign as to how it ought to be settled, and I should say that within one year after the new President and the new Congress came in, which will come representing the crystallizing of the thought of the country, a permanent solution of the question would be reached, so that by the time we get as near to the end of Federal control as we are now we will have had two years' discussion by the public and one year's discussion by the President and Congress, and that then a solution could be adopted which might very readily result in the immediate transfer to the new conditions, whatever they are."

In pointing out that Congress, in his opinion, could not hope to prepare remedial legislation on the railroad problem in the short time left to it in this session, Mr. Hines outlines some of the leading points that must be considered, as follows:

The question as to the extent to which there shall be State control, or whether there shall be any State control, in respect of railroad rates, or railroad improvement, or railroad service. On this Mr. Hines says there is a most pronounced difference of opinion, needing prolonged and thorough discussion.

The question of overcapitalization.

"A valuation has already been provided for," says Mr. Hines, "and is well under way, but has not been completed, and there is nothing to indicate how the valuation, when completed, shall be applied in dealing with this problem of overcapitalization, although evidently it will have an important relation to the subject."

The whole staff of the Railroad Administration is in accord with the Director General that it is impractical to go on in the present state of uncertainty, says Mr. Hines. He holds that it would be better to have a status of private management that would last until legislation than to have a state of Federal control that would terminate without legislation.

PROTEST AGAINST CABLE CENSORSHIP

New York Business Men Send Representative to Washington to Try to End It.

Representatives of the firms that are the biggest cable users in the United States attended a luncheon held yesterday in the Lawyers' Club, 115 Broadway, under the auspices of the Committee on Communications of the Council on Foreign Relations, and decided unanimously to register a protest against the continued cable censorship. Mark O. Prentiss of 165 Broadway was appointed a committee of one to convey the sentiment of the big business men to the Federal authorities, and last night he left for Washington, where today he will see Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Secretary of Commerce Redfield, and the Assistant Secretary of State.

It was the opinion of the meeting that the ban on the use of codes should be lifted at once, thereby cutting down congestion of the sea lines through the fact that one code word frequently could be used where it is now necessary to employ several. Among the speakers were Lindsay Russell of the Council on Foreign Relations, Jules S. Bache of J. S. Bache & Co., William Loeb, Jr., of the American Smelting and Refining Company, and Lieutenant P. E. D. Nagle, U. S. N., of the Bureau of Communications of the Navy Department.

Discussing conditions of cabling on the Pacific Coast, Lieutenant Nagle said that delays of from ten to twelve days were frequent. He told that recently there had been a movement started in Seattle to lay down a cable between that city and Japan, the cost to be $5,000,000. Plans were maturing, he said, when Postmaster General Burleson seized the cables. In response to a question, he admitted that business men who had announced their intention of subscribing to the cable, because of its power to increase American trade with the Far East, had abandoned their plans because of the uncertainty of Government ownership.

Following the speeches and an open discussion of the situation it was voted to send Mr. Prentiss to Washington at once. The enterprises, and their representative, which participated in the conference were: American Steel Export Company, Mr. McAteer; Guaranty Trust Company, Allen Walker and Mr. Metz; Pynchon & Co., H. N. Edwards; J. S. Bache & Co., Jules S. Bache; Robertson, Cole & Co., G. M. Malcolm; Press Cable Service, Perry Arnold; Overseas Products Company, Edward E. Pratt; Associated Press, Harold Martin; International News Service, G. Snyder, Jr.; THE NEW YORK TIMES, Louis Wiley; Irving National Bank, Mr. Corwin; American Smelting and Refining Company, William G. Loeb, Jr.; Equitable Trust Company, Mr. Eidman and Mr. Noble; Asia Magazine, Silas Bent; Japan Society, Eugene C. Worden, Secretary; Douglas L. Dunbar, Secretary, and Mark O. Prentiss, Manager of the Council on Foreign Relations, and representatives from the United States Steel Corporation, British-American Tobacco Company, and the Standard Oil Company.

It was announced that on Jan. 7 the Council on Foreign Relations will hold a meeting in the Hotel Astor at which "World Communications" will be the topic. Secretary of the Navy Daniels will be asked to preside, and the speakers to be invited will include Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union and Federal Cable Director; Theodore N. Vail, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and wire adviser to Postmaster General Burleson, and Clarence H. Mackay, President of the Postal Telegraph-Commercial Cable Company.

Postmaster General Burleson's advocacy of Government ownership of the wire lines, and his statement that the Government would save enough in twenty-five years of operation to buy the lines outright, met with a sharp reply yesterday from the Mackay Companies, controllers of the Commercial Cable lines. William J. Deegan, speaking for Clarence H. Mackay, said:

"At last we have the real truth. All this talk for the last six months about the war necessity for seizing the telegraphs and telephones, and more recently the high-handed and unwarranted seizure of the cables, is now shown to be absolutely insincere, and was merely a catchall in which to gather all the wire companies and then force Government ownership, without ascertaining the wishes of the people—in fact, as it now appears, in defiance of the wishes of the people. In other words, an embezzlement of power. Mr. Burleson's argument for Government ownership is just as weak and unconvincing as was his previous argument that the telegraphs, telephones, and cables were merely taken as war necessities.

"Mr. Burleson's statement that the entire wire system can be acquired without requiring the appropriation of a dollar from the public treasury and that by savings in governmental operation the lines can be paid for by the Government in twenty-five years is irresponsible twaddle."

Metropolitan Life Dividends.

The Directors of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company yesterday declared dividends, payable in 1919 to holders of industrial policies, amounting to $3,500,000. It was announced that the claims paid this year exceeded the normal amount by about $7,500,000 on industrial policies and by nearly the same amount on ordinary policies. This increase is attributed to deaths resulting from Spanish influenza. An analysis of the claims is said to show that deaths from this disease among the company's policy holders totaled about 75,000.

STRAIGHT RICHES GO TO BETTER CORNELL

Major's Will Counsels Widow to Carry Out Plans to Make University "More Human."

AID FOR AMERICANIZATION

Fortune, Estimated at $5,000,000, Goes to Mrs. Straight for Uses Mutually Understood.

The will of Major Willard D. Straight, filed in Mineola yesterday, disposes of an estate which his associates believe will approximate $5,000,000 in such a way that Cornell University may be a large beneficiary. While the bulk of the estate is bequeathed outright to the widow, Dorothy Payne Whitney Straight, Mrs. Straight is requested to do "such thing or things for Cornell University as she may think most fitting and useful to make the same a more human place," and "likewise to do such thing or things for the Americanization of emigrants to the United States as in her judgment will educate or tend to educate them to understand the responsibility of American citizenship." Major Straight, who died in Paris on Dec. 1, was graduated from Cornell in 1901.

The will, which was filed by Cary & Carroll of this city, with no accompanying papers to indicate the size of the estate, contained a clause wherein Mr. Straight requested that should he die after his wife, the trustees should carry out his plans for Cornell and also for Americanization, and which authorized the trustees to devote practically the entire fortune to the former of these two objects.

It was explained last night by one of Major Straight's associates that the phrase about making Cornell "a more human place" had been used against the judgment of his attorneys, who felt that it was vague and perhaps misleading. As a matter of fact, it was asserted, Major Straight meant no criticism of Cornell. He went through the university as a comparatively poor boy and he was much impressed that it was "a rather dreary place" for those who had barely enough funds. The fact that he spoke so vaguely was explained as meaning that both the Trustees and his wife were conversant with his ideas and desired to carry them out. At her New York home, 1,170 Fifth Avenue, last night, Mrs. Straight would not discuss the will.

Mr. Straight was a leader in the League of Foreign Born Citizens, which devoted much effort during the war to developing patriotism in Americans born in other lands, and gave much attention to other similar organizations.

For the New Republic, which he and his wife were instrumental in founding several years ago, Major Straight provided a trust fund of $300,000 to keep the magazine alive ten years, if it did not sooner become self-supporting. This clause became inoperative, because it was to be in effect only if Mrs. Straight died before her husband. The will, however, requests the widow to carry out the couple's mutual wishes as to the support of the magazine.

A sister of Major Straight, Mrs. James F. Sanborn, receives $100,000 outright. No provision is made for the couple's three children—Whitney Willard, 6 years old; Beatrice, 4, and Michael, 2—except that after Mrs. Straight has chosen such tokens and mementos as she desires for herself and has given a token to each of the Major's most intimate friends, who are not named, she is asked to divide the rest among the children.

Albert W. Fiedler, the testator's private secretary, receives the income of a $50,000 trust fund during his life, and trust funds of $5,000 each are left for George Bennett, his valet, and two other servants.

Mrs. Straight is appointed sole administratrix and guardian of the children. The will is dated June 26, 1917.

PLANS FOR HEARST ATTACK.

Aldermen Asked to Denounce a Member of Welcome Committee.

Robert W. Bonynge, President of the Republican Club, will announce in a few days the membership of the committee of nine club members to confer with other organizations in the city for the meeting to protest against the Mayor's selection of William Randolph Hearst to serve on the Committee of Welcome to Soldiers.

A resolution attacking an unnamed member of the Committee to Welcome Soldiers was brought up in the Board of Aldermen yesterday and referred to the Committee on General Welfare without a vote. The resolution, which was offered by Aldermen Squiers of Brooklyn and Quinn of Manhattan, read:

Resolved, That the members of the Board of Aldermen renew their pledge of loyalty to the flag and the President and their whole-hearted devotion to the soldiers and sailors who have made the supreme sacrifice for their country and for civilization, and to the men in uniform who have been wounded in making the world safe for democracy; and as an earnest of their devotion and loyalty repudiate every truckler with our country's enemies who strives, or has striven, to extenuate or excuse such crimes against humanity as the rape of Belgium, the sinking of the Lusitania, and the German policy of assassination by submarines; who seeks or has sought to sow dissension among our Allies; or who now seeks to capitalize his appointment to any committee appointed by his Honor the Mayor or other public official to welcome our home-coming heroes, or the Chairmanship of any such committee, or who seeks by such office to camouflage his un-Americanism and pro-Germanism; and, be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to his Honor the Mayor.

As soon as the resolution was proposed the motion was made that it be referred to the Committee on General Welfare, where it will stay until it is reported out for action by the entire board. Alderman Haubert of Brooklyn, a Democrat, is Chairman of the committee. There are five Democratic members, two Republicans, and one Socialist.

SENATE NEAR END OF REVENUE DEBATE

Passage of $6,000,000,000 Bill Within a Week or Less Is Now Expected.

PENROSE URGES ADOPTION

Predicts Tariff Changes Later—Simmons Wants Germans to Pay an Indemnity.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Passage of the $6,000,000,000 war revenue bill by Saturday, or early next week, is expected by leaders of the Senate as the outcome of unexpected progress today, when that body adopted many essential features of the measure as reported by the majority of the Finance Committee. The income tax, excess profits tax, and consumption taxes were all approved by viva voce vote.

The Senate passed over for the time the provision in the measure for limiting the 1920 tax yield to $4,000,000,000, and also the major part of the inheritance tax, about which there is disagreement. These features will be taken up by the end of the week.

The only thing that may prevent a final vote upon the bill this week is the possibility that Senator La Follette of Wisconsin who has a substitute schedule of excess profits taxation, may want a day or more to expound it. The Wisconsin Senator gave notice today that he would offer his substitute within a day or so. It will embrace a heavy tax, averaging 85 per cent., upon corporation profits.

In an exhaustive speech, in which he went into the details of the war revenue measure, Senator Penrose, senior minority member of the Finance Committee, announced that there would be no filibuster against it by the Republicans, following the agreement reached by the minority leaders last week. The Republicans will oppose the inclusion in the measure of the 1920 tax yield, as having no place in a revenue bill at this time, but they will confine their opposition to voting against it when that part of the measure is reached. If it is retained by Democratic votes, the Republicans, rather than defeat the entire measure, will vote for the bill.

To Correct Defects Later.

"Undoubtedly many defects in the bill as it has come to the Senate will have to be corrected by remedial legislation," said Senator Penrose. "It seems, however, to be the best that can be had at the present time and it is unquestionably better than the existing law."

The Pennsylvania Senator urged speed in disposing of the bill so that the Administration would not be hampered in getting the necessary tax yield for 1919. During the war, Senator Penrose said, many false, vicious economic methods had been adopted by this Government and autocratic powers exercised." Now, he urged, the country must return to "careful methods of expenditure."

"We must above all, in coming to our final conclusions on a financial policy, reduce expenses," said Senator Penrose. "Economy must be the watchword. Curtailment, retrenchment, and careful legislative checks on expenditures must be the practice. We must demobilize our armies to the lowest limit of our continuing responsibilities."

The Senator spoke of the protective tariff, saying:

"I think it is obvious to every one, including consistent protectionists, that in the revenue bills coming up for consideration since the beginning of the war in Europe it has been impracticable to consider a protective tariff. The whole world has been upset and the normal course of trade, domestic and international, has been diverted from its natural channels.

"To have raised a portion of the revenue by a general ad valorem or specific duty on imports would not have contributed any substantial amount of revenue compared with the vast sums required, and naturally would have caused grave embarrassment to those engaged in manufactures into which these imported products entered.

War Burdens Willingly Borne.

"I think that nearly every one conversant with the situation, no matter how consistent and strong his theories on protection for American capital and labor have been, has exhibited common sense and conservatism in not even attempting the discussion of these questions. The country has submitted cheerfully to a very heavy burden of taxation, without precedent, and not alleviated by revenues which, ordinarily would come from the Custom House.

"But I want to refer in passing to the fact that had it not been for the protective policy of the United States for a period, with slight interruption, of nearly sixty years, we would not have had established that vast industrial system, built upon firm foundations, capable of meeting every requirement, which has enabled us to furnish promptly to an incredible extent the munitions of war for the Allies and for ourselves."

Senator Penrose warned against piling taxation upon the people during reconstruction. The tendency, he said, has been to interfere with State rights in imposing taxation, and this, he insisted, must stop if the States were to maintain their individuality. Speaking of the part which America played in the war, Senator Penrose said:

"When we consider how successfully we have gone through this war we can approach the future in full confidence, notwithstanding the many difficulties confronting us. Who can fail to be impressed with the magnificent way in which the American democracy has met every requirement? The united strength of the country has supported the war."

Simmons Wants Germans to Pay.

While Senator Penrose was discussing the estimated expenditures for 1919 and 1920, Senator Simmons interrupted to suggest that, while the Government would have heavy damages to pay for war contracts, still there would be a considerable salvage on work already done. Besides that, Senator Simmons said, there was to be reckoned $10,000,000,000 advanced to the Allies, which would make "the best possible security and be an asset to this Government." Those bonds were marketable, he said, and could be utilized toward relieving the people of taxation.

"More than that, I want to say that I do not believe the people of this country will consent to the Central Powers escaping without duly and properly reimbursing this country for the great losses they have inflicted upon it by the methods they have pursued in this war," Senator Simmons went on. "I do not know if the Central Powers will be able to pay the demands that ought to be made upon them by the Allies and the United States; but these demands ought to be based upon the capacity of the Central Powers to pay and that ought to be our only limitation.

"The United States ought to demand the same indemnity for its losses, in proportion to the demands of its allies, with the possible exceptions of France and Belgium. This indemnity would help meet the tax demands here, and I believe the American people expect it.'

Important Sections Passed.

Among the important sections of the bill adopted were:

The war-excess profits rates for 1919, ranging from 30 to 80 per cent., as revised by the Finance Committee and estimated to raise $2,400,000,000 as compared with $3,200,000 under the House bill.

Individual income surtaxes ranging from 1 to 65 per cent., as revised by the Finance Committee, and designed to secure $1,045,069,000, as compared with $1,068,000,000 under the House bill.

Rates of $6.40 and $2.20 per gallon, respectively, on distilled spirits for beverage and nonbeverage purposes, as reduced from the respective $8 and $4.40 gallon rates of the House bill, and estimated to raise $450,000,000, as against $760,000,000 under the House draft.

Taxes on freight, passenger, express, Pullman, and oil pipe line transportation, as proposed in the Finance Committee's revision and estimated to yield $229,000,000.

The repeal on July 1 next of the law increasing first-class mail rates from 2 to 3 cents an ounce and providing for restoration of the old pre-war rates, involving a revenue reduction of about $50,000,000.

Senator Thomas of Colorado, Democrat, gave notice that he would propose war excess profits rates in lieu of the committee plan.

Action was deferred on the provision for repeal of the existing zone rates on second-class postage and substitution of the committee's new modified zone plan. Senator Hardwick of Georgia announced that he desired to discuss the second-class postage section.

Besides adopting many sections involving the Finance Committee's rate changes, the Senate approved, without debate, virtually all of the administrative provisions of the income tax and other sections, including those for amortization, allowances to oil, gas well, timber, and mining enterprises, and for consolidated tax returns.

CALL MONEY RATES EASIER.

Bulk of Loans Made This Week Have Been at 5 Per Cent.

The status of stock market loans was the subject of much discussion and conjecture in brokerage circles yesterday, stimulated by the fact that call money rates for some days past had denoted an easing tendency. In contrast with the 6 per cent. interest rate which was quoted steadily for several months, the bulk of the loans made so far this week have been at 5 per cent. or less. Considerable demand money was lent on the Stock Exchange yesterday at 4¾ per cent.

In some banking and brokerage quarters the belief was expressed that within a few days the Money Committee would remove current restrictions on brokers' loans. Confirmation could not be obtained from official sources that such a step would be taken in the near future. The committee apparently was as firmly convinced as at any time since its formation that credit resources should be conserved in behalf of further Government financing. In this, it is believed, the committee is acting with the full approval of the Treasury Department.

The easement of money rates reflects the increase of loanable funds at this centre, which has been coming more and more into evidence since war manufacturing began to slacken. Money has been transferred from the interior to New York banks, seeking a market at going rates. The basis of the expectation that the Money Committee may remove present limitations on brokerage borrowing at the banks is the belief that the pressure of loanable funds will become heavy enough to justify their increased use in stock market loans.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The National Aniline and Chemical Company has declared an accumulated and previously unpaid dividend of 3½ per cent. on the preferred stock, payable Jan. 15 to stock of record Dec. 20. This is in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred, payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 20.

The Westmoreland Coal Company has declared an extra dividend of 2½ per cent., in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of a like amount, payable in Liberty Bonds on Jan. 1 to stock of record Dec. 17.

Douglas Fenwick & Co. are offering the 7 per cent. preferred stock of the Carbo-Hydrogen Company of America at $4.88 a share, with a bonus of 25 per cent. in common stock. The par value of the preferred shares is $5.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Selling pressure in heavy volume in the late afternoon made for a reactionary close in the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Stocks were supplied freely on the decline and the substantial gains made in the general list previous to the selling movement were entirely eliminated or reduced to fractions. The attack centred in Steel common and Marine preferred and extended quickly throughout the active list. The sudden change followed the strongest market in recent days.

Good Reports from Hat Salesmen.

Reports received by manufacturers of men's hats from their salesmen who have returned from various sections of the country show that the Spring season is going to be big in their line. Large orders have been taken for Spring delivery, especially in felt hats, which are still very popular in shades of green, brown and black. Although very few derbies have been worn in comparison with felt hats it now looks as if the former were again coming in greater vogue, as more orders are being taken at present than for some time past.

Silk Sales Show Up Well.

Not all of the silk wholesalers are talking "dull December" this year, in spite of the things that have occurred to take the edge off the demand for the time being. While current sales do not appear to be evenly distributed through the trade, one very well-known concern in the first five days of this month did a business equal to that done during the whole of December, 1917. It was admitted that last December, in a business way, was nothing to get excited about, but it was considered something of a feat to equal it in five days. The bulk of the business done by this concern was on goods for immediate delivery, particularly on silk duvetyns.

Trying to Get Back In.

While local hat buyers were said to have bought "straws" conservatively for Spring, 1919, and to be holding to their contracts, many of those in the smaller cities and towns are now trying to re-order the goods they canceled when the increasing of the draft ages made it appear that a great part of the man power of the country would be called to war. These buyers, it is said, are being handled more or less roughly by the concerns on which they canceled and, in view of the greatly decreased production of straw hats for next Spring, there are possibilities that many of them will go on short rations.

Dress Trade Organization.

The new organization recently formed in the dress trade, which it was thought might be called the Chamber of Commerce of the Dress Industry of America, has been definitely named the Associated Dress Industries of America. It will be wide in scope, and in addition to including the dress manufacturers of this country and Canada, it will admit to associate membership manufacturers of materials, trimmings, &c., that go into these garments. Manufacturers of children's dresses will also be invited to join. Plans are now under way for a get-together luncheon of the local dress manufacturers. It will take place on Saturday at the Holland House, where the association's temporary headquarters are situated.

Holiday Dullness in Gray Goods.

Buying in the local gray goods market yesterday was said plainly to have shown the effects of the approaching holiday season, and, in most instances, the ending of the business year. Further second hand business was done on 38½-inch 64-60s at 11¼ cents, and first hands were said to be closer to this price than they have been to previous quotations from that source. Reports were current of the selling of 38½-inch 60-48s at less than 10 cents, the goods being held by second hands and for quick shipment, but it cannot definitely be said that sales were made. On the higher-count printcloths and narrow goods buyers again held aloof, and the same thing was largely true of the offerings of sheetings and other coarse-yarn goods.

Their Problems Are Coming.

While the coming of lower prices may help buyers in some ways, it is said here that they will also raise problems of a kind that are not pleasant to think of. If the advantage of lower prices could be held, it was said, buyers would have a "cinch," but lower prices for them mean lower prices for the consumer as well. This raises the problem of "beating last year," which is a fetich in practically all retail stores. It is argued that buying on the part of the public was not seriously limited by the high prices current this year and that, as a result, sales records were set that will give the various departments something to "shoot at" for some time. How the volume of business can be increased sufficiently to overcome any shrinkage of prices that may come is a problem calculated to make buyers worry a bit.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The accounts of P. Wiest's Sons, York, Penn.; Mammoth Department Store, Shawnee, Okla., and Kannards & Co., Wilmington, Del., are now being handled in this market by Hart, Ross & Flanagan, resident buyers, 277 Fifth Avenue.

The Interallied Products Corporation, formed by Arthur W. Kelly, Seward W. Ehrich, and Theo. M. Lilienthal, with local offices at 25 Broad Street, has been organized to do an export business in electrical equipment, hardware, tools, and machinery.

The Retail Buyers' Association, resident buyer, has enlarged its quarters at 220 Fifth Avenue. A new buyer, Mr. Cohen, has been added to the staff and will buy hosiery, underwear, and gloves.

About $350,000 worth of raw furs will be disposed of tomorrow, through sealed bids, at the first December "floor sale" of J. L. Prouty's Sons, Inc., at 382 West Broadway. The offerings embrace thirty-seven kinds of pelts, and range from three fisher to 28,700 muskrats, of which 2,700 are "blacks." Among the collection are forty-five silver foxes and 3,413 skunks.

TAX TICKET SPECULATORS.

Aldermen Adopt Ordinance Fixing Annual Payment at $250.

The Board of Aldermen, 58 to 5, adopted the ordinance regulating ticket speculators yesterday, as recommended by the Committee on General Welfare, which held a number of public hearings on the measure. The ordinance provides that agencies selling theatrical tickets must pay $250 a year license and must not charge a purchaser more than fifty cents above the price stamped upon the theatre ticket at the box office.

Alderman Falconer of Manhattan offered a resolution requesting the Park Commissioner of Brooklyn to appear at the next meeting and explain an advertisement relating to sealed bids for the news and cigar stand privilege at Joralemon and Fulton Streets, Brooklyn. The paragraph referred to read:

"The Commissioner reserves the right to designate and determine the leading newspapers which must be offered for sale at the stands."

The resolution was referred to the Committee on General Welfare. Socialist Alderman Lee attempted to have the ordinance prohibiting the display of the red flag repealed, but his resolution was tabled on the motion of Alderman Kenneally.

FAIR PRICES RULE AT WOOL AUCTION

RUSH OF BUYERS HERE

Estimated That the 500 Lots Disposed Of on the Opening Day Brought $500,000.

Despite forebodings to the contrary prevailing among many in the industry, prices realized yesterday at the first day's peremptory auction sale by the American Woolen Company, held at the salesrooms of Burling & Dole, 599 Broadway, proved that the domestic woolen piece goods market was not likely to be demoralized by the unloading in a single sale of fabrics said to have a value of approximately $2,000,000.

While yesterday's auction prices ranged from 20 to 30 per cent. on the average below the regular opening prices announced by the American Woolen Company, the general opinion among garment and clothing makers and jobbers at the end of the day was that prices had been well sustained; that the sale demonstrated that buyers were eager to replenish stocks at fair prics, and that the country as a whole, was in a position to absorb piece goods at this time without holding off purchases indefinitely in anticipation of a big drop in current values in the first half of 1919.

Buyers from the West, Southwest and other parts of the country at the auction gave it as their view that the fair prices paid for merchandise going under the hammer yesterday, might, in part at least be attributed to the optimism of all factors in the industry regarding the business outlook in the opening months of next year. It also was held that the good price showing made at the first day's session of the piece goods sale here, would in all probability have the effect of stiffening the prices to be received by the Government for the 15,000,000 pounds of raw wool it will begin to auction off in Boston today.

Cleaning Out Stocks.

The auction begun yesterday, which is the largest in the history of the domestic woolen industry, represents the products of a score or more of the mills of the American Woolen Company, and was held by the biggest single manufacturer of woolen fabrics for the purpose of cleaning out stocks preparatory to taking inventory. Other reasons for the unprecedented sale were advanced in competitive manufacturing circles, but the American Company yesterday had nothing to add to its published statement that the sale was held for strictly inventory reasons.

Yesterday's sales were said to be in the neighborhood of $500,000, this representing 500 lots of goods, covering heavy, medium, and light weight fabrics and current styles of fancy worsted and woolens for men's and women's wear. Fabrics for men's wear practically monopolized the morning hours of the auction, but when piece goods suitable for cutting up into articles of wear for women made their appearance in the afternoon, it was apparent that, in the main, they were maintaining price levels on a parity with those obtained for men's goods.

When Auctioneer Charles E. Burling mounted the rostrum, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, the large salesrooms were packed and a big crowd struggled in vain on the sidewalk to gain admittance. The throng was made up of clothing manufacturers, jobbers, cutters-up, makers of women's garments, large and small, from nearly every important city in the United States.

The supply of catalogues became exhausted before the auction began, and this, it was said, dissuaded many prospective buyers from participating in yesterday's proceedings. Mr. Burling explained that a new catalogue, showing additional offerings, would be available today.

Lots Disposed of.

Lots 1 and 2, consisting of fancy worsted suitings, went under the hammer for $1.42 per yard, the bidding on these lots starting at $1 and jumping 5 cents at a time. Lots 3 to 10, inclusive, also fancy worsted suitings, went at $1.07. Champlain Mills fancy suitings in Lots 11 and 12 brought $1.67½, and smaller goods from the same plant, covered by Lots 13 and 14, were sold at $2.12½.

Some of theo ther sales at the morning session included suitings from the Hecla Mills at 60 cents per yard, as against 95 and 97 cents during the regular season; Anderson Mill suitings, 52½ cents, with duplicates at 45 cents; Anderson overcoatings, which were listed at the opening of the season at $3.25, went to $1.75 yesterday, with duplicates at $1.52. Ayer suitings brought $2.35.

Among other sales were khaki flannel shirting, $1.87½; Ayer serges, $2.45 to $3.40; Ayer meltons, $2.60; Assabet kerseys, $2.50 to $2.70; Assabet fay flannel, 2.70, with duplicates, and also all-wool meltons ranging from $2.30 to $2.55; Washington medium grade serges, $1.52; to $1.75, and better goods from the same mill, $3; Arden men's blue serge, 6609½, $1.87; Assabet overcoating, SS9670-1, $2.30 to $2.50; Fitchburg-Puritan f ine men's worsted suiting, $1; melton overcoating, 3280-MB, $2.80 to $2.90, and 6107-2 black worsted suiting, $2.40.

Washington manipulated cloths in seconds almost reached the prices of firsts, and ran within 50 per cent. of opening prices one year ago. The prices of all goods sold yesterday were net. Altogether not less than 25,000 pieces changed hands yesterday.

E. J. Rieckelman of Cincinnati, Ohio, one of the visiting buyers, said remarkable interest had been shown in the sale. "I never before saw such a large attendance at a woolen goods auction," he said. "The volume of sales and the prices will help to stabilize the market, and, in addition, reflect the optimism regarding the immediate future of business in the United States. This auction shows the big absorbing power of the industry."

The auction will be continued today, starting at 10 o'clock, with Lot 500 covering men's worsted suitings.

Styles in Men's Wear.

Owing to the restrictions placed on the manufacturers of men's clothing by the War Industries Board, and which is still in effect although not compulsory, many of the so-called "monkey clothes" or the extreme styles have been discontinued. This move on the part of the manufacturers was considered a good one, as these styles have been replaced by more conservative models, which make a much better appearing suit. In the overcoat line, men's ulsters have been much in demand this season, and large quantities have been sold to the retail stores in anticipation of another severe Winter. Last year very few of these coats were being carried by the retail trade, and the demand was exceptionally large. In view of this, the local stores have made preparations ahead of time this year.

New Export Conservation List.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The War Trade Board will issue o Dec. 20 a new export conservation list, effective that date, from which a number of articles on the present list will be eliminated. Food items to be removed from the list are animal fats, animal oils, cattle, hogs, sheep, brewer's rice, buckwheat, buckwheat flour, cocoa beans, corn hominy, dry paste flour, honey, meat juice, rice flour, rice screenings, stearin, tallow, and velvet beans. Effective Dec. 23, the board will remove from the list barley malt, canned salmon, chocolate, cocoa, cornstarch, and molasses.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

A total of $54,975 was obtained yesterday at the auction sale of the Dash estate property in the Riverdale-Spuyten Duyvil section of the Bronx, just west of Van Cortlandt Park. The sale was held in the Vesey Street Salesroom under the auspices of J. Clarence Davies, who had charge of the sale. Bryan L. Kennelly was the auctioneer. About 300 persons were present, and although the prices were regarded as low in view of the future availability of the lots, there was spirited bidding for many of the choicest plots.

The offering included eighty-five lots, many of them fronting on Waldo Avenue. The highest price for any single lot was $1,875, paid by Jacob Sommer, a builder, for the lot 25 by 100, on the northeast corner of Waldo Avenue and 238 Street. He bought the adjoining lot on the street for $.50. William Brill paid $800 for the adjoining Waldo Avenue lot, and the Valhalla Corporation took the next two for $750 each. B. Horowitz paid $1,025 for the lot on the northwest corner of Waldo Avenue and Dash Place, and he bought the adjoining lot for $775.

Many women were present at the sale, and Mrs. Alice Jones was one of the largest individual buyers, obtaining twenty-six lots. The old Dash home with two plots brought $6,750. The lowest lot price was $250.

Two Sales in Water Street.

An interesting lower Manhattan deal was closed by the Cruikshank Company in conjunction with Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd, who sold the two five-story business structures at 46 and 48 Water Street to an investor for the Almy Realty Corporation, of which R. H. Gallatin is President. The property covers a plot 54.7 by 69.2 and irregular on the west side of Water Street, just north of Coenties Slip.

Another deal on the same thoroughfare was also closed by the Charles F. Noyes Company in the sale of the five-story building at 142 Water Street, on plot 25 by 103, between Maiden Lane and Pine Street. It was sold for Leonard H. Cohn to H. Duys & Co., Inc., a wholesale tobacco firm for many years at 170 Water Street. The property was held at $50,000. It is now under lease to the American Sumatra Tobacco Company and will be remodeled for the new owners.

Builder Sells Heights Apartment to Operator.

Abraham Ruth sold to Frederick Brown, operator, 538 West 179th Street, a five-story new-law apartment, on a plot 38 by 100, adjoining the corner of St. Nicholas Avenue. The property, which yields an annual rental of $6,600, was held at $50,000.

This completes the sale of the row of three similar houses built on this block by the seller and known as 530 and 534. Several months ago Ruth sold the houses to Brown, who resold them through Nehring Brothers, who also negotiated yesterday's sale.

Small Loft Buildings in Good Demand.

The estate of Samuel Ostrander sold to the Box Board and Lining Company, 8 Grand Street, a three-story factory, on a lot 22.8 by 83. The same company recently acquired the adjoining premises, 10 to 14 Grand Street, which it has occupied for several years. F. J. Guilfoyle & Co. negotiated both transactions.

The Almy Realty Corporation, representing the Gallatin family, sold the five-story business building at 46 and 48 Water Street, on a plot 54.7 by 68.2 by irregular. The property, which has been in the possession of the selling family for many years, is located just north of Coenties Slip.

The new owner is an investor, who takes the property in the name of the 210 West Fifty-sixth Street Company. The Cruikshank Company, in conjunction with Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd negotiated the sale.

The four-story store and loft building at 88 Front Street, in the tobacco district, has been sold by the O'Donohue estate, which has held the property for many years. The structure occupies a lot 22.1 by 86.7, located 120 feet north of Old Slip.

A. Guariglia purchased for investment from Nicholas F. Walsh the four and three story loft buildings at 86 New Chambers Street, running through to 66 Cherry Street, on a lot fronting 22.6 feet on New Chambers Street and 17 feet on Cherry Street, the westerly and easterly lines measuring 97.6 and 79.9 feet, respectively, located 70 feet west of James Slip.

Buying Private Dwellings.

Tenement Investments.

The Koch Realty Company sold to an investing client of J. B. Wood, 2,195 Seventh Avenue, a five-story tenement with store on a lot 18.9 by 75. The property is assessed at about $13,000.

Ennis & Sinnott, operators, purchased from the estate of Daniel Lawson and William G. Chrystie two five-story flats, 58 by 100, at 506 and 508 West 145th Street, through Du Bois & Taylor.

The Bronx Market.

I. R. Kaplan purchased from the Isaac Lowenfeld Realty Corporation 399 Willis Avenue, a five-story double flat with stores on a lot 25 by 107 held at $35,000. In part payment the buyer gave 222 East Ninety-ninth Street, a five-story tenement on a lot 25 by 100.

Brooklyn.

Mrs. Washington Wilson, sold to the present tenant, Peter Wagner, 1,158 and 1,160 Myrtle Avenue, a two-story brick building with stores having a frontage of 90 feet. The property was held at $17,000. William A. White & Sons negotiated the sale.

Queens Borough Sales.

J. McDougal sold to W. Bruce a plot 63 by 100 on the south side of Greenway South, north of Cranford Street, Kew Gardens.

E. Curley sold to A. Burns a plot 100 by 200 on the west side of Columbus Avenue, north of Newport Avenue, Far Rockaway.

C. Henken sold to M. Wagner a plot 40 by 160 on the west side of Sixteenth Street, south of Larch Street, Flushing.

Commercial Leases.

The Brett & Goode Company leased for Henry Eggers the six-story warehouse, 455-57 West Fourteenth Street, to the Oxford Paper Company, for a term of years at a total rental of nearly $50,000.

Samuel H. Martin subleased for the Graham Brothers Sales Company the store at 1893 Broadway to the Snow Whitcomb Company.

Duff & Conger, Inc., leased 108 East Eighty-third Street for the Belmont Garage Company to L. Rochlitz for a term of years.

Realty Notes.

Jacob S. Schwab was elected President of the Real Estate Owners' Protective Association for his eleventh term at the annual meeting Monday night at the Hotel Majestic. The other officers chosen were: Isidore H. Kempner, George W. Loft, and Frederick H. Peper, Vice Presidents; Irving Bachrach, Recording Secretary; Edward G. Schroeder, Financial Secretary; Leo Strauss, Corresponding Secretary; William C. Capleas, Treasurer.

The New York Title and Mortgage Company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent., payable Jan. 2, 1919, to stockholders of record on Dec. 20, 1918.

New York University
COURSES FOR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS RELEASED FROM SERVICE.

3. College Courses, Preparation for Medicine.

On December 30, the College of Arts and Pure Science of New York University will open courses in all college subjects, including those required for preparation for medicine.

These courses will continue until June 21, 1919. Men released from the service of the army or navy will be admitted to them, and will, upon their completion, receive credit for one full academic year. Civilians may also be admitted to these courses.

On February 3, the College will open the regular February-September freshman year. This is organized to permit students graduating from High School in January to begin at once their college work, and by continuing through the summer, complete the freshman year by September, 1919.

For further information regarding these courses apply to Dean Archibald L. Bouton, New York University, University Heights, New York City. Telephone Fordham 3600.

New York University will also provide a special program of courses in commerce, law, and arts and sciences. For further announcements, see tomorrow's Times.

Learn SPANISH On Your Own Victrola

With the war over business firms by hundreds are searching for men and women with a working knowledge of Spanish to help handle South American trade. They offer splendid salaries with opportunities for travel and rapid advancement.

In order to quickly train people to meet this need, the International Correspondence Schools have prepared a special course by which you can easily acquire a working knowledge of Spanish for commercial use right at home in spare time.

The entire course consists of fifty lessons on thirteen double disc records together with simple, explanatory texts. The discs can be used on any machine that will play Victor or Columbia records.

No classes to bother with, no going and coming to take up your time. You learn in the comfort and quiet of your own home with no one around to embarrass you. You get the absolutely correct pronunciation of native teachers. Study when you find it convenient for as long or short a time as you wish. No tiresome questions to answer or examinations to take. Your Victrola is your teacher.

The I. C. S. Language Method is based on 27 years' experience in teaching men and women in their own homes. It is endorsed by leading educators and over 40,000 delighted students.

It will cost you nothing to find out all about this simple, easy plan. Just write a letter or postcard and say: "Send me full details about the new course in Spanish."

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Pressure continues abnormally high over practically all parts of the country with the highest pressure along the northern border from New England westward to the Dakotas, where it is above 30.50 inches.

Temperatures continue near and above the normal generally east of the Rocky Mountains and below the normal over the South Rocky Mountain region.

Since Monday afternoon there have been rains in Southern Virginia and North Carolina and snows over the Texas Panhandle, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, and New Mexico.

Indications are that the weather will be fair Wednesday and Thursday over the region east of the Mississippi River, although it will become unsettled Thursday in the Mississippi Valley.

Moderate temperatures will continue over the eastern half of the country during the next two days.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be fresh north and northeast; Middle Atlantic Coast, strong northeast and east diminishing; South Atlantic Coast, moderate to fresh north and northeast.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND THURSDAY.

New York, New Jersey, New England, and Eastern Pennsylvania, fair Wednesday and probably Thursday; no change in temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	21	36	4 P. M.	32	44
6 A. M.	23	35	6 P. M.	31	40
9 A. M.	26	36	9 P. M.	27	37
12 M.	29	40	11 P. M.	26	37

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 40; for the corresponding date last year it was 25; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 34. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 34; at 8 P. M., it was 39. Maximum temperature 45 degrees at 2:30 P. M.; minimum, 34 degrees at 8 A. M. Humidity 61 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 48 per cent. at 8 P. M. The barometer at 8 A. M., yesterday registered 30.43 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.46 inches.

ADOPTS PALESTINE AS JEWS' HOMELAND

DELEGATES GOING TO PARIS

Elkus, Straus, and Morgenthau Are Mentioned as Envoys to the Peace Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17.—Amid scenes of great enthusiasm the first American Jewish Congress today affirmed its desire for the establishment of Palestine as a Jewish commonwealth under the trusteeship of Great Britain, it being understood that nothing would be done to prejudice the civil and religious rights of non-Jewish communities in Palestine.

The resolution embodying the desire of the congress was read by Dr. Harry Friedenwald of Baltimore, at the end of this afternoon's session. It took him perhaps two minutes to read the resolution, but when the import of the words was realized by the gathering the 1,000 delegates and visitors in the Masonic Building jumped to their feet with shouts of joy in the feeling that their age-long dream of a homeland for their people was soon to be an accomplished fact.

The members of the congress joined in singing the official Zionist song, "Hatik Voh," while a delegate jumped on the stage and waved the Stars and Stripes and the blue and white Jewish flag. The delegates embraced each other, and with tears of joy.

Judge Hugo Pam of Chicago, Temporary Chairman of the congress, led the demonstration, waving his gavel, while the delegates sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." A rising vote was called for, and all except two delegates stood up.

Text of the Resolution.

The resolution, as read by Dr. Friedenwald, Chairman of the Committee on Palestine, is as follows:

Resolved, That the American Jewish Congress instruct their delegation to Europe to co-operate with other representatives of other Jewish organizations, and specifically with the World Zionist organization, to the end that the Peace Conference may recognize the aspirations and historic claims of the Jewish people in regard to Palestine, and declare that in accordance with the British Government's declaration of Nov. 2, 1917, indorsed by the allied Governments and the President of the United States, there shall be established such political administrative and economic conditions in Palestine as will assure under the trusteeship of Great Britain, acting on behalf of such a league of nations as may be formed, the development of Palestine into a Jewish commonwealth, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which shall prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country.

Summing up the significance of the adoption of the resolution, Judge Julian W. Mack of Chicago, Permanent Chairman of the congress, made this statement:

"The resolutions adopted in reference to Palestine are an acceptance on behalf of American Jewry of the opportunities for the Jewish people that have been offered by the Government of Great Britain in the Balfour declaration of Nov. 2, 1917, indorsed by France, Italy, and Serbia, and which will undoubtedly be affirmed by the Peace Congress. President Wilson in his letter of Aug. 20, 1918, to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, expressed his complete sympathy with the Zionistic aims.

"Great Britain has been specified as the trustee in the firm belief that the United States desires no trusteeship or protectorate over any of the peoples in Asia Minor and in recognition not only of Great Britain's leadership in redeeming Palestine from the rule of the Turk, and in declaring for its dedication as a national homeland for the Jewish people, but also because of her peculiar fitness to act in this territory on behalf of the League of Nations."

There was unanimous consent to the resolution that seven delegates be elected to go to Europe at the earliest possible moment in order to use their best endeavors to realize at the Peace Congress the aims of the First American Jewish Congress. The resolution reads:

Be it resolved, That the American Jewish Congress shall elect a delegation of not more than seven members, which shall leave as soon as possible for Europe, where, in co-operation with representatives of the Jews of other lands, it shall use its best endeavors to realize the objects for which this congress was established, in accordance with instructions formulated by this congress;

Be it further resolved, That the delegation shall render a report to the congress after its labors in Europe are completed, and the President of the congress is hereby required to summon the congress to receive the report of the delegation not later than one year after the treaty of peace shall have been signed, and to transact such other business as may come before it;

Be it further resolved, That in the event that the delegation requires further instruction, or new conditions arise, the delegation by a majority vote may direct the President of the Congress to summon a special session of the congress to act on such propositions.

There are two opinions among the members as to the makeup of the commission. One holds that the delegates should be experienced diplomats, who might be able, through their knowledge of the intricacies of international diplomacy, to advance the cause of the Jews. In this class are mentioned Henry Morgenthau, Oscar S. Straus, and Abram I. Elkus, former Ambassadors to Turkey. The other opinion holds that only representatives of the various factions should be designated. The latter would choose one delegate for each of these factions: National Socialists, Mizrachim, (Orthodox members, rabbis, &c.,) American Jewish Commission, Zionists and fraternal organizations, and two delegates at large.

In addition to the names mentioned yesterday as possible candidates there are noted the names of Jacob De Haas for the Zionists, Adolph Kraus of the B'nai Brith or Leon Sanders of the Independent Order Brith Abraham for the fraternal organizations, and Rabbi Max Berlin of New York for the Orthodox element. It is expected that the delegates will be chosen at tomorrow's meeting, which will probably be the last before adjournment.

The resolution that on the formal declaration of peace the American Jewish Congress inform its European delegates to take the necessary steps to convene a World Jewish Congress had a stormy career both before and after its passage. Introduced by Abraham C. Schomer of New York, the resolution was quickly passed with great enthusiasm. Then Dr. Max Heller of New Orleans, who had voted for it, moved it be reconsidered, asserting that the congress had done an inadvisable thing, "which will bring on it the well deserved criticism of a sober world." It was his after-thought that the resolution should have been seriously weighed and considered before its passage and that not until other nations had held similar congresses would a world congress of Jews have a chance of success. After considerable discussion by the convention Dr. Heller withdrew his motion to reconsider. Here is the resolution as passed:

Resolved, That the American Jewish Congress shall, as soon as peace is declared among the warring nations, instruct its European delegation to take the necessary and effective steps in co-operation with the representative Jewish bodies in other countries for the convening of a World Jewish Congress.

Judge Mack attempted to add to the resolution the following words: "for the purpose of securing to the Jews of the world the rights for which this congress is aiming." But the delegates refused to put any limit on the purpose of the world congress and the amendment was defeated.

The morning session was spent in debating the rights of Jews in Rumania. The congress finally agreed to demand through the American peace delegates that the Jews in Rumania be surrounded by such protective measures and adequate guarantees that their rights would hereafter be secure.

A resolution also was adopted requesting the American delegation at Versailles to use its offices "to the end that it shall be made a condition precedent to the grant of autonomy, independence or freedom to any nation or land, that all the inhabitants thereof shall have equal civil, political, religious, and national rights without distinction of race or faith, and that such rights shall be guaranteed to them and their descendants in perpetuity."

CREEDS UNITE IN SERVICE.

Jew and Gentile, Hebrew, Protestant, and Catholic met together in the Metropolitan Opera House last night in a thanksgiving service of prayer, praise, and speech for the deliverance of Jerusalem from Turkish occupation and rule. Rabbis, priests, and pastors sat on the platform and participated in the exercises. Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant choirs sang the hymn of thanksgiving.

The meeting was arranged by the New York Federation of Churches, and the invocation was pronounced by Suffragan Bishop Charles Sumner Burch. Henry Morgenthau, ex-United States Ambassador to Turkey, was the Chairman. Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes, rabbi of the oldest Hebrew congregation in New York, read from the Jewish Scriptures; Rev. Dr. Demetrios Callimahos, pastor of the Greek Church of St. Constantine of Brooklyn, read the Christian Scriptures in both Greek and English, and Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, offered prayer.

Moving pictures of General Allenby's campaign in Palestine were shown and majestic chorus singing by the Cantors' Association of America, Leon M. Kramer, conductor, were followed by two anthems by the choir of Temple Emanu-El, S. Schlager, cantor. The Jewish singers were followed by the Gentile Apollo Club of Brooklyn, Dr. John Hyatt Brewer, conductor. The Catholics ended the musical part of the program when the Paulist Choristers, the Reverend Father Finn, conductor, sang four numbers, after which the Right Rev Mgr. Edwin M. Sweeney pronounced the benediction.

When Mr. Morgenthau had been introduced by the Rev. Dr. Boynton, he told of his visit to the graves of Macphela, in Palestine, the last resting place of the greatest of Jewish patriarchs. Mr. Morgenthau said that one day the treasurer of the American Mission in Constantinople called on him at the American Embassy and told him that as American Ambassador he had the right to visit these ancient tombs, a right which only Ambassadors and Princes of the blood had. When it became known in Constantinople that the American Ambassador was to make the pilgrimage many persons asked to join his party. He got more requests when he arrived at Cairo, and when he arrived at the tombs his party consisted of twenty-six.

"We absolutely possess this land," said Mr. Morgenthau, "not by cession, but by conquest. And this is as it should be. The doctrine that you must treat your neighbors as you want to be treated is that which the conquest of Palestine means.

"We are going to change international law. The people who do right will have the power to see that justice and right are administered by the democracies of the world, and that nations and individuals are treated with international courtesy. And tonight Jew and Gentile, Protestant and Catholic, representing the millions of all creeds in this great city, meet here to celebrate the deliverance of this beloved land."

Dr. Walter Laidlaw read resolutions which were adopted and which said:

"On behalf of the Jews and Catholics and Protestants, represented here today by a rejoicing and reverent multitude, we join in fervent thanksgiving to Almighty God for the liberation of this ancient land, so dear to us all, and pray for His guidance in the establishment therein of a just and stable Government, which shall preserve order, maintain the rights of each element of the diverse population, and assure to all, without distinction of race or creed, full civil and religious liberty."

The resolutions were seconded by Abraham Ribhany, representing Syrian-America, who said that he hoped, ultimately, the lands in Eastern Europe which had been freed by the allied victory from Turkish rule would be turned over to the protectorate of a single nation, preferably, he said, of the United States, but, if not, then, of Great Britain. The other speakers were Philip W. Wilson, New York correspondent of The London Daily News; Dr. John H. Finley, who announced that he was soon to return to Palestine, and Dock Commissioner Hulbert.

Hart Schaffner & Marx
Full Dress or Tuxedo

$40
Coat and Trousers

Copyright 1918 Hart Schaffner & Marx

There'll be a hot time in the Old Town

most every night this winter.

"Those boys" are going to be entertained until they won't have any doubt about what New York thinks of them.

And it's going to be Full Dress or Tuxedo—at balls, stags, smokers, receptions, Armory affairs or Private Parties—Full Dress in honor of the Uniform.

Our advice is—buy Dress Clothes now. The elegant fabrics demanded are not any too plentiful, and tailors who know how to make Dress Clothes are scarcer than ever.

Just why we can sell a Hart Schaffner & Marx Full Dress or Tuxedo Coat and Trousers for $40 is a story we'd rather not tell till you've seen the clothes—just take our word that they are worth more.

THE AEOLIAN-VOCALION

IN PERIOD DESIGNS

THE above illustration shows the Vocalion in a Queen Anne Model—one of sixteen distinctive cases, designed by The Aeolian Company to meet the growing demand for cabinets that conform with the various historic "periods." The simple, gracefully curved lines of the cabinet make this Vocalion at home with almost any furniture, however, be it Queen Anne or not.

This instrument has all the well-known Vocalion advantages—that is, it is the phonograph greatly improved, greatly refined and complete in every modern detail. It has the beautifully clear tone that distinguishes all Vocalions. It contains the unique and fascinating Graduola, with which you may play the phonograph as a musical instrument. And it has an advantage that all music lovers will recognize as vital; namely, a Tone Arm that will play all standard makes of records.

Designed in the graceful and popular "Queen Anne" manner, the Vocalion illustrated will prove a delightful addition to your home—its peerless musical qualities complemented by a cabinet of exceptional charm.
